EPITAPH FROM REV. JOHN, BISHOP OF STAMFORD.

“To the Pious, Learned, and Renowned Mather of Dorchester”:

“Here lies great Mather who so nobly wore Religious honours and its burdens bore,
Who in the Synod, stayed by God alone,
Its Counsels led, and made his acts his own;
And elsewhere aided — great among the great —
The Church's welfare and the civil state.
His solid judgment, learning, reason, skill
He made subservient to his Master's will,
Prudent, efficient, bent on human weal,
For all good works he kept a ready zeal;
Resolving through the power of faith and prayer,
In Christ all things to do, all things to dare,
In thoughts like these my spirit seeks relief,
This tribute rendering of its love and grief.”

INSCRIPTION TO MATHER FROM JOHN HIGGINSON, SALEM 1ST MONTH, 25TH DAY, 1697.

“O venerable Mather! loved of God,
Rejoice to see that where thy feet have trod
A blessed train of Christian sons are seen,
Still pressing on to be what thou hast been.
God grant that endless be the line
Of those who love and do His work divine!
Thou Cotton, shining from such heavenly lights,
Amid a brotherhood of kindred lights,
Follow thy sires, whom God hath guided home,
Thyself a morning star to those who yet shall come.”

PREFACE.

THE MATHER GENEALOGY, pertaining chiefly to the descendants of Rev. Richard Mather, who came from England and landed in this country in 1635, while not as complete and thorough as could be desired, is respectfully submitted to his numerous descendants, as the most satisfactory work touching the history of this remarkable family that has ever been given to the public. The history of this family covers a period of more than two hundred and fifty years, not reckoning one hundred years embraced in the lives of the ancestors of Rev. Richard Mather, who lived in England.

The author has been some thirteen years engaged in gathering the material for this work, and has reason to believe that very many names and families are left out because of his inability to reach them. The labor on his part of collecting the material herein was one of love and pride rather than with the expectation of having it published and realizing any adequate remuneration for his outlay of both time and means. The statistician and genealogist know from experience the extreme difficulty of compiling works of this kind free from errors. This work has been carefully revised wherever practicable, and the promoters trust that in this respect it will be found acceptable, and in the main, free from mistakes.

To the student and intelligent historian this work will be acceptable. No brighter names stand in Massachusetts' early history than those of Rev. Richard Mather's immediate descendants, Dr. Increase Mather, Dr. Cotton Mather, etc., who were instrumental, not only in shaping the institutions and character of that renowned commonwealth, but in giving tone to the liberal sentiments that finally culminated in the adoption of the principle of self-government.

This is not the place to defend these worthies from the attacks made by narrow-minded thinkers and writers, who would do well to read carefully what Professor Pond and Rev. Chandler Robbins, as well as other prominent authors, have testified regarding this noted family. One of the most precocious students ever known was the son of Rev. Increase Mather, and Harvard University may well be proud of the name of Rev. Nathaniel Mather, who graduated from that institution at the head of his class at the early age of sixteen years, having taken a full course, and delivered his valedictory in the Hebrew language, taking for his theme, the condition of Hebrew learning throughout the world. At the age of seventeen, he was in correspondence with the savants of the different countries of Europe in their respective languages on scientific and learned subjects, and but for his untimely death at nineteen years of age, the world might have enjoyed the benefits of one of the most gigantic intellects that ever lived.

INTRODUCTORY.

SOME thirteen years since I began a correspondence with those of my name in order to learn what I could of the history of the family in different parts of the world, not at all realizing the immense work on hand until after I had issued a circular to the Mather family which resulted in a great number of letters full of interest and of information from many who belonged to other lines than those of New England origin. I had supposed, previous to this time, that the name in this country was confined almost entirely to the descendants of Rev. Richard Mather. I found, however, that emigrations from England and Scotland, dating from 1682 down to the present time, have been very numerous. As I had taken hold of the work in earnest, I did not feel like giving it up, although I have very often since felt that it was too vast an undertaking, for one situated as I have been, to pursue the labor to its completion. It has been a source of great satisfaction that in my efforts to bring the work to a successful issue, sympathy and encouragement have been so freely extended by great numbers who have bidden me "God Speed" in the undertaking. I wish especially to mention here the names of a few among the many who have aided me at times when it seemed as if I must abandon the whole thing:—

Gen. Frederick Ellsworth Mather of New York, Joseph W. Mather of New York, Messrs. Chas. M. and Geo. M. Mather (brothers) of New York, A. D. Mather of Albany, and the late Hon. E. W. Leavenworth of Syracuse, whose mother was a Mather, besides many others, have been helpers in this enterprise. To the Mathers, as well as to those of other names who have so kindly assisted, I wish to express my deep sense of obligation.

The task of getting the materials for a work of this kind is necessarily arduous, and requires patient and painstaking search in a great number of books, church and town records, cemeteries, etc., etc. I will not weary my reader by recounting my experiences, in this country and also in England and Scotland, in efforts to unravel some of the mysteries. I will say, however, that I have written more than 3,600 letters, all bearing on this subject, about one-tenth of which have been to England, Scotland, and other parts of the British Dominions.

The wills of Lancashire and Cheshire, England, are all probated in Chester. I have had the names of all the Mathers whose wills were probated before the time of Richard Mather, or about his time, sent to me in the hope that they would give some clew to other members of his father's and grandfather's family. I had four of these ancient wills copied and sent to me, but no assistance was to be obtained from them. A large book of records of the Parish of Leigh, a parish adjoining Winwick, by Rev. J. H. Stanning, M. A., containing a record of all the christenings, marriages, and deaths from the year 1558 to 1625, was sent to me. In these records the name is often spelled Mathar instead of Mather. At an earlier period Mr. Stanning thinks it was spelled quite differently from either of the above.

I visited families of our name in 1887 in England and Scotland, where the name is to be met with quite frequently. They all treated me very cordially, and expressed great interest in those who bore the name in the United States. I met at "Old Hall Manor," at West Derby, Ellis Mather, who was a descendant of Ellis Mather, one of the first settlers of Toxteth Park before Rev. Richard Mather's time. Some members of this family have been connected with this old church at Toxteth down to 1850. I also called upon Edward M.—'s family in Edinburgh, Scotland (another brother). In Wales, at Holywell, their mother, Mrs. Thomas Mather, resided. I called, but unfortunately for me she had been invited out to dine, and I missed seeing her. This was the family who had arms granted in 1847.

In Bootle, near Liverpool, I met Rev. Herbert Mather, a descendant of Sir Christopher Mather of Yorkshire, who had arms granted 1575, and was treated very politely. He has several brothers who are clergymen of the church of England; it was his brother, Rev. Edward L. M., that wrote me the letter in 1877, on page 493.

At Newcastle-on-Tyne, in Northumberland, I called to see Miss Jane Mather, quite an elderly lady, who was the niece of Rev. John Mather of Beverly, and Rev. William Mather of Dover, England. This family were from Banff, in the north of Scotland, the last century. Miss Mather had, in her parlors, a large oil painting of our Rev. Dr. Increase Mather of Boston, also another of his son Rev. Samuel Mather of Witney, in Oxfordshire, England. Miss M. died the following winter. She gave me six very ancient Mather books, also pictures of her uncles, Rev. John and William; her brother, Joseph M., a banker of Newcastle, also sent to me one of herself and sister, Sarah R. M. After her death, all their property was given to charitable institutions. They were wealthy. Miss Jane was the last of that family.

In Scotland, I visited the family of the late Rev. William Mather, at Perth. Rev. William Mather was a clergyman in Stanley, Scotland, for fifty years. At Glasgow, I visited Dr. George Mather, the son of Dr. Matthew Mather, men of prominence in that city. I also went down to Dalry, in Galloway County, Scotland, to visit Rev. James Mather, who had been a correspondent. While in Scotland I very much regretted not finding John Mather, Esq., at his place of business. He was from Newton Mearns, where the Mathers had, for a long period, resided. Mr. M. had gathered much material of the Mather family to which he belonged. I regret, exceedingly, that I am unable to incorporate into this work the "Family Tree" of many generations that he had kindly prepared for me. They were families that originated in Sheffield, England, who were noted for their strong religious characters, and many places in Scotland to-day will testify to their great influence for good in that country. Those whom I met in Perth, Glasgow, and Dalry, were of this "Tree," with few exceptions.

I met in Toxteth Park, Liverpool, Mr. Richard Mather, who resides near the old church. He said his family were from Derbyshire.

EXPLANATORY.

MATHER is derived from the Anglo-Saxon math, honor, reverence. Förste mann derives a stem mad, mat, math, which also appears in the Old Frankish form as med. In the names of women, the sense might be that of the Anglo-Saxon Mæth, a maiden, maethie, modest. A word very little to interfere in Old High German, maht, might. Old German, medard, sixth century; French, médard; Old German, mather, ninth century; English, maiber, mader, mäther, meeder; French, matre, mattar, meder.

b stands for birth, m for marriage, d for death, in the records.

All by the name of Mather in the United States, descendants of R. v. Richard Mather the emigrant, that are now living are descended from his son Timothy and Katherine Atherton Mather in the line of their three sons, Rev. Samuel who settled in Windsor, Conn., Richard who settled in Lyme, Conn., and Atherton who settled in Suffield, Conn. All of the later generations will be found in that order in the book.

There are very many descendants of Richard M. from the other sons, but all that are living are of other surnames.

The name of each ancestor, in its order, is placed at the head of the family record.

In the index following the family records are: first, the year of birth; second, name; third, genealogical number; fourth, page.

There will be found a few omissions which are noted at end of the book.

I very much regret the necessity of having to note mistakes that have crept into the work. I have tried to be very careful in compiling the materials, and am surprised that some of the mistakes escaped my earlier notice.

Sincerely Yours
Horace E. Mather

 Board of Educ. Hartford, Conn.). Another of Eunice Mather Williams' descendants should be noticed here: Mary Reynolds (daughter of Samuel Reynolds, who is now dying at great age). She married Rev. Wm. G.

Schauffler, D.D., LL.D., of Constantinople, where they have done a great service in the cause of missions. She is now in New York City. She should have a larger notice than I can give here. Rev. A. F. Schauffler, D.D., of Bible House, New York, is one of her sons. (See pages 77-79.)

Mrs. Elizabeth Storrs Billings Mead, who has been chosen, in 1890, President of Mount Holyoke College, was descended from the Mathers in the following line: Rev. Richard¹ Mather; Rev. Eleazer² Mather; Eunice³ Mather, wife of Rev. John Williams; Eunice⁴ Williams, wife of Col. Shubert Conant; Eunice⁵ Conant, wife of Rev. John Storrs; Rev. Richard⁶ Salter Storrs of Long Meadow, Mass.; Sally⁷ Storrs, wife of Charles Billings, who were her parents. She is the widow of Rev. Dr. Hiram Mead. Mrs. Mead's grandfather, Richard S. Storrs, was the father of Rev. Richard S. Storrs of Braintree, Mass., and the latter the father of Rev. Dr. R. S. Storrs of Church of Pilgrims, Brooklyn, N. Y. Miss Harriet S. Billings of Northampton, Mass., is her twin sister. The wife of Professor B. B. Edwards, of Andover Seminary, is a sister. A child of Grace M. and Ezra Chapp was John, of Leicester, Mass., whose daughter, Julia Mather C., married Dr. Joseph C. Pyncheon of Springfield, Mass., and had four children. Grace had other children, Joshua, Horace, and Charles Chapp, the latter of Lebanon, Ohio.

Jerusha Mather, daughter of Atherton M. of Suffield, was the grandmother in the line of her son, Rev. Cotton Mather Smith, of Gov. John Cotton Smith, of Connecticut. Others of Jerusha M.'s descendants were Judge Luther Loomis, late of Suffield; Judge Wm. L. Loomis; also the family of the late Harvey Bissell, Esq., of Suffield; Rev. Henry F. Leavitt, of Vergennes, Vt.; Rev. Dr. John Cotton Smith of Boston and New York, who died January 9, 1862; Apphia Mather, daughter of William and granddaughter of Atherton, was the ancestress of a large number of Suffield families. She married Charles Hathaway. Their granddaughter Eliza married Allen Loomis. Clara married Neland Loomis, and Emily, Parkes Loomis; the latter were the parents of Frank Loomis, Mrs. Western Gilbert, and Mrs. P. Wadsworth. Mrs. Gilbert's daughter Minnie married Leavert P. Bissell, and has a daughter, Emily Bissell. Mrs. Henry Curtiss of Orange, N. J., is also of this line of ancestry.

Samuel Mather, M.D., of Lyme, Conn., was, in the line of his daughters, the ancestor of Dr. Gouverneur Mather Smith; Dr. Joseph M. Smith; Dr. Albert Smith; and Charles Smith, Esq., of New York; the Hon. George Mather Beckwith, of Plattsburgh, N. Y.; Dr. Charles Mather Beckwith, of Groton, N. Y. Mehitable Mather, daughter of Richard Mather of Lyme, and great-great-great-granddaughter of Richard M., the emigrant, married Maj.-Gen. Samuel Holden Parsons, of Revolutionary fame, and has had many descendants of influence, among them Enoch Parsons, Esq., of Middletown, Conn.; Samuel Holden Parsons, Jr., of Lyme, Conn.; Lucia Parsons, who married Chief Justice Stephen T. Hosmer of Middletown, Conn.; Mehitable

Parsons, who married Dr. Wm. Brenton Hall; Lucia P. Hosmer, who married Seth M. Noyes, of Hudson, N. Y.; Sarah M. Hosmer, who married M. A. Andrews, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose daughter, Lucia H. Andrews, is the wife of Hon. Stephen Wright Kellogg, of Waterbury, Conn. Dr. Geo. Alfred Lathrop, who died in Sandwich Islands, September 1, 1877, was the grandson of Mch'able Mather and Maj.-Gen. Samuel H. Parsons. Dr. Lathrop was the father of Geo. Alfred Lathrop, who married Rose Hawthorne, daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne.

Charles Mather Henderson, Esq., of Chicago, Ill., the eminent Christian worker and extensive manufacturer and merchant, was a great grandson of Charles Mather, the grandson of Atherton Mather of Suffield, Conn., branch.

The Hydeau families of Essex, Conn., descend from Cotton Mather of Windsor branch, the great-grandson of Rev. Samuel M., of Windsor. Henry Mason Ellsworth, of Rochester, N. Y.; Timothy Edward Ellsworth; Joseph W. Ellsworth, of N. Y. York; Timothy Ellsworth, of San Francisco, of same line. Allyn Mather Congreve, of Middletown, Conn., is a descendant of Rev. Samuel Mather of Windsor.

Frances J. Jones, the wife of Rev. Thomas K. Beecher, of Elhair, N. Y., was daughter of Rev. Henry Jones and Eliza S. Webster, and granddaughter of Rho'di Mather of Windsor branch, who married Maj. Daniel Jones. The mother of Mrs. Beecher was the daughter of Noah Webster, LL.D. Lucy Mather, the daughter of Dr. Samuel M., of Westfield, Mass., who married John Lee, was the ancestress of the Brace, Bunce, and Pratt families, of Hartford, Conn.; D. Walter Smith, R. H. Chittenden, and Elijah R. Kennedy families, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and of Atwood Collins family of Hartford, Conn. Many of the Whittlesey families of Connecticut, and some of the Loomis families, descend from Elizabeth Mather, the daughter of Rev. Azariah Mather of Saybrook, who was son of Rev. Samuel Mather of Windsor.

The Rev. Dr. Moses Mather, of Dartm., has large numbers of descendants in the female lines, whose family data I have in the work only for one generation. Among Dr. M.'s descendants are many of the following names: Betts, Selleck, Richards, Bol, Street, Bixby, Morgan, Roberts, Bates, Gelmey, Weed, Dingee, Hoyt, Whitney, Cloek, Lockwood, Walker, Hutchings, Watkins, Carpenter, White, Haulenbeck, Parks, Faulkner. — N. B. I have added some of these families. The descendants of Rev. Dr. Cotton Mather are only in female lines, and there are but a few of them: Joseph Crocker Esq. (the son of Rev. Samuel Mather Crocker), of Fort Hamilton, who has lately died in Worcester, Mass., was a grandson of Hannah Mather and Joseph Crocker. Miss Elizabeth Mather Hooker of Westfield, Mass. is the daughter of the late Dr. Anson Parker Hooker of Cambridge, Mass., and the granddaughter of Dr. Anson Hooker and Elizabeth Parker, in the Mather, Crocker, Parker, line. Her ancestors are buried in the Mather Tomb at Copp's Hill, Boston. Miss Hooker is the last of her line.

Lucy Mather, daughter of Capt. Timothy Mather (the grandson of Richard M., of Lyme, who married Jared Buckingham, has a numerous line of descendants in the following names: Buckingham, Post, Parker, Russell, Smith, Conklin, Pratt, Child, and Wilcox families.

There are some Mather families in the United States that I think are descendants of Rev. Richard Mather, the emigrant, but after years of search I have not been fully able to establish all the links in the chain.

Mr. Charles S. Mather, a merchant in Lawrenceville, Penn., whose father was N. B. C. Mather of Bath, N. Y., and in the son of Samuel and Dorothy De Forrest Mather, was, without doubt, in the line of Rev. Nathaniel Mather of Lower Aquobogue, Suffolk Co., L. I., a great-grandson of Rev. R. M. Rev. N. M.'s descendants settled in New Jersey, also in Orange Co., N. Y.

Another family, Aaron Mather, now living in Honeoye Falls, N. Y., son of Henry Winfield M., doubtless is another descendant of Rev. N. M.

In Campbellburgh, Ind., resides Rufus P. Mather, son of Nathaniel P. M., who was the son of Abner Mather, who was born in 1785. I think that this Abner was a son of Abner M., of Lyme branch of M., who was in the Revolutionary Army, and went from Farmington, Conn. Abner, the first, was son of Joseph M., of New Britain, Conn., the son of Joseph of Lyme, who was son of Richard of Lyme, who was son of Timothy of Dorchester, who was the son of Rev. Richard Mather, the emigrant, of Dorchester, Mass. Although many years of search have been made, the missing records which would make sure the line have never been found.

Jeremiah Mather, of Roxbury, Mass., who died March 1, 1718, was doubtless a near kinsman of Rev. Richard Mather, but I cannot find any records to establish his ancestral line. He married Hannah Riggs, daughter of Joseph and granddaughter of Edward R. Riggs, and had four children: Mary, born July 31, 1684; Hannah, born January 2, 1696; Joseph, born October 11, 1697; Susannah, born February 3, 1700.

Susannah married Wm. Warren, June 26, 1727. Their children were: Susannah, born 1728; William, born 1732; Thomas, 1736; Hannah, 1739; Mather, 1743; Joseph, born 1747. Mather Warren, who was born 1743, was the father of Corton Mather Warren, born 1770, who was the father of Mather Warren, born in 1800, who has a son Wm. F. Warren, D.D., LL.D., the President of Boston University, Boston, Mass.

Mather families who are not descended from Rev. Richard Mather, many of whom I have been in correspondence with, and of whom I have a large amount of family records, which I cannot find room for in this work.

Hon. Wm. Mather, M. P., who is for the second time in the House of Parliament. He is a very extensive iron manufacturer in So. Salford, Manchester, England. Wm. Mather, Esq., Meldon House, Barnard Castle, Eng.

has furnished me with records of his family line who were from Scotland, back to 1708. John Mather, Esq., from Glasgow, belonged to an ancient branch of the Mather family that went up from Sheffield, Eng., to Newton Mearns, Scotland. The heads of this family were John and William. Mr. M. sent me a large family tree of these Mathers, which shows that he has given much time to the genealogy of these families.

John Clayton Mather, bookseller, 268 Walworth Road, London, Eng., a son of John B. Mather, whose father was Thomas Mather, a naval officer of England. Edward J. Mather, Esq., the founder of the Deep Sea Mission (a grand work doing immense good), was a merchant in London. His native place was Warrington, near the home of the emigrant R. M.

Henry James Mather, a London merchant, who was a son of James M., whose ancestors came to Nottinghamshire, Eng., from Scotland, in seven-enth century. Thomas Mather of Lowton, Eng., son of Isaac, grandson of Thomas, great-grandson of Charles M. Dr. Matthew Mather of Glasgow, Scotland, whose ancestors were from Sheffield, Eng. Dr. George Mather son of above, a very noted physician in Glasgow now. Joseph Benton Mather, of Australia, was from Scotland.

Horace Mather of Liverpool, and John Mather of London, were sons of Dr. Horatio Mather, who was son of Dr. John Mather of Warrington, Eng. An ancient branch of the Mather family were seated at Meikle Earnock, Scotland, to which Wm. Mather, of Burnard Castle, belonged. Another early branch were seated at Ratcliffe, Lancaster Co., Eng. Some of the Mathers who came to America were Hon. John M., etc.

Hon. John Mather, late of La Crosse, Wis., came from Lowton, Lancaster, Eng., when a boy; died April 15, 1887. His father was William M., the son of Richard Mather, who lived near the ancient home of Rev. Richard Mather.

The daughter, S. I. M., married Mr. Falvey, the Mayor of Racine, Wis. Both are now dead, leaving two sons. Mr. Mather was very much interested during his last years in this family history. Capt. John Cotton Mather, who came from Liverpool, about the first of this century, settled in San Francisco, Cal., and lived to be about ninety-eight years old, has children now living in San Francisco.

James Mather, of Ladentown, N. Y., whose ancestors came from Castle Wine, Scotland, and settled in New York City.

John E. Mather, of Providence, R. I., came from Kincardine, Scotland. John Mather, of Alton, Ill., represents a large family of Mathers in Scotland. John A. Mather, of Titusville, Penn., and his brother, Edmund M., of Harrisburgh, Penn., came over (1857) from Manchester, Eng. Their father was James, the son of Peter M., in the Peninsular War. Thomas Mather, of firm of Green & Mather, of Lowell, Mass., manufacturers of rugs and mats, and the late Joshua M., carpet manufacturer, were from Lancaster, Eng.

There were Thomas, John, and James Mather, brothers, who came over from Ireland, 1720, and settled in Pennsylvania, were in Radnor, Pa., for several generations. Andrew Lindsley Mather, of Philadelphia, is one of that line. I have met him. He is a very fine man. Wm. Mather, who lived at Fall River, Mass., was from a family of Perthshire, Scotland. He was the youngest of fourteen children. His father was Andrew, the son of James, whose father was a clergyman.

In the Suffolk Co., I. L., records, I find the marriage of Robert Mather to Mary Smith, September 25, 1729; do not know his line.

James W. Mather, dry goods broker in New York City, and Thomas W. Mather, a merchant in California, are sons of Rev. Wm. Mather, late clergyman of Stanley, Scotland.

There were John and George Mather, of Indianapolis; also John, James, and William E., of Chicago, Ill., who were from Scotland. David Mather, a prominent business man of La Grange, Ind., was the grandson of Alex. M., who came from near Edinburgh, Scotland, to Province of New Brunswick in 1819.

Andrew Mather, who was born in 1680, in Jedburgh, Scotland, who married Isabella Davidson, had several children: Thomas, who was born in 1731, at Webbs, Northumberland Co., Eng., and married Jeannie Davidson; John, George, Mary, and William. Mary married Gavin Scott, the grandparent of Daniel O. Scott, Esq., of Newark, N. J. Thomas came to Boston, Mass., in 1798, with his sister Mary, and his two sons, George and Andrew. Thomas died at Elizabeth, N. J., 1815. His son George, born 1786, was married in New York, in 1819, to Sarah McDonald. He died in New York, 1861, leaving a son, George, who died unmarried, and a daughter, Sarah, who married Ralph N. Perlee, who have Mary, Louise, and Clarence Mather Perlee. George Mather was married a second time, in 1824, to Mary Van Derenter in New York, and have the following children: Andrew, James V. D., Samuel Talmadge, DeWitt Clinton (of Bound Brook, N. J.), Thomas D., who married Sarah B. L. Smith, a descendant of Rev. Richard Mather of New England, in line of Samuel Mather, M.D., of Lyme; Jeannie, Mary, Louise, John, Georgeana, and William. The George Mather & Sons, extensive ink manufacturers, in New York, are of this branch. James V. D. Mather, a grandson of George, at the U. S. Navy Yard, Mare Island, California, is of this branch, which came over in 1798.

There was a James Mather, who came to New Orleans, in 1775, from Northumberland Co., Eng., many of whose descendants are settled now in New Orleans, and in the Gulf States, and have been families of prominence there. I had an interesting correspondence with different members of the families, some years since.

Joseph Mather came from Bolton, Eng., as early as 1682, and settled in Pennsylvania. I have had a great deal of data sent to me by Charles Mather, Esq., of Jenkintown, Pa., and Charles E. Mather, firm of Mather & Co., insurance agents, in Philadelphia. These gentlemen are enterprising men, and belong to a large branch of the Mather family, who are well known throughout the State of Pennsylvania, as well as other portions of our country. I am under personal obligation to C. E. M., for favors received on a visit to Philadelphia, and at his home in Bryn Mawr, where his family extended to me their hospitality.

Alexander Mather came from Scotland to America, about the middle of the last century, and settled on Long Island, where are now many descendants. William Henry Mather, Esq., of Hoboken, belongs to this line; also John R. Mather, the ship builder, at Port Jefferson, L. I. I have been entertained very cordially by the family of William H. Mather of Hoboken.

Charles E. Mather, of the firm of Mather Brothers, Springdale, Iowa, and William Mather of Rupert, also William Mather of Rohrsburgh, Pa., are of Welsh origin. They are of the same family as Henry, Jesse, Samuel, and John Mather, of Philadelphia. The emigrant of this family came over before the Revolutionary War.

The Mather name is very numerous in some parts of England and Scotland to-day. In July, 1887, I found in the Liverpool, Manchester, and Bolton directories, about one hundred Mathers. In London, and Newcastle-upon-Tyne, in Northumberland, in Edinburgh, and in Glasgow, I also found very many of the name. At an earlier time they have been numerous in several sections of England and Scotland.

Samuel Mather, the son of Rev. Dr. Samuel Mather, of Boston, in a letter written to his father from London, Eng., September 23, 1783, says: "I dined a few days ago in the city with a namesake, who is an eminent merchant, but not in any way related to our family. He was born in Northumberland, and acquaints me that our name is very common in that country, and that in one very large town there are not above eight or ten persons of any other name. I am in hopes, if I should be obliged to go into the mercantile way, that this gentleman may be of great service to me; but how Providence will dispose of me it is impossible at this time to say."

I have the following record:

From the register of St. Peters, Cornhill, London: "Roland Mather married April 14, 1635, Elizabeth Gibson, per license, London." Mr. R. Mather was of St. Albans, Woodstreet, London. This marriage occurred but two days before our Rev. Richard Mather started from Warrington, en route for America. Roland Mather is an uncommon name in America, but there is one of that name in Hartford, seventh generation from Rev. Richard Mather.

In July 14, 1670, there was a David Mather, in Brignier, Scotland, an elder in the church, who was banished and imprisoned for his religious opinions.

In 1552-3, February 3d, there was an Alexander Mather, alderman of Norwich, Eng., and later, member of Parliament.

In the parish records of St. Mary's Church in Leigh (which is only about two miles from Lowton), prepared by Rev. J. H. Standing of that church, of near 600 pages, we find the names of all persons christened, married, and buried, from the year 1558 to 1625, in that parish. In those records are the names of 131 Mathers christened, 43 married, and 78 burials. We find ten John Mathers christened, four married, six burials; we find four Thomas Mathers christened, three burials; we find eight Richard Mathers christened, three married, four burials. As these last are in the order of the ancestral line of Rev. Richard Mather, it will be very difficult to run the line earlier with the lack of data at hand. In the year 1610 there was a John Mather, warden of St. Mary's, probably not the grandfather of Richard Mather, as he doubtless attended church in Winwick parish. I am not so fortunate as to own any but the Leigh records. I cannot tell much about early data of the Winwick parish.

The first church at Dorchester, Mass., where Rev. Richard Mather was pastor, stood on the corner of Pleasant and Cottage Streets; after his death the church edifice was built at some little distance from there, on Meeting House Hill, in 1676. The next church building was raised, on the 29th and 30th of June, 1743, at which time Ephraim Wales, son of Zorijah and Sarah Wales, a young man 19 or 20, fell from the cross beams and was killed. I think there has been erected another structure between that and the present one, which stands at the same place. Rev. Mr. Elliot is the present pastor. The Mather school, named from Rev. Richard Mather, stands on Meeting House Hill, beside the church. The principal is Mr. Southworth, who has the assistance of a fine corps of teachers. This school ranks among the highest in Boston. Dorchester is now a part of Boston.

Upham's Corner, ancient burial ground, is an interesting spot; a monument is erected there beside the remains of the emigrant, Rev. Richard Mather, and near by another monument is to Major-General Humphrey Atherton, who died in 1661, and who, on the maternal side, is the ancestor of all of the New England Mathers that settled in Connecticut. There are many places of interest for a Mather to see in Boston, among them Copp's Hill, the place where so many of the Mathers were buried for more than a century. The "Tomb of the Mathers" is a spot visited by many from other lands who come to New England. Miss Parker was the last buried here, only a few years since. The Croekers and Parkers were descendants of Cotton Mather, and many of them are placed in this vault. The great fame of Increase, Cotton, and Samuel Mather, who were all buried here, has made the tomb quite noted. The head of North Square is where four of the Mathers preached. That locality is now used for stores and dwellings. The Massachusetts Historical Society have a fine old painting of Rev. Dr. Increase Mather, painted in 1688. I have a copy of it. You can also see there the famous work in manuscript, "Biblia Americana," which took Cotton Mather over thirty years to complete. It is in three separate parts, and is in fine condition. The "Prince Collection" in Boston Public Library contain a very large number of the published works of the Mathers, I think rather more than the Massachusetts Historical Society or New England Historical and Genealogical Society. I am, however, unable to tell which have the largest number. Rev. Dr. Increase Mather lived at one time on North Street, near Clark, a house which afterward became a seamen's boarding-house. He lived at another time near the head of State Street, in the house that had belonged to his father-in-law, Rev. John Cotton, near where Jew's Buildings are now located.

Rev. Dr. Cotton Mather lived in Hanover Street, in a house built by Capt. Turrell, nearly opposite Cockrell Church, afterwards occupied by Master Harris of North Grammar School. His later residence was 298-300 Hanover Street.

Rev. Dr. Samuel Mather lived on the east side of Moon Street, about midway from Sun Court to Fleet Street, on the corner of what was formerly known as Moon Court.

The Antiquarian Hall at Worcester contains a rare collection of paintings of the Mathers, one of Richard, one of Increase (his son), one of Cotton (son of Increase), one of Samuel (son of Increase) and one of Samuel (son of Cotton). Here we find a great number also of Mather publications; also the manuscripts of the Mathers. And last, though not least in interest, is the willow chair which Rev. Richard Mather sat in when a child, and his descendants for many generations in the line of his son Increase.

Those who visit the mother country will not fail to visit the old church at the Dingle, Toxteth Park, Liverpool. By going there some Sunday morning, you may attend service and sit in the old Mather pew (which is square in form), on the rail of which you will find in metal letters and figures "D 1650 M." for Daniel Mather who sat in pew, 1650. From there you will wish to go to Lowton, about twenty miles distant, and see the very old house of R. Mather, with "R. M." on gable end; thence to Winwick, and visit the ancient Winwick parish church and cemetery close by, which is the old grammar school which Richard Mather attended and of which he became the master. About two miles from Winwick is Warrington, where Richard started on his journey for Bristol to sail for America, in 1685.

If you go to London you will want to go to Bunhill Fields Cemetery, where Rev. Nathaniel Mather, the son of Rev. Richard Mather, is buried. In Dublin look up the old church of St. Nicolas, where Rev. Samuel, another son of Rev. Richard, is buried. At Witney, in Oxfordshire, Rev. Samuel Mather, brother of Cotton, is buried in the St. Mary's church yard. At Oxford notice Brasenose College, of which Richard was a member.

In the New England Genealogical and Historical Records, July, 1878. "The question was asked what evidence is there as to the statement of the late Samuel G. Drake, Esq., that the father of Thomas Mather, ancestor of the Mathers of New England, was John." We find in a later issue, relative to the above, this: "Among some manuscripts of Mrs. Hannah Mather Crocker, (wife of Josiah Crocker and youngest daughter of Rev. Samuel Mather), author of "Observations on the Rights of Woman," formerly belonging to the late J. Wingate Thornton, Esq., and recently presented by his heirs to the New England Historic Society, the following statement, in Mrs. Crocker's handwriting: "Mr. Richard Mather was born in Lancaster, in a small village called Lowton, in the year 1596. The family can be traced to John, Thomas being his son, and Richard was the son of Thomas. (Richard, when a little child, sat in the little chair that is in the antiquarian rooms at Worcester, Mass.) He was married in 1624; his children that were born in Europe sat in this chair before they came to this country.—Samuel, Timothy, Nathaniel, and Joseph. The latter sat in it when he brought the chair to America. Eleazar and Increase were born in America. They both sat in the same chair. The chair descended to Increase, and all his children sat in the same chair. It came in line to Cotton Mather; his children all sat in the same. It descended to his son Samuel, and his children sat in the same chair. His youngest daughter was the only one of his children that had a family, and she has had ten children and several grandchildren who sat in this chair. As the regular line of Mathers has run out, she wished the chair to be deposited in the antiquarian rooms with the venerable shades, that those who come after her may look to the rock from whence they were hewn, and find an ancient seat to rest any chip of the old block in. As she flatters herself, there may in some future day a sprig spring from the Root of Jesse and the tribe of Levi may return to their rest after she is at rest in another world."

If Mrs. Crocker were alive to-day she might possibly find that "the regular line of Mathers had run out" not strictly true, for it is a fact that we are a mighty host, stretching across this continent from ocean to ocean and from north to south, and the descendants of Rev. Richard Mather may truly be found in great numbers in many sections of our land.

COATS OF ARMS AND CRESTS OF THE MATHER FAMILY.

1. The following is the description of the arms that was in the family of the early Mathers of Boston, and which has recently come into my hands:

"Ermine on a fesse wavy Azure, three lions rampant Or. Crest a lion sedant Or."

This coat of arms is found in MS.: "Promptuarium Armorum," and is there recorded as the arms of Wm. Mather of Salop, 1602.

Motto. "Sunt Fortia Pectora Nobis."

This motto is also used, "Virtus Vera Nobilitas Est."

Ermine (the black figures like those seen on ermine robes of Judges in England) indicates that the head of the family at some time held the office of a Judge. The Lion is used in arms to denote courage, strength, and magnanimity. The Fesse indicates the belt of a Knight. In heraldic language, Or means gold and is an emblem of great worth. Azure means blue.

2. Thomas Mather, Esq., of Glyn Abbot, County of Flint, formerly of Liverpool. Arms dated Feb. 18, 1847

"Quarterly Argent and Gules, four scythes counterchanged."

Crest, "A demi husbandman habited quarterly, Argent and Gules, capped the same, face and hands ppr., holding in the dexter hand a horn Or, in the sinister a scythe ppr., motto (in old English) Mowe Warillie.

3. Arms to Sir Christopher Mather of Secroft, Yorkshire, Feb. 11, 1575:
"Ermine. A Fesse embattled Gu."

4. Arms of another branch of the Mather family in England:

Motto, "Deus Providet."

A Mather crest of Scotland: "A Rock Sable."

ANCIENT BIBLES.

It is said that the Rev. W. A. Des Brisay has in his possession a Bible over 295 years old. It contains the Old Testament in Hebrew, interlined with Latin, the Apocrypha and the New Testament in Greek, both, also, with Latin interlineations. It has double marginal notes throughout. It was published at the celebrated office of Christopher Plantin, in 1584, and brought to Boston from Antwerp, and was in the library of Rev. Richard Mather of Dorchester Mass., in 1639. It was owned by Increase Mather, D.D., in Boston, in 1669. He used it as a text-book when he was the President of Harvard College. His initials, I. M., are stamped on the cover. It was owned, also, by Rev. Dr. Cotton Mather, of Boston, and later by Rev. Dr. Mather Byles, of Christ Church, Boston. From him it descended to his great-grandson, the present owner. In the front of the Bible is an engraving of Rev. Richard Mather, engraved in Boston, in 1639, an engraving of Increase Mather, and under it: Crescentius Mathews, Ætatis Sua 85, 1724. And an engraving of Rev. Dr. Mather Byles, A. M., et V. D. M., and under it: "Ecclesia apud Bostonum Nov. Anglorum Pastor P. Pellam ad virum prius and fecit." These portraits represent them in their gowns, round caps, coats, bands, and perukes.

A family Bible of Rev. Dr. Increase Mather, nearly as old, has been presented to the Massachusetts Historical Society. It is a copy of the Geneva Bible, known as the "Breaches" Bible, printed in 1599, and was given by the Rev. John Cotton to his daughter, Mrs. Mather, and contains, besides other memoranda, in the hand of Increase Mather, his record of his marriage, and of the births and baptisms of his children. The Bible afterward descended to the first and second Dr. Mather Byles, whose descendant, Miss Sarah Louise Byles, presented it to the society. The thanks of the society were voted to Miss Byles for her very valuable and acceptable gift.

The Bible that is now in Memorial Hall, in Hartford, is, also, a very old one, and belonged to Cotton Mather, and later to the family of Rev. Azariah Mather, of Saybrook, Conn. Many valuable autographs and other data were presented by Mr. Hayes of Philadelphia.

Miss Jane Mather, of New Castle, Eng., niece of Rev. John and William Mather, presented me, in 1887, with an ancient Bible, printed in London, in 1580.

THE ANCIENT WINWICK PARISH CHURCH.

This church was founded by Robert Poicton, the Norman Grantee of this portion of Lancashire, to the priory of Saint Oswald, a house of canons, in the time of William Rufus, or King Henry I, in the first year of his reign.

The same writer says: "Winwick was undoubtedly an early Lancashire parish and the site of a very ancient Saxon village."

Richard Mather passed this church daily on his way from his home to the grammar school, which stood within a few rods of this church. This was in all probability the church where Thomas and Margaret Mather, the parents of Richard, attended. The late Hon. John Mather, a native of Lowton, who became a rich man in La Crosse, Wis., and died recently, informed me that his parents were buried in this church yard, also a great many Mathers, and he gave me a great deal of information about the Mather families in Lowton. In July, 1887, I saw many stones erected to the Mathers in this church yard. Hon. John Mather's grandfather was named Richard Mather. John Mather has two grandsons in Racine, Wisconsin, — John and Thomas Falvey.

From Winwick, its History and Antiquities, by William Beaumont.

The first rector of the Winwick Church, whose name is mentioned, was Hugh Clericus De Wynnevhik, in 1192, and the succeeding rectors down to 1856, when Frank George Hopwood, A.M., the present worthy rector, was presented by Edward Geoffrey, Earl of Derby, after the death of James John Hornby.

In speaking of the church it says:

"The greatest work connected with the fabric of Winwick Church was Mr. Hornby's taking down the ancient chancel, which, after 500 years, had begun to show signs of age, and rebuilding it upon an improved and far more beautiful plan, under the directions of the well-known architect Puzin, at an expense of more than £6,000, or $30,000, which was completed in 1848."

In the "Antiquities" we find the name of a John Mather but as to his connection with the New England Mathers I cannot state. The late Hon. John Mather, who was born in Lowton in 1811, and settled in La Crosse, Wis., U. S. A., speaks of very many Mathers who are buried in this Winwick churchyard, among them his father William and uncle John M. They were the sons of a Richard Mather. Hon. John Mather gave the names of several branches of the Mathers in Lowton, which his father told him were related.

The famous Winwick Broad Oak, an engraving of which I have in the work, was located near the church and grammar school, of which Richard Mather was its fourth master (succeeding William Horrocker). It was about 100 years old when Richard Mather became master of the school, and stood until 1850. On August 11, 1811, a public dinner was given under this Broad Oak to celebrate the victory of the English squadron over the combined fleets of France and Italy off the Island of Lissa. At this date the Broad Oak was over 300 years old.

The Winwick Grammar School, of which Richard Mather was a pupil, and later the master (1611), was, about the year 1533, founded as a free school of Winwick by Gowther Legh who endowed it with a perpetual yearly rent of ten pounds for the maintenance of such school forever. The names of the masters of this school are on record down to the year 1871, when Frederic Walters and John Edmund Gillon were appointed.

PSALM CXXII.

6. I JOYD in them that said to me,
let's at the Lord's house meet,
2 Oh, thou Jerusalem, within thy gates shall stand our feet, 3 Jerusalem is builded up into a City frame
In't self together uniform,
4 completed is the same,
Whether the tribes, the tribes of Jud,
to Israel's witness go;
That they unto Jehovah's name their thankfulness may show,
5 Because thrones of judgment there established remain:
The thrones that do unto the house of David appertain, 6 Pray for Jerusalem her peace:
they prosper that love thee,
7 Peace in thy walls, thy Palaces in them let safety be,
8 Both from my brethren and my friends
peace be to thee say I,
9 Ile for our God Jehovah's house seek thy prosperity."

The above psalm was sung at the Hayden Reunion at Windsor, Conn.
September 2, 1885.

Among the vast number of writings which have given accounts of Rev. Richard Mather, perhaps none will be of greater interest than that which was published by the Dorchester Antiquarian Society in 1850, which is entitled "Journal and Life of Richard Mather, 1596-1669." I will use some of the early part of his journey across the ocean, together with the four days before his arrival in Boston, on the 17th day of August, 1635.

The committee of the Dorchester Society were composed of James M. Robbins, Ebenezer Clapp, and Ebenezer Holden. The manuscripts in the Rev. Richard Mather's own hand, were then 215 years old and in a good state of preservation.

RICHARD MATHER'S JOURNAL IN PART.

"Praise the Lord oh my soule, and all that is within mee, prayse his holy name! Praise the Lord oh my soule, and forget not all his benefits; yea, let all that is within mee praise his holy name, and let every thing that hath breath praise the name of the Lord for ever and ever. Who gave unto us, his poore servants, such a safe and comfortable voyage to New England, the particular passages whereof were as followeth."

"We came from Warrington on Thursday, April 16, and came 1635. to Bristol, on the Thursday following, viz. April 23, and had a very April 16. health full, safe, and prosperous Journey all y^e way, blessed bee the name of our God for the same, taking but easy journeys because of the children and foote men, dispatching 119 or 120 miles in seven dayes.

"Coming to Bristol we found divers of the company come before us; but some came not till after us; howbeit the last was come by the first of May. Nevertheless we went not aboard y^e ship untill Saturday the 23^d of May; so that the time of our staying in Bristol was a month and two dayes, during all wch time wee found friendship and curtesy at the hand of divers godly christians in Bristol, yet our stay was greivous unto us, when wee considered how most of this time the windeles were easterly and served directly for us; But our ship was not ready; so ill did our owners deale with us.

"Going aboard y^e ship in King roade the 23^d of May wee found
May 23. things very unready, and all on heaves, many goodes being not stowed, but lying on disordered heaves here and there in the ship. This day there came aboard the ship 20 of the seamen, and viewed a list of all our names, ministered the oath of allegiance to all at full age, viewed our certificates from the ministers in the parishes from whence we came, approved well thereof, and gave us tickets, that is, Licenses under their hands and seales, to passe the seas, and cleared the ship, and so departed. When wee came to King Roade (which is a spacious harbor of 5 or 6 miles broad, and 4 or 5 miles distant from Bristol) wee found neere our ship another ship of Bristol called the Diligence, bound for New-found-land, riding at ancre

“ The 24th being the Lord’s day, the wind was strong in the morning, and y^e ship daunced; and many of of Women and some children were not well; but sea sick, and mazy or light in their heades, and could scarce stand or go without falling, unless they tooke hold of some thing to uphold them. This day Mr. Maud was exercised in the forenoon, and I in the afternoone. The wind still easterly. 1692023

“ The 25th, wee that were passengers would faine have had ancre weighed, and sayle set, y^e wee might have bene gone. But y^e marriners would insist that they could not stirre till y^e goods were stowed and the hatches or deck above cleared, &c., so wee were forced to sit still, and fall in heald with the goods; wch stay was a greater grieffe unto us, because the Diligence, y^e lay within 2 or 3 stons cast of us did this morning go out in of sight.

“ The Tuesday morning the wind being easterly and the deecke somewhat cleared, the marriners began to address themselves for going. But about nine of the clocke, when they had taken up one of their aneres, and were in a manner ready to set forward, the wind turned directly agt us, into the west, so y^e wee were forced to cast ancre againe, and sit still. This evening the Diligence, y^e went out y^e day before, came in againe, and cast ancre about the place where shee lay before; and found us riding at ancre where shee left us; and another ship also bound for New England came unto us, which other ship was called the Angel Gabriel.

“ On Wednesday the wind continuing still at y^e west we having sent some of of men ashoar to fetch more bread and victuals and more water for the cattell; our Master Captayne Taylor went aboard the Angel Gabriel; Mr. Maud, Nathaniel Wales, Barnabus Fower, Thomas Armitage and my selfe accompanying him. When wee came there wee found divers passengers, and among them some loving and godly Christians that were glad to see us there. And some after wee were come aboard there, there came three or four more boates with more passengers, and one wherein came Sir Ferdinando Gorze, who came to see the ship and the people. When hee was come hee enquired whether there were any people there y^e went to Massachusetts Bay, whereupon Mr. Maud and Barnabus Fower were sent for to come before him; who being come he asked Mr. Maud, of his country, occupation or calling in life, &c. and professed his good will to the people there in y^e bay, and promised that if hee ever came there, hee would be a true friend unto them.”

As the Journal covers about thirty pages will omit the most of the remainder excepting just before his arrival in Boston.

“ But yet y^e Lord hath not done with us, nor yet had let us see Aug. 15. all his power, and goodnesse which he would have us take knowledge of; and therefore on Saturday morning about breake of day, y^r Lord sent forth a most terrible storme of raine and easterly wind, whereby wee were in as much danger as I thinke ever people were; for wee lost in y^t morning three great aneres & cables; of weh cables, one having cost 50*l* never had bene in any water before, two were broken by y^e violence of y^e waves and y^e third cut by y^e seamen in extremity and distress, to save y^e ship and their & o^r lives, and w^h o^f cables and aneres were all lost, wee had no outward meanes of deliverance but by loosing sayle, if so bee wee might get to y^e sea from amongst y^e Islands & rockes where wee anered; but y^r Lord let us see y^t o^f sayles could not save us neither, no more y^t o^f cables & aneres; for by y^e force of y^e wind & raine y^e sayles were rent in sunder & split in pieces, as if they had bene but rotten ragges, so y^t o^f y^e fore sayle and sprissle sayle there was scarce left so much as an hand breadth, y^t was not rent in pieces, and blown away into ye sea. So that at y^e time all hope y^t wee should be saved in regard to any outward appearance was utterly taken away, and y^e rather because wee seemed to drive with full force of wind and rayne directly upon a mighty rocke standing out in sight above y^e water, so y^t wee did but continually wayte, when wee should heave and feele y^e dolefull rushing and crushing of y^e ship upon y^e rocke. In y^e extremity and appearance of death, as distresse distraction would suffer us wee cryed unto y^r Lord, and he was pleased to have compassion and pity upon us; for by his overruling providence & his owne immediate good hand, he guided y^e ship past y^e rocke, asswaged y^e violence of y^e sea, and y^e wind and raine & gave us a little respite to fit y^e ship with other sayles, and sent us a fresh gale of wind at _____ by weh wee went on y^t day in o^r course south west & by west towards Cape Anne. It was a day much to bee remembered, because on y^t day y^r Lord granted us as wonderfull a deliverance as I thinke ever people had, out o^f as apparent danger as I thinke ever people felt. I am sure o^f seamen confessed they never knew y^e like. The Lord so imprint y^e memory of it on o^r hearts, y^t wee may bee y^e better for it, & bee more carefull to please him and to walke uprightly before him as long as wee live; and I hope wee shall not forget y^e passages of y^t morning untill o^r dying day.

In y^e storm, one Mr. Willet of New Plimouth, and other 3 men with him, having bene turned out of all y^e havings at Penobscot, about a four-night before, and coming along with us in o^r ship from Richmonds Head, with his boate and goods in it made fast at y^e sterne o^f o^r ship, lost his boate with all that was therein, the violence of y^e waves breaking y^e boate in pieces, and sinking y^e bottome of it into y^e bottome of y^e sea, and Richard Becon lending his helpe to y^e seamen at y^e haling of a cable caught about his arme, whereby his arme was crushed in pieces, and his right-hand pulled away, and himselfe brought into dolefull and grievous paine and misery. But in all y^e grievous storme my feare was y^e lesse, when I considered y^e cleareness of my calling from God this way, and in some measure y^e Lords holy name be blessed for it) he gave us hearts contented and willing y^t hee should do with us and ours what he pleased, and what might be most for y^r glory of his name, & in y^t we rested of selves.

But when newes was brought unto us into y^r gun roome y^t y^r danger was past, oh how of hearts did then relent and melt within us! And how we burst into teares of joy amongst o^r selves, in love unto o^r gracious God, and admiration of his kindeesse in granting to his poore servants such an extraordinary and miraculous deliverance. His holy name be blessed forever.

This day wee went on towards Cape Anne, as y^r wind would Aug. 16. suffer & our poore sayles further, and came within sight thereof y^e other morning; which Sabbath being y^e 13 wee kept on ship-board, was a marveyolous pleasant-day, for a fresh gale of wind & cleare sunshine weather. This day wee went directly before y^e wind, and had delight all along y^e coast as wee went, in viewing Cape Anne, y^e bay of Saugust, y^e bay of Salem, Marvillhead, Pullin point, and other places; and came to ancre at low tide in y^e at Nantascot, in a most pleasant harbor, like to such I had never scene, amongst a great many of Harbors on every side. I was exercised on ship-board both ends of y^e day. After y^e evenings exercise, when it was flowing tide againe, wee set sayle, and came y^e night to ancre againe before Boston and so rested y^e night with glad & thankfull hearts y^e God had put an end to o^r long journey, being 1000 leagues y^t is 3000 miles English over one of y^e greatest seas in y^e world. Now y^e o^r journey by y^e goodnesse of o^r God, was very prosperous unto us every manner of way. First of all it was very safe and healthfull to us; for tho; wee were in y^e ship 100 passengers, besides 23 seamen, & 23 cowes and heifers, 3 sucking calves & eight mares, yet not one of all these dyed by y^e way, neither person nor cattel, but came all alive to land, and many of the cattel in better liking y^e when wee first entered y^e ship; and most of y^e passengers in as good health as ever and none better y^e myne owne family, and my weake wife & little Joseph as well as any other. Fevers, calentures, small poxkes, & such diseases as have afflicted other passengers y^e Lord kept from among us, and put upon us no griefe in o^r bodies, but a litle sea-sicknesse in y^e beginning of y^e voyage; saving y^e 2 or 3 seamen had y^e flux, and Rich. Beeson lost his right hand in y^e last storme, and one woman and a litle child of hers, towards the end of the journey, had y^e scurvey, the means of which infirmity in her wee all conceyved to bee y^e want of walking and stirring of her body upon y^e deeke; her manner being to sit much between y^e decks upon her bed, and a special means of y^e healthfulnessse of y^e passengers by y^e blessing of God wee all conceyved to bee much walking in y^e open ayre, and y^e comfortable variety of o^r food; for seeing wee were not tied to y^e ships diet, but did victuall o^r selves, we had no want of good and wholesome beere & bread; and as o^r hand-stomachs grew weary of ship diet, of salt fish & salt beefe and y^e like, wee had liberty to change for other food which might sort better with o^r healthes and stomaches;

and therefore sometimes wee used bacon & buttered pease, sometimes buttered bag-pudding made with curraynes and raisins, and sometimes drinke pottage of beere and Oat Meale, and sometimes water pottage well buttered.

" And tho' we had two stormes by y^e way, y^e one upon Munday y^e 3^o of August, y^e other on Saturday y^e 15th of y^e same, yet o^r gracious God (blessed and forever blessed be his name) did save us all alive in y^e both, & speedily assuaged y^e againe. Indeed y^e latter of y^e was very terrible and grievous, insomuch y^e w^a wee came to land wee found many mighty trees rent in pieces in y^e midst of y^e bole, and others turned up by y^e rootes by y^e fierenesse thereof: and a barke going from y^e bay to Marvil head, with planters & seamen therein to y^e number of about 25, was cast away in y^e storme, and all y^e people therein perished, except one man & his wife, that were spared to report y^e newes. And y^e Angel Gabriel being y^e at ancre at Pennaciquid, was burst in pieces and cast away in y^e storme, and most of y^e cattell and other goodes, with one seaman & 3 or 4 passengers did also perish therein, besides two of y^e passengers y^e dyed by y^e way: y^e rest having y^e lives given y^e for a prey. But y^e James & wee y^e were therein, with o^r cattell & goods, were all preserved alive. The Lord's name be blessed for ever.

" 2^y. It was very delightfull while wee tooke pleasure & instruction in beholding y^e workes & wonders of y^e Almighty in y^e deepe: y^e sea sometimes being rough with mighty mountaynes and deepe valleys, some times againe plaine & smooth like a levell meadow, and sometimes painted with variety of yellow weedes: besides it was a pleasant thing to behold y^e variety of fowles & mighty fishes swimming and living in y^e waters.

" 3^y. It was comfortable to us, by meanes of y^e fellowship of divers godly christians in y^e ship & by meanes of o^r constant serving of God morning & evening every day, y^e daily duties being performed one day by Mr. Maud, another by my selfe, and y^e Sabbath exercises divided (for y^e most part) equally betwixt us two.

" True it is o^r journey was some what long: for tho' from Munday y^e 22nd of June, wee lost sight of our ould English coast, untill Saturday y^e 8th of August w^a wee made land againe at Menhiggin, it was but six weekes & 5 dayes, yet from o^r first entering y^e ship in King roade, on Saturday y^e 23 of May, till o^r landing at Boston in N. E. on Munday y^e 17th of August, it was 12 weekes & 2 dayes. For wee lay at ancre in King roade 11 days before wee even set sayle, & 3 dayes at Lundy, & 12 dayes at Milford, and spent 3 dayes in tacking betwene King Roade & Lundy, one day between Lundy & Milford, and 8 dayes betwene Menhiggin & Boston.

" Nevertheless o^r God preserved us all y^e while, and wee had opportunity by these often delays to take in more haye, oates & frech water, and arrived in a good condition

" Agayne let our gracious God be blessed forever. Amen."

“ To the Church and Inhabitants of Dorchester in N. E.

“ Grace unto you from God by Jesus Christ.

“ Beloved in the Lord Jesus

“ You have here presented to your view, and for your Imitation in the Lord, the Life of him that was to many of you a Spiritual (as to me a natural) Father: inasmuch as the greatest part of his time in the Ministry he was a Laborer in the Lords Harvest amongst you; also with you did he finish his course. There is therefore special reason why what is here done should be directed to yourselves. —

“ The composer of this ensuing Relation is not willing that his Name should be published. But it is done by one who hath had the viewing of my Fathers Manuscripts; from whence, as well as from personal and intimate acquaintance of many years continuance, and other wayes, he hath been truly furnished with the knowledge of what is here reported. And indeed the greatest part of the Story is known unto sundry amongst yourselves.

“ What remaineth then, Brethren and Beloved in the Lord, but that we should be mind full of what is by the Lord required, when the Scripture saith, Remember them that have taught and not onely them that do teach the Word of God, whose faith follow, considering the end of their conversation. What that Doctrine of Faith is which your blessed Teacher did from the Lord instruct you in, I need not say; onely Remember it. Remember his Farewell Exhortation, which is now in many of your Houses, and Oh that it were in all your Hearts. And as for his conversation, your selves know that God made him Exemplarily, Faith full, Zealous, Patient, Humble, Holy: Follow him as he followed Christ.

THE LIFE AND DEATH OF RICHARD MATHER.

“ The writing and Reading of the Lives of Worthy Ones, hath been by some accounted amongst the most profitable workes of men under the Sun. The Labours of some Learned amongst the Gentiles this way have not been altogether without benefit. But especially the Faithful Description of the lives of those who have been Eminent Teachers in the Church, hath been to the great advantage of after ages. If the lives of Brightman, Parker, Ames, Burroughs, Hooker, and others were published it might be of great advantage to the world. Rev. Richard Mather commenced the writing of his own life up to his 39th year. It commences as follows:

“ There is in the Parish of Winwick in the county of Lancaster, a small country Town or Village called Lowton; in which village Richard Mather was born Anno 1596. His Parents Thomas and Margurite Mather were of Ancient Families in Lowton at aforesaid, but by reason of some unhappy Mortgages they were reduced into a low condition as to the world. Nevertheless, God so disposed their hearts, that they were willing to educate this their son in good Learning; Concerning which he after that the Lord was pleased to bestow not only Learning but Grace upon him hath sometimes expressed himself, saying, By what principles and motives my Parents were chiefly induced to keep me at school, I have not to say nor do I certainly know. But this I must needs say, that this was the singular good Providence of God towards me, who hath the hearts of all men in his hand; thus to incline the hearts of my Parents; for in this thing the Lord of Heaven shewed me such favour as had not been shewed to many of my Predecessors and Contemporaries in that place.

Now his Parents being strongly bent in spirit to have their Son a scholar, they sent him to Winwick School, which was about four miles distant from his Father's house. In the Winter season they boarded him at Winwick; but such was his desire after knowledge that in the summer he travelled every day thither.

Whilst he was thus at School he met with no small discouragement, for that the Schoolmaster under whom he was, although he had an excellent faculty for teaching in Grammar-Learning, and many were trained up by him, so as to be sent to Oxford and Cambridge, for Instruction in higher studies; yet was he severe and partial in his discipline. Junius was almost quite discouraged from his Studies, when being a school boy his Master would beat him eight times in a day whether in fault or in no fault. The like Magisterial harshness caused him of whom we write, to earnestly desire that his Father would take him from School, and dispose of him to some other College. Himself afterwards, when he had waded through these difficulties, would say, God intended better for me, than I would have chosen for myself; and therefore my Father, though in other things indulgent enough, yet in this would never condescend to my request, but by putting me in hope that by his speaking to the Master, things would be amended, would still over rule me to go on in my studies; and good it was for me to be over ruled by him, and his discretion, rather than to be left to my own affection and desires. But Oh that all School masters would learn Wisdom, Moderation and Equity towards their scholars, and seek rather to win the hearts of children by righteous, loving, and courteous usage, than to alienate their minds by partiality and undue severity, which had been my utter undoing, had not the good Providence of God, and the Wisdom and Authority of my Father prevented.

After that he had spent sundry years in this School some Popish Merchants coming out of Wales to Warrington, which is two miles from Winwick, were inquisitive whether there were not any pregnant Wits in that School whom they might procure for apprentices. Presently Richard Mather was mentioned to them as a pregnant Youth: Whereupon application was made accordingly to his Father, who was inclinable to accept of this Motion, because now his Estate was so decayed, that he almost despaired of bringing up his Son as he had intended.

“ But here the Finger of Divine Providence was observable: for when his Father was ready that to part with his Son, and his Child to go, the Lord rais'd up the heart of his Master, to be importunate with his Father still to keep him at School, professing that it was great pity, that a Wit so prone to Learning should be taken from it, (as indeed it was,) or that he should be undone by Popish Education. The Perswasions of the Master so farre prevailed as that his Scholar was continu'd under him, until the fiftieth year of his Age. It was a mercy to him, that whilst he was yet in his Minority, he enjoy'd the publick Ministry of one Mr. Palin, then Preacher at Lenging; of whom he would say, that the remembrance of that man was Comfortable and Honourable in his thoughts, even in his old Age, though his knowledge of him was in his Childhood. He then observed such a plain, powerfull and piercing efficacy in Mr. Palins Ministry, as was not to be seen in the common sort of Preachers in those dayes, by means whereof some Illumination, though not a thorough Conversion, was wrought in him. Having been thus long kept at School, he was call'd to leave his Fathers Family. The occasion whereof was this. At a place call'd Toxteth Park near Laverpool (now a part of L) there dwelt a wise and Religious People, who being desirous of the good of themselves and their Posterity, intended to erect a School amongst them, for the Education of their Children. It came into their minds to send unto the School master of Winwick to enquire whether he had any of his Scholars, whom he would recommend unto them for such a service: who having received their desires, forthwith communicated the same to this his Scholar, and to his Father, to see if the motion would stand with their acceptance. He was desirous rather to have gone to the University; but his Father closed with the Offer: whence it was in fine mutually embraced, so that he removed from his Fathers house to Toxteth (Anno 1611) there to teach School.

“ Nor is it any disparagement to his Worth that he was once a School master: for very eminent Divines have been so, as of our own Nation, Mr. Hierou, Mr. Whitaker, Mr. Vines, not to mention others, but rather an Eminency: the like seldom known, that one should be found fit to be a School master at fifteen years of Age: Yet the Lord help'd him in these his young years to carry it with such Wisdom, and Love and Gravity amongst his Scholars as was to admiration, so as that he was by them both loved and feared, beyond what is usual, even where there are aged Masters.”

“ In his 18th year he was convert'd whilst in the Family of Mr. Edward Aspinwall who was a Learned and Religious Gentleman (1614) by his Studies in connection with his teaching he made great proficiency, and he became a very accurate Grammarian, and was well advanced in Logic, Rhetoric and Theology. He had a desire to gain more than he could by private study, and he went to Oxford and was for some time in Brazen-Nose Collidge, hoping by converse with Learned Men, and advantage of Disputations, Lectures, &c to obtain a Treasure of knowledge. He became acquainted with the Learned Doctor Worall at Oxford, who was of great assistance to him: before he had been far in his studies in College, was besought to accept a call to become the minister of the people at Toxteth where had he been a master of the school.

"This call, after due Consideration, for weighty Reasons he accepted of. Being then returned to Toxteth, he Preached his first Sermon November 30, 1618. There was a very great concourse of people to hear him, and his Labours were highly accepted of by the judicious: Such was the vastness of his memory, as that the things which he had prepared and intended to deliver at once, contained no less than six long Sermons. The people having had some taste of his Gifts were the more importunate in their desires that he might continue amongst them, and because that could not be without Episcopal Ordination, they urged him to accept thereof, not having at that time so thoroughly looked into that part of Ceremonious Conformity as afterwards, he yielded unto the motion; and accordingly was Ordained (with many others on the same day) by Doctor Morton then Bishop of Chester, after the mode of those Times. The Ordination being over, the Bishop singled out Mr. Mather from amongst the rest, saying, I have something to say to you betwixt you and me alone. Mr. Mather was then afraid lest some Information might have been given in to the Bishop against him because of his Puritanism, thereby to prejudice him; but it happened to be otherwise: for when the Bishop had him alone, I have (saith he) an earnest Request unto you, and you must not deny me: It is that you would pray for me: for I know (saith he) the Prayers of men that fear God will avail much and you I believe are such an one. Nevertheless after that the Lord gave him to see the evil of the sin of contornity in the whole latitude of it, (for as to the substance of Conformity, even from his entrance upon the Ministry he saw the evil thereof, and was by Divine Grace kept from being stained therewith) his Conformity (although it was at the desires of his people) to accept of this Ordination from the Prelate, was no small grief of heart to him. Many years after, one of his Sons taking notice of a torn Parchment in his Fathers Study, enquired what it is: unto whom his Father replied, That he received that when he was Ordained by the Bishop; and saith he, I tore it because I took no pleasure in keeping a monument of my sin and folly in submitting to that Superstition, the very remembrance whereof is grievous to me."

"Mr. Mather married Sept. 29, 1624, Katherine daughter of Edmund Hault Esq of Bury in Lancashire and bought him a house at Much Woolton 3 miles from Toxteth. He preached every Lords day twice at Toxteth and once in a Fortnight on the Third day of the Week he kept a Lecture at the Town of Prescott, also faithful and powerful Preaching being then rare in these parts, he did frequently Preach upon the Holy dayes (as they are called) being often therunto desired by Godly Christians of other Parishes in that Country — in August 1633 Mr. Mather was silenced for Non Conformity to the Ceremonies by the Prelates, in November by means of Intercession of some Gentlemen in Lancashire and by the influence of Simon Byby (a near alliance of the Bishops) he was restored again to his Publick Ministry. — he was again silenced in 1634. Mr. M's friends again tried to have him restored but were unsuccessful. The Visitor asked how long he had been a minister? Answer was made, That he had been in the ministry fifteen years, And (said he) how often hath he worn the Surpluss? Answer was returned, that he had never worn it. What (said the Visitor, swearing as he spake in preach fifteen years and never wore a Surpluss? It had been better for him that he had gotten Seven Bastards. This was a Visitors judgment." He then retired to private life and mediated a Removal into New England — he drew up a long list of Arguments which are in print giving the weighty Reasons why he should cross over the Ocean, into a Land which was not Sown in order to show to Posterity the necessity of such an undertaking. Mr. Mather after arriving in this country remained in Boston for some time with his family. — He and his wife joined a church there — He soon received invitations to settle in the Ministry — Plymouth, Dorchester & Roxbury and was sometime in doubt as to which place it was his duty to go — but by the advice of Mr. Cotton, Mr. Hooker and others, he went to Dorchester — the church that had been planted there being now removed to Windsor, Conn., with its minister Mr. Warham. Another church was gathered August 23, 1636, of which Mr. Mather was chosen teacher. Here he continued a most zealous and faithful minister during the rest of his life. Mr. Mather had a wonderfully strong constitution — and for fifty years was able to attend to his public labors every Sabbath. Never employed a physician (so says the record). — In his last years he lost the sight of one of his eyes — and for the last two years had a distressing malady which terminated his life.

"On the 13th of April, 1669, Mr. Mather was summoned to Boston to act as Moderator of a Council, assembled in reference to some differences that had arisen in the church there. — On the third day of his attendance, he was surprised by a violent attack of his disease, which hastened his return home, and which after a few days brought him to his grave, April 22."

His grandson, Cotton Mather, in speaking of him says —

"His way of preaching was very plain, studiously avoiding obscure and foreign terms, and unnecessary citation of Latin sentences; and aiming to shoot his arrows, not over the heads but into the hearts of his hearers. Yet so scripturally and so powerfully did he preach his plain sermons, that Mr. Hooker would say, — 'My brother Mather is a mighty man;' and indeed he saw a great success of his labours in both Englands, converting many souls unto God. His voice was loud and big, and uttered with a deliberate vehemency; it produced unto his ministry an awful and very taking majesty; nevertheless, the substantial and rational matter delivered by him, caused his ministry to take yet more, when yet he came whence even while he was a young man Mr. Gellibrand a famous minister in Lancashire, hearing him, inquired what his name was? when answer was made that his name was Mather, he replied say, his name shall be written for below it, this man hath good substance in him. Dr. Parr, Bishop in the Isle of Man hearing that Mr. Mather was silenced— he lamented it saying, — At Mr. Mather be silenced, I am sorry for it; for he was a solid man, and the church of God hath a great loss in him. — But as he judged that a preacher of the Gospel should be, he was, a very hard student. Yea so intent was he upon his beloved studies, that the morning before he died, he importuned the friends that watched with him, to help him into the room where he thought his usual works and books expected him. — To satisfy his importunity, they began to read him flattery; but finding himself unable to get out of his lodging room, he said, — I see I am unable, I have not been in my study for several days, and is it not a lamentable thing that I should lose so much time. — He quietly breathed his last on the night of the 22nd of April, after having lived about seventy three years, about fifty of which he had spent in preaching the Gospel— his last sermon was from 2 Timothy 4. 6-8 the sermon before the last Job 14th 14th.

“The last Will and Testament of Richard Mather, Minister of the Word of God, at Dorchester in New England, Written with his Owne hands the 16th day of the 8th month 1661. —

“I, Richard Mather, considering the certainty of death and the uncertainty of the time thereof, and withall knowing it to bee the will of God that man should set his house in Order before hee depart this life, doe make this my last will and Testament, in manner following:—First of all, I Acknowledge the rich and Wonderrull Grace and Mercy of Almighty God, whose hands haue made mee and fashioned mee, and who took mee out of my Mothers Womb, that hauing made mee a man that might haue made mee a beast, or other Creature. Hee hath also by his good Providence preserved the being and comfort of my life all the dayes of my Pilgrimage until now. Euen for the space of these sixty and Five yeares, during which time hee hath not suffered me to want Either food or Rayment, or the seruice of any creature that hath been requisite for my comfortable subsisting in this world, which I Acknowledge to bee the bounteous gift of him who is the Lord of all Creatures, and the high possessor of Heauen and Earth. Next of all and more Especially, I am bound to giue praise and thanks to him while I haue my being, that I being a child of Wrath, by Nature, as well as others, and being borne in a place of much Prophanes and Popeny, hee hath of his abundant Grace, noursished to draw mee out of that Wofull Estate of sin and ignorance wherein I lay, and to make himselfe and his Christ knowne vnto mee, by the Gospell of which Grace I was most unworthy, and in his great Patience and mercy to bear with my manifold and great offenses, both before and since that time of his gracious calling of mee, though for my unworthy walking in many particulars, I might justly haue been forever rejected of him. Yea, and such hath been his Rich grace, that hee hath resolued to put mee, an unworthy Creature, into the Ministry of the Gospell of his Sonne, that I should not only know and profess the same, which is an vspeakable mercy, but be also a Preacher of it vnto others, in which employment, if any thing haue been done that haue been pleasing to him, or any way beneficiall to any child of his, it hath not been I that haue done the same but the Grace of God which hath been with mee; for I must needs Acknowledge, to the praise of his Patience and Grace, that in my poore ministracion for these two and Forty yeares and ypwads, I haue been much defectiue in Wisdome and Watchfulness Over the Peoples Soules, in purity, in Faithfulness, in Vprightness, meekness, Humility, and zeale; and because of these, and many other my defects and offenses against the Lord, I stand this day in much need of mercy and forgiveness, through his Christ, and haue noe cause to looke for any acceptance in this or in another world, for any Righteousness of my Owne, Either as touching my ministry or other wise, but disclayming all thought of that kind, my only trust and Hope is to bee accepted of him, and when this life shall bee at an End, to be saued in his Heauenly

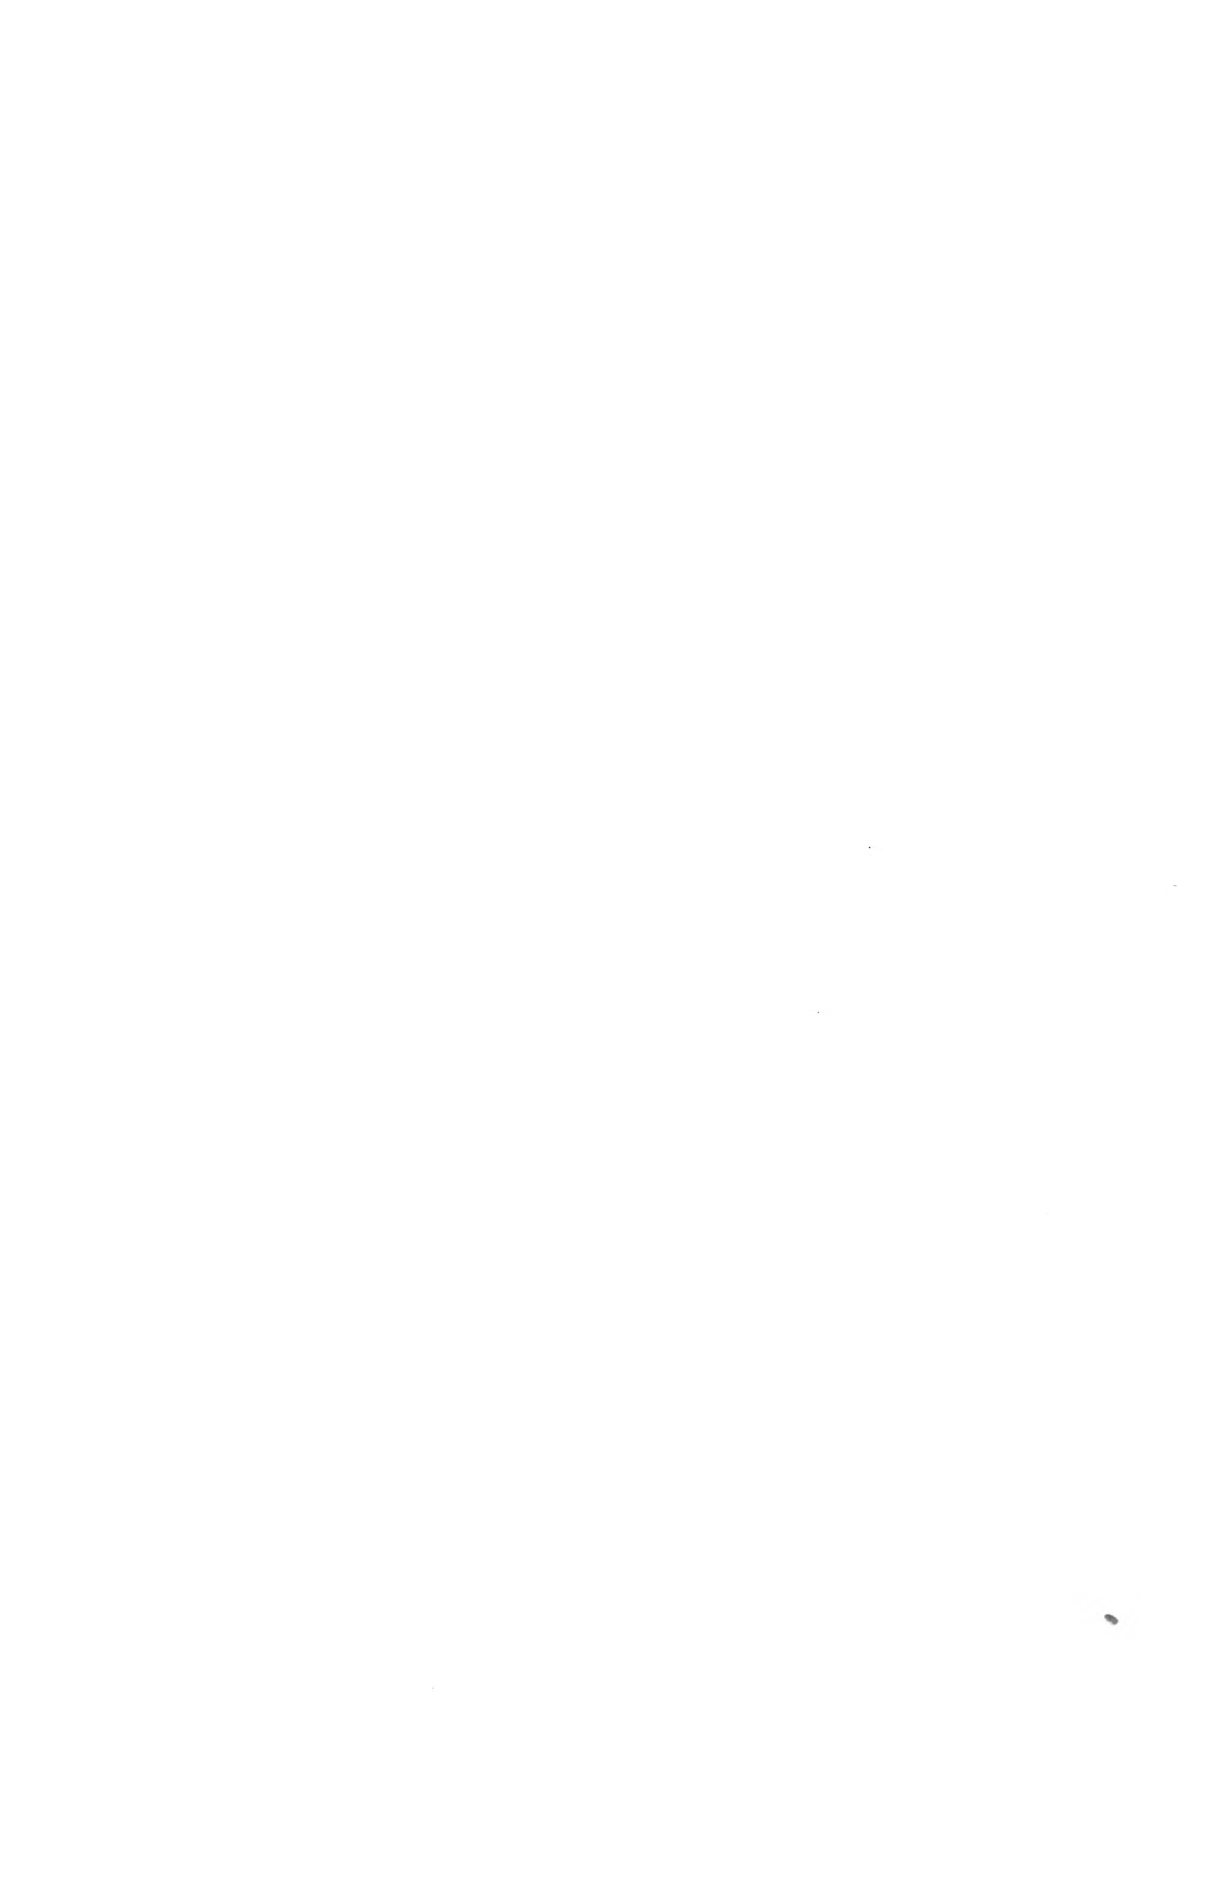

Kingdome, meerly by his free grace and the Obedience and precious passion and intercession of his deare Sonne. And Concerning death, I doe believe that it is appointed for all men once to dye, soe, because I see a great deale of unprofitablenes in my owne life, and because God hath also let mee see such Vanity and Emptines. Even in the best of those Comforts which this life can afford, that I think I may truly say, that I have seen an end of all perfection, therefore, if it were the will of God, I should bee glad to be removed hence, where the best that is to bee had doth Yeeld soe little Satisfaction to my Soule, and to bee brought into his presence in Glory, that there I might find for there I know it is to bee had, that satisfying of and all sufficient Contentment in him, which vnder the Sunne is not to be Enjoyed. In the meane time I desire to stay the Lords leisure, but thou O Lord, how long. Now Concerning my outward Estate of House, Land, goods, and chattels sith the Earth is the Lords, and the fulness thereof, the Inhabitable World and all that is therein, to him therefore belongeth the Praise of all that I possess in this kind, and for the Portion thereof which hee hath given mee, it is my mind and will, if soe it please his Lightnes that after my decease the same may bee disposed of as followeth:

“First of all, whereas upon my marriage with my deare wife, Sarah Mather, I received of her in Household Stuffe the value of Fifty pounds and Engaged my selfe to leaue to her at my decease the double thereof, that is 100^l. It is now my mind and will that the said Engagement bee truly performed and fulfilled, and therefore I hereby give and Appoint to bee paid vnto her, after my decease, the said sum of One Hundred Pounds, the one halfe of it in such Household Stuffe as I received with her or shall leaue in my House and the other Fifty pounds in such good pay as may bee to her just Satisfaction and Consent, Either in Household Stuffe, Corne, Cattle or otherwise, in all or any of these.

“Item I give to her daughter May Cotton and to her Grand-daughter, Elizabeth Day, to each of them, Twenty Shillings, as a Testimony of my Acknowledgement of their obseruance and dutiful Respect towards mee whilst they lived in my family.

“Item, I give to the children of my sister, Eliza Worsley, the sume of Five pounds, to bee Equally doubled Amongst them, the said Legacy and gift of Five pound to bee paid within the space of Three years next after my decease.

“Item, of my Bookes, I give Mr. Perkins werkes, in three Volumes, to my beloved Sonne Timothy Mather, and to his wife my deare daughter Elizabeth Mather, that Treatise, or Mr. Scudder Concerning a Christians daie walke. Also I Give vnto Samuel Mather, the eldest Sonne of my son Timothy, Five pounds, and to all his other children which shall bee living at my decease, to each of them Forty shillings. As for all the rest of my Bookes not formerly expressed mentioned, together with all my written Papers and Manuscripts whatsoever, whether in my Desk or without it, in my Study or Else where, Except only such writing as doe Concerne my Lands or other Outward Estate. All these, with the deskes and Trunkes in my study and Trunk that is there. Also, I Give to my Beloved Sons Samuell, Nathaniell, Eliazar and Increase Mather, to bee distributed and diuided Amongst them, in manner following, that is to say, that Nathaniell, Eliazar and Increase shall Each of them haue one fifth part thereof, and the other two fifth part, to bee to my Sonn Samuell Mather. And whereas I Give vnto my sons Samuell, Nathaniell, Eliazar, and Increase noe further Portion out of my Outward Estate, but only what is mentioned, I doe it only Considering that the cost and charges I haue bestowed on them in their Education, together with what I hereby now giue them, may as well, if not better, Enable and int them, through the Blessing of God, in a Comfortable Way of subsisting and Serving the Lord, as if they had had greater Portions left them at my decease and had had their Education in some other Way, that had beene less chargeable and Costly, which regard what I now giue them and haue formerly layd out for them may bee accounting as Amounting to the full of their fillidl Portions. And Concerning my sonn Timothy, in as much as he hath [not] had so much Cost bestowed vpon him in his Education as his brethren haue had, therefore I thinke it meete I should otherwise bestow on him and his a greater Portion of my Outward Estate, and therefore, as I haue some yeeres since given and assured to him in Land, meadow, barns, and other building in Cowes, Oxen, bedding, Household Stuffe and otherwise a Considerable Portion, not much less than two Hundred pounds in value, as I suppose, if not more soe, vpon Condition that He, the said Timothy, shall faithfully discharge and pay the generall legacies and gifts aboue mentioned, with what-ener I shall mention, hereafter, by my last will or otherwise vpon these Conditions, I giue to him, the said Timothy, all my House, barns, buildings and Lands in Dorchester, whatsoever or wheresoeter the same bee, whether in the home Lotts, or in the neck of Land or in the great Lotts, or in the Commons, or Cowe walke or wheresoeter, to bee to the vse of him the said Timothy, and his assignes, during the time and space of his natural life, in as full and Ample manner as I, myselfe, or my assignes, haue had and enjoyed, or doe, might, and ought to enjoy the same; and after the decease of him, the said Timothy, I giue the reuersion and inheritance of all the said Lands and other before receiued premises, vnto Samuell Mather, sonn to him the said Timothy, and to the heires of him, the said Samuell, and to the rest of the children of him, the said Timothy, and to their heires, a double portion always reserved to the Eldest sonn of him, the said Timothy, and the Portion of his Wife, in Case shee bee left a widdow, alwayes Excepted. And as I hereby giue the reuersion and inheritance of such Lands as are now in my possession, or in the possession of my assignes, vnto the Children of my said sonn Timothy and to their heires, in like sort I giue vnto them reuersion and inheritance of all such Lands, whatsoever, as I haue layd given and assured to him, the said Timothy, during the tearme of his Naturall life, by a writting vnder my hand, bearing day the 4th day of the 11th month, in the yeare 1655: likewise, vpon the Condition or Conditions before mentioned, I doe hereby giue to him, the said Timothy Mather, all the rest and remainder of my Estate in Mouable Goods whatsoever, whether it bee Seruants, debts owing vnto mee, brass, pewter, Table, stooles, bedding, linnen or other household stufte, or Cattle, as Cowes, Oxen, Horses, Mares, or whatsoever, all these, I Giue to him the said Timothy, vpon the Conditions before Expressed, to bee his owne proper goods in as full and Ample manner as I doe now Enioy the same, or of right ought or might soe doe: but all and Eeury gift or gifts, legacy or legacies, whatsoever, which I hereby giue or shall hereafter giue or promise to giue, or to bee giuen to any Person or Persons, whatsoever, whether written vnder my hand, or before two sufficient witnesses, and all Couenents and promises whereto I shall engage my selfe, to any Person or Persons whatsoever or have done heretofore, All these saue, I doe Appoint to bee taken as part of my last will and Testament, and to bee accordingly performed and fulfilled as well as if they had been, and as what is hereby by mee in perticular Expressed and set downe. Provided, that all what is heree said shall not Extend to any such perticular thing or thinges shall by mee bee renoked, disannulled or repealed before my decease. And concerning my sonn Timothy, with all the rest of my beloued sonnes, as I hope God hath already made them partakers, at least sundry of them, of his saving Grace in Christ, for which I and they haue cause to be Endlessly thankfull, soe I thinke it not amiss, for the furtherance of their spirituall good, to lay vpon them this serious and solemne charge of a dying Father, that none of them presume, after my decease, to walke in any way of sin or wickedness, frome kind or to another, or in a Careless neglect of God or of the things of God, out of the true Owne Salvation by Christ, for if they shall soe doe, which God forbid, then in such Case, I hereby testify vnto them, that their Father which begat them, and their Mother which bare them, with all the Prayers they haue made, and teares they haue shed for them, their Example, their Admonitions and Exhortations they haue Administered vnto them, together with this my last will and solemne charge, all these will rise vp against them, as soe many testimonies for their Condemnation, at the last day, but I haue better hope of them, and doe hereby declare vnto them, that if they shall seriously repent of their sins, helieue in the Lord Jesus, and by his Grace walke in all the wayes of God, and as becometh the Gospell of Christ, as this w^{ill} bee to the Honour and Glory of him that heale them, and soe will redome, to their very acceptable comfort, and benefit in this and in another world. And their Father that now speakes vnto them, with their deare Mother, now with God, shall likewise reioyce in the day of Christ, when we shall receive our eternall, or those Everlasting habitations, and shall see our sears not done, but these Admonit^{ions} haue proceeded and come fourth out of our owne bowels, to moue their part and Portion in that Eternal Glory. In desire and hope that it may bee see, I Commend them all to the Lord of Heavens blessing. And let the blessing of God in Jesus Christ bee poured out and remaine vpon them all forevermore. Amen.

“ Finally of this my last will and Testament, I nominate and appoint my beloved sons, Timothy Mather and his Brother, Eleazar, my true and Lawfull Exce^{ors}, to execute the same Faithfully and truly, as I haue therein Appointed, And I entreate my beloved Friends and Brethren in the Lord, Mr Henry Withington, Deacon Edward Clap, Leift. Roger Clap, and Ensigne Hopstill Foster, to afford their help and furthera^{nce} as Ouerseers, by their best aduice and Care to further the performance and fulfilling of what I haue here in Expressed and Appoiat d. And that this is my last will and Testament let the subscription of my name Testify which I haue hereto subscribed written with my owne hand in manner following, vizt.

In my collection of ancient books I have the writings of Rev. Richard Mather, of his sons Rev. Samuel of Dublin, and Rev. Dr. Increase of Boston, Rev. Samuel of Witley, in Oxfordshire, Eng., and his brother Rev. Dr. Cotton of Boston, Rev. Dr. Samuel of Boston (son of Dr. Cotton), also Rev. Samuel of Windsor, Conn. (son of Timothy).

FOURTH GENERATION.

- 4 Rev. Samuel Mather¹ (son of Rev. Richard (The last, John), of Dublin, Ireland. — Born May 13, 1626; d. in Dublin, Ireland, Oct. 29, 1671; married the sister of Sir John Stevens of Dublin, Ireland.

CHILDREN

He had 4 or 5 children, all died young but a daughter.

Mr. Mather was born in Much-Walton, Longshire, and came to America when nine years of age with his father. He became hopelessly pious before he was six years of age, and is represented as an extraordinary instance, not only of early developed intellectual ability, but of "discretion, seriousness, prayerfulness, and watchfulness." He took such a view of life that when asked to play he would decline by saying, "I was not sent into the world for sport." In the year 1643, at the age of 17, he graduated at Harvard College. He was the first Fellow of the college. Those who were under his tuition held him in very great esteem, and it was said by them "such was the love of all the scholars to him, that not only when he read his last philosophy lectures in the college hall, they heard him with tears, because of its being his last, but also, when he went away from the college, they put on the tokens of mourning in their very garments for it." When Mr. M. began to preach, he assisted the Rev. Ezekiel Rogers in Rowley, and was invited to settle with them, but, owing to his extreme youth, probably, declined. The Second or North Church when it was formed invited Mr. M. to preach for them. He preached for them their first service and through the following winter. After that this church was for a long period, until 1741, under the charge of his brother, Rev. Dr. Increase, or Rev. Dr. Cotton, or Rev. Dr. Samuel, the son of the latter, with the exception of a few years when the Rev. Mr. Mayo and

Joshua Gee were settled over the church. In England the Rev. Mr. Mather became quite noted: he was appointed, on his arrival in London, chaplain to the Lord Mayor of London, where he made the acquaintance of eminent ministers in that country. Such was the demand for him that he was overtaxed in work, and came near losing his life. He rested awhile from his labors, and was again restored. He then preached at Gravesend, and then in the city of Exeter in the Cathedral. At one time was chaplain of Magdalen College, Oxford, near by the college, Brazen-Nose, in the same city, where his father studied before settling in Texteth Park, Liverpool. He made a tour in Scotland with English commissioners, where for two years he preached. In the year 1655 he went with Dr. Harrison, Dr. Winter, and Mr. Charnock, and the lord deputy, Henry Cromwell, into Ireland. He was appointed senior fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, and joint pastor, with Dr. Winter, of the Church of St. Nicholas. An opportunity was now presented for the exercise of charity, and for the display of that true Christian liberality for which he was ever distinguished: for when his patron, the lord deputy, gave him a commission for the displacing of several Episcopal ministers, he refused to do it, saying, "I came into this country to preach the gospel, not to hinder others from preaching."

On the restoration of Charles II. he was suspended for a charge of sedition. It was a malicious one, founded on two discourses in opposition to Episcopal rights and ceremonies. When Mr. M. was informed of his suspension on such a groundless charge as it was based upon, he said, "If it be sedition to disturb the devil's kingdom, who rules by his anti-christian ceremonies in the kingdom of darkness, as the Lord Jesus does by his own ordinances in his church, I may say that I did it before the Lord, who hath chosen me to be his minister: and if this be vile, I will yet be more vile." He then went to Burton Wood, Lancashire, England, where he preached for about two years, until, with two thousand of his faithful brethren, he was ejected, by the terrible act of uniformity, 1662, Aug. 24th, called black Bartholomew day. His church in Dublin sent unto him to return to them, saying, "The men are dead that sought thy life." Accordingly, he spent the rest of his days with his church in Dublin; but he preached in his "own hired house," which being a very large one, was well fitted for that purpose. Although no man living used a more generous and open freedom, in speaking of the corruptions of worship introduced into the nation, yet was his learning, his wisdom, his piety, and loyalty towards the government, that he lived without any serious molestation. He wrote to his aged father in New England, 1668:—"I have enjoyed a wonderful protecting Providence in the work of my ministry. I pray remember me daily in your prayers, that I may walk worthy of this goodness of God, and be made useful by him for the good of the souls of his people. If any had told me in April, 1660, that I should have exercised the liberty of my ministry and conscience, either in England or Ireland, and that without conforming to the corruptions of the times, and this for seven or eight years together, I should not have believed it: I should have thought it next to an impossibility: but with God all things are possible."

Mr. Mather continued with patience and hope through the remainder of his labors for his Master.

While he was so engaged, it pleased God to remove from him his devoted wife. She was taken ill in 1668 and lived but five weeks. When she drew near the end her husband, seeing her in such pain, said, "You are going where there will be no more pain, sighing, or sorrow." Whereto she answered, "Ah, my dear, and where there will be no more sin!" And her sister saying to her, "You are going to heaven," she answered, "I am there already!" So she went away, having those for her last words, "Come Lord, come Lord Jesus." After Mr. M. became master of possessions in Ireland, he was as dutiful as Joseph was in the earlier days to his kindred, in that Mr. M. sent over to his aged father in America yearly costly presents, so long as his father lived. Mr. Mather left some valuable writings, the principal one (540 pages)—"The Figures or Types of the Old Testament."

Timothy Mather was the only son of the emigrant that grew up to manhood who was not a preacher and is called the "Mather farmer" of the early time, and settled in the town with his father. His brothers Samuel and Nathaniel went back to Europe and were noted preachers. Eleazer was the first minister in Northampton, Mass., where he died the same year his father. Rev. Dr. Increase settled in Boston. Timothy had a fall in his barn, which resulted in his death at the age of 56 years.

Maj.-Gen. Humphrey Atherton, his father-in-law, was a distinguished man in the colony. They are buried in "Uplam's Corner Cemetery." All persons in this country by the name of Mather who descend from the New England Mathers, can be traced directly to Timothy Mather, as the name ceases in all the other lines with Samuel Mather, the grandson of Rev. Dr. Cotton Mather. S. M. died in 1813.

Many Mathers in this country claim descent from Rev. Dr. Cotton Mather, but they are mistaken. There have been a number of Cotton Mathers later who have M. descendants.

The Mathers now are from the three grandsons of Rev. Richard, that settled in Connecticut, Rev. Samuel (of Windsor branch), Richard (of Lyme branch), or Atherton (of Suffield branch).

6 Rev. Nathaniel Mather¹ (son of Rev. Richard², Thomas³, John⁴) of Dublin, Ireland, and London, England. Born in Liverpool March 20, 1630; d. in London, July 26, 1697; married Maria Benn, dau. of Rev. Dr. Wm. Benn, of Dorchester, Eng.; she d. 1705.

Probably no children.

Mr. Mather wrote a very great number of letters to his brother, Rev. Dr. Increase Mather of Boston, which are published in the Massachusetts Historical Collections. In these letters he often alludes to his wife, but never to any children, and it is probably the fact he never had any. We find an early record of Nathaniel, which may be of interest to the young Mathers of to-day, and possibly they may desire a similar experience.

Rev. Richard Mather (his father) had in his congregation in Liverpool Quartermaster Smith's family, who decided to come to America with their pastor, who started from Warrington near Lowton for Bristol to take the ship "James" for this country on May 23 1635. On the way to the ship, Nathaniel, then five years of age, and Mary Smith, the same age, the daughter of the above Smith, were put in panniers, and rode on horseback to Bristol. We are not told what was the conversation that passed between them on their journey, probably it was not the same as it would have been had they grown to maturer age, as the sequel shows. Mary in later years became the second wife of Gov. Hinckly of Massachusetts, and Nathaniel, the husband of Maria, the daughter of Rev. Dr. Wm. Benn of England.

The attachment of Rev. Nathaniel Mather to his youngest brother, Rev. Dr. Increase Mather of Boston, is shown to have been very great in the numerous letters he wrote to him, and of the tender and loving spirit they all bore.

Increase was very anxious to procure a portrait of his brother Nathaniel. The latter, in a letter dated March 2, 1680-1, says he can find only one artist that can do it for him, and he charges ten pounds for it, and says he can hardly afford to pay so much; but if he can find one more reasonable will have one taken to gratify him.

On the 7th day, 9th month, 1683, Nathaniel writes to his brother, "I have sent you my picture."

Nathaniel Mather graduated at Harvard College in the year 1647 at the age of 17.

He went to England, where his brother Samuel had gone before him, and in 1656 was presented by the Protector, Cromwell, to a living in Barnstable, where he continued until the Bartholomew act in 1662, when he was ejected. He then went to Rotterdam in Holland, where he became a minister over an English congregation. Upon the death of his brother Samuel in Dublin, 1671, he was invited to go to Dublin and take his brother's place. We are not told how long a period he remained in Dublin. From Dublin he went to London, where he was a preacher the rest of his life. He was settled over a congregation in Lincoln's Inne, London, and was one of the lecturers at Pinner's Hall. He died July 26, 1697, aged 67, and was interred in Barnhill fields. On his tomb-stone, the traveler may still read a long Latin inscription, prepared by Dr. Watts, which ascribes to him a high character for genius, learning, piety, and ministerial fidelity."

I visited Barnhill fields in 1887 to see the stone, but the sexton could not find it. Doubtless the nearly two centuries that have elapsed since his burial had allowed the "tooth of time" to efface the record. I had, however, the satisfaction of seeing the altar-tomb of John Bunyan (1628-1688) and the tomb of Dr. Isaac Watts (1674-1748), a modern pyramid of Daniel Defoe (1661-1731), the author of Robinson Crusoe, and the stones of other celebrated non-conformists.

Nathaniel Mather's works that were published were few compared to his brother Increase and his nephew Cotton.

"A sermon wherein it is shewed that it is the Duty and should be the Care of Believers in Christ, to Live in the Constant Exercise of Grace."

"A Discussion of the Lawfulness of a Pastor's Acting as an Officer in Other Churches besides that which He is specially called to take the Oversight of."

"The Righteousness of God by Faith, upon all who believe."

A volume of sermons preached at Pinner's Hall.

Rev. Eleazar Mather graduated at H. C., 1656; went to Northampton, Mass., July, 1658; was ordained June 18, 1661, the first minister of Northampton. He died July 24, 1669, the same year that his father died.

Rev. Dr. Enoch Ford writes of him:—

"He commenced preaching at the age of nineteen years. He did not follow the example of his elder brothers, and seek a field of labor in the cities of the old world, but rather preferred the rude settlements of the new. He was the first minister of Northampton, Mass. Having preached to the people about two years, a church was gathered, and he was ordained its pastor, June 23, 1658. He died July 24, 1669, after a ministry there of eleven years. He is represented as a very zealous preacher and pious walker, who was instrumental in bringing many souls to the Saviour. His death was greatly lamented, not only by his own church, but by all the infant churches on the Connecticut River. As he approached the end of life, 'he grew so manifestly ripe for heaven, in a holy, watchful, fruitful disposition,' that many pious persons anticipated his speedy removal."

The following are the last words he wrote in his diary:

"This evening (July 10, 1669) I have some sweet longings of soul after God in Christ, according to the terms of the covenant of grace. The general and indefinite expression of the promise was an encouragement to me to look to Christ, that he would do that for me. I will live at his feet and accept of his grace in his own way and time, through his power enabling me. Though I am dead, and without strength, help or hope in myself, yet the Lord requireth nothing at my hands in my own strength, but that by his power I should look to him, to work all his works in me and for me."

The wife of Mr. Mather was the daughter of the Rev. John Warham, first minister of Dorchester, and afterwards first minister of Windsor, Conn. After his death she married his successor, the celebrated Solomon Stoddard, and was grandmother of the more celebrated metaphysician and divine, Jonathan Edwards. The only daughter of Mr. Mather was married to the Rev. John Williams of Deerfield. She was carried into captivity, and cruelly murdered by the Indians, in the winter of 1704. Deerfield was, at this period, a frontier town, and much exposed to the incursions of the savages. In the night of February 28th, a party of them broke into the house of Mr. Williams, murdered two of his children and a servant before his eyes, and compelled the rest of his family — himself, his wife, and the surviving children — to set out immediately on their march for Canada. In wading a small river, the second day after their capture, Mrs. Williams fell down from exhaustion and fatigue. Finding her unable to proceed farther, one of the Indians despatched her with his hatchet. Mr. Williams survived his captivity, returned to Deerfield, and continued there till his death, in 1729.

It does not appear that Rev. Eleazar Mather published anything while he lived. After his death, there was published, from his manuscripts, a work on the duties of Christian parents to their children, it being the substance of some of his last sermons.

The Rev. Dr. Win. B. Sprague of Albany, says this of him, among other things :

“Mr. Mather’s father having died but a few weeks before him, having given it as his dying counsel to his brother Increase, that he should pay particular attention to the spiritual interests of the rising generations; he also availed himself of the hint, and preached several sermons just before his own death, on 1st Kings viii: 17, which were designed to carry out his father’s suggestions. The substance of these sermons was published in 1671, under the title of ‘Serious exhortations to the present and succeeding generations in New England, earnestly calling upon them all to endeavour that the Lord’s gracious presence may be continued with posterity; being the substance of the four last sermons preached at Northampton, by the Rev. Eleazar Mather.’”

Cotton Mather, who was a nephew of Eleazar, and who was a mere child when his uncle died, has left the following account of him:

“Here” (Northampton), “he laboured for eleven years in the vineyard of our Lord, and then the twelve hours of his day’s labour did expire, not without the deepest lamentations of all the churches as well as his own; then sitting along the river of Connecticut, as he was a very zealous preacher, and accordingly saw many seals of his ministry, so he was a very pious walker; and as he drew towards the end of his days, he grew so remarkably ripe for Heaven, in a holy, watchful, fruitful disposition, that many observing persons did prognosticate his being not far from his end. He kept a diary of his experiences wherein the last words that ever he wrote were these: ‘This evening if my heart deceives me not, I have some sweet workings of soul after God in Christ, according to the terms of the covenant of grace. The general and indefinite expression of the promise was an encouragement unto me to look unto Christ that He would do that for me which he has promised to do for some, nor dare I exclude myself; but if the Lord will help me, I desire to lie at his feet, and accept of grace, in his own way and in his own time, through his power enabling of me. Though I am dead without strength, help or hope in myself, yet the Lord requireth nothing at my hands in my own strength, but that by his power I should look to him, to work all his works in me and for me. When I find a dead heart, the thoughts of this are exceeding sweet and reviving, being full of grace, and discovering the very heart and love of Jesus."

Of the three children of Rev. E. M., his daughter Eunice, who married Rev. John Williams, and was slain by the Indians, I shall give a more extended account farther on in the work. The next child, Rev. Warham Mather, was a graduate of Harvard College in 1785, preached some in Massachusetts, and was called to settle in the ministry at Westchester, N. Y., in the year 1695, where he remained until 1701. During his stay there he bought several tracts of land of John Yeats, of New York city, May 29, 1697, and in 1703 sold it. He removed to New Haven, Conn., where his name often appears as Judge of Probate and Justice from 1719 to 1732 -- so that he must have given up preaching for the greater part of his life, which ended 1745; his wife was the daughter of John Davenport, and granddaughter of the Rev. John Davenport of New Haven.

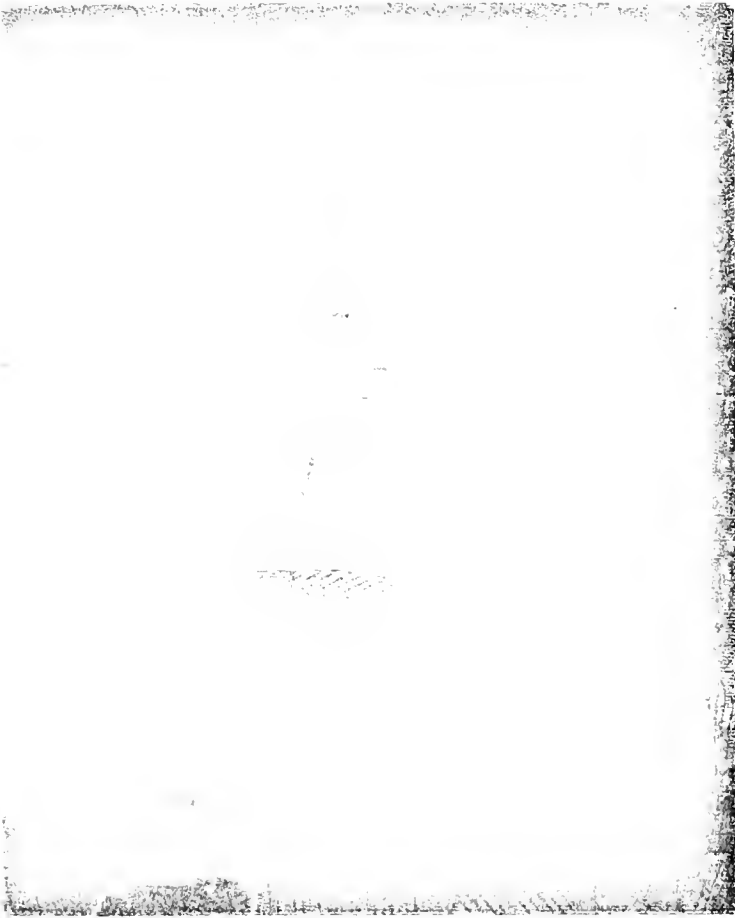

The following record is to be seen on a tablet in the old church on New Haven Green:

" Warham Mather [died] Aug. 12, 1745 [aged] 80
Elizabeth Mather [died] July 23, 1744 [aged] 77."

The other son, Eliakim, must have died when a young man. His name appears in the Massachusetts Historical Collection, in the "Sewall Papers," as being in the family of his uncle, Dr. Increase and cousin, Dr. Cotton Mather, -- his father having died in 1669, when he was a babe. Esther Warham Mather became afterward the wife of the Rev. Solomon Stoddard of Northampton. He was the successor of Rev. E. M., in the 1st church.

Hon. George Sheldon writes me under date of Nov. 19, 1889, of P. V. M. A.:

"I have some evidence that Eliakim, son of Rev. Eleazar, died before 1706, or about that time, but I cannot lay my hand on it to-day. I think it is

The attempt to do justice in the brief sketches of the lives of such men as Increase and his son Cotton in the present work seems a hopeless task, but will collect from the immense treasuries of information, from such men as Rev. Dr. Enoch Pond, Chandler Robbins, Wm. B. Sprague, and others, a few facts which I will put down in their respective places. Rev. Dr. Increase Mather was named Increase from the circumstance of the great increase of every sort in this country about the time of his birth. He is said to have had great intellectual pre-coity in his early childhood, and greatly outstripped all his classes in acquiring knowledge. At the age of 12 was admitted to Harvard College. After being about a year in college his health was impaired and he was taken out for a time and put under the care of Rev. John Norton of Ipswich. Mr. Norton removed to Boston, and Increase remained with him several years, then returned to Harvard College, and graduated 1656. He commenced preaching the year after graduation. He had a devoted mother, who said to him, "My child, if God make thee a good Christian and a good scholar, thou wilt have all that thy mother ever asked for thee." One of his first sermons was preached in his father's pulpit at Dorchester, and was regarded not only by his father, but the congregation, as of uncommon ability, and as giving promise of extensive usefulness. He was invited by his oldest brother Samuel to visit him in Dublin. He sailed for England July 3, 1657; the time taken to cross the ocean was five weeks. He spent a little time in London, also with his father's friends in Lancashire, thence to Dublin where his mother gave him a warm greeting. By the advice of Samuel he became a student at Trinity College, Dublin. He became a great favorite with Dr. Winter, the Provost of the College, and was chosen a Fellow of the College, which honor he declined. He then went over to England and was a preacher to John Howe's parish at Torrington in Devonshire, near to the residence of his brother Nathaniel, who was then minister of Barnstable. The following spring, 1659, Mr. M. had an invitation from the Governor of Guernsey to preach Sabbath morning in the castle and in the afternoon at the town called Peter's Port. From Guernsey he went to England and was offered some hundred pounds a year if he would conform. He rejected the proposal, and thinking the chances for usefulness in that country not so great as in America he set sail from Weymouth in June, 1661, arrived at Boston about the 1st of September. He came to Dorchester on Saturday evening, quite unexpectedly, giving great joy to his father. He had the pleasure of meeting his brother Eleazer, who had just come from Northampton, and was at the paternal mansion. "The comforted old patriarch," says Cotton Mather, "had the privilege of having his two sons in his own pulpit, on the following day, while he sat shining between them, like the Sun in Gemini."

The first winter preached alternately in his father's pulpit, and in the new church in the north part of Boston.

The next year he was married to Maria, the only daughter of the distinguished John Cotton of Boston. He lived with her for fifty years, had three sons and seven daughters.

Mr. Mather was installed over the North Church, May 27, 1664, his father giving him the charge: he remained the pastor of this church until his death in 1723; his son Cotton was colleague for (1684-1723) thirty-nine years with him. In his early life he adopted this method for the different days of the week:

"Lord's day. Besides my public labors, attend to the catechising and personal instruction of my family.

"Monday. Forenoon, read covenants, study sermon. Afternoon, read authors; study sermons.

"Tuesday. Forenoon, read comments; study sermon. Afternoon, endeavour to instruct personally more or less; read authors.

"Wednesday. Forenoon, read comments; study sermons. Afternoon, read authors; pursue the sermon.

"Thursday. Forenoon, read comments; study sermon. After lecture, endeavour to promote among the ministers what shall be of public advantage.

"Friday. Forenoon, read comments; study sermon. Afternoon, read authors; finish sermons.

"Saturday. Read comments. Prepare for the Sabbath, by committing my sermons to memory, &c.

"I am not willing to allow myself more than seven hours in twenty-four for sleep, and would spend the rest of my time in attending to the duties of my personal and general calling."

This course of study he continued through more than half a century, and the Scriptures became like household words. He was not willing to bring before his people that which cost him nothing, but to have beaten oil brought to the sanctuary. It was said of him "that he was in advance of the ministers of his own age, and perhaps of any other age in New England, in the manner of his delivery. He was not only a sound and learned divine, but a graceful and powerful speaker. He made it an object and labour through life to be so, and he was so." He was wise in thinking of the manner and matter of his sermons, and in studying to make himself an acceptable and accomplished preacher as well as one to instruct, and well would it have been for the succeeding ministry of New England to have followed him in this.

After the death of President Oakes of Harvard College, which occurred July 25, 1681, Mr. Mather was invited to take charge of the college. He presided at the next commencement, and conferred the degrees, but he declined the appointment because the church did not want to part with him, but made weekly visits to Cambridge, with a view to some general superintendence of the institution, until the Presidential chair should be filled. The following year was relieved of its care by the appointment of President Rogers. Mr. R. died in 1684, and Mr. Mather was again chosen and accepted on condition that he could preach every Sabbath in Boston but would remain in Cambridge during the week. By his ability and industry he was able to fill both places. He held the office until 1701, when he resigned. In the year 1692, the Corporation and Overseers of the College over which he presided presented him with a diploma of Doctor of Divinity. This was the first instance in which such a degree was conferred in British America. The next one was to Rev. Nath'l Appleton of Cambridge, 79 years later. Mr. Mather was the first native born president of Harvard College.

In 1688, Mr. Mather was sent by the Colonies to Great Britain to intercede in their behalf and to get a new charter, and was successful: he returned in 1692: had several interviews with the king. Mr. M. had all the appointments to make under the new charter. Mr. Mather's intellect did not decline materially until past his fourscore years. On the day that he arrived to fourscore years, he preached from the text, Ezekiel 16: 5: "The day when thou wast born," which was taken down by some one of his hearers, and afterwards published. On the 25th of September, 1722, he concluded the exercises of a Fast day, kept by his church, with a prayer of remarkable pathos and power. Within two days after he had a slight apoplectic affection, from which he was soon relieved, though it left him in a very feeble condition. The idea of his being laid aside from his pulpit labors was greater to him than his bodily suffering. At length death came to his release, and he breathed out his life in the arms of his son Cotton, on the 23d day of August, 1723, aged eighty-four years. His funeral is said to have been more numerously attended than any funeral in the Province had ever been.

President Quincy gives this eulogy of Mr. M. :

"That Dr. Mather was well qualified for the office of President, and had conducted himself in it faithfully and laboriously, is attested by the history of the College, the language of the Legislature, and the acknowledgment of his contemporaries. His conduct in this great crisis of his country (when the new charter was obtained), entitles him to unqualified approbation. It is scarcely possible for a public agent to be placed in circumstances more trying and critical, nor could any one have exhibited more sagacity and devotedness to the true interest of his constituents. By his wisdom and firmness in acceding to the new charter, and thus assuming a responsibility of the weightiest kind, in opposition to his colleagues in the agency, he saved his country apparently from a rebellion, or a revolution, or having a constitution imposed by the will of the trans-atlantic Sovereign, and possibly at the point of the bayonet."

WILL OF REV. INCREASE MATHER, D.D. (4), 1718.

"I, INCREASE MATHER of Boston in New England, being not only sensible that I am (as all men are) a poor mortal; but having moreover in respect of some bodily Infirmities (especially that epistaxis which I have often been afflicted with) reason to think that my Breath will suddenly be stopped; so that it is possible & probable that, when dying, I shall not have Liberty to express my Mind. And Considering that God, of his abundant Mercy, has given me to accomplish those Things, which when sick near unto Death many years ago I desired Life and Health that I might finish; I would be in a Readiness, that, when Christ shall call for me, I may have nothing else to do, but to fly and go to Him. And without remembrance, that it is according to the Will of God, that a Man before his Death set his House in Order: I do make & appoint this to be my last Will & Testament in manner following;

"Concerning my Soul, I have long since given from my Youth for more than three score years ago, given it to God in Jesus Christ; trusting that He who has the Keys of Hell & Death, will command His holy Angels to conduct me into his Blessed Presence, when once Death has separated between my mortal Body & my immortal Spirit. I am the Chief of Sinners, and have nothing in the world to depend upon but only the Righteousness of Jesus Christ; and the Remembrance of that Righteousness does make me to triumph not only over Death and Devils, but over all my Sins. When my soul is out of my Body, let my dear Lord Jesus Christ do what He will with it; for into his Hands do I commit my Spirit. If He will send that Soul, which He has redeemed with His own Blood, and which He has made above all Things desirous to glorify his Name. If He will send that Soul down into eternal Darkness, I am then content to perish; but that can never be.

"Concerning my Body I commit it to the Earth, there to Sleep in Hope, until the Resurrection of the Just.

"AS to the outward estate which the Lord of His Goodness has bestowed upon me, It's my Mind & Will (and I trust the Will of God also) that it will be disposed of as follows,

"I would in the first Place give Order for the Payment of my Debts, if I had any: but I bless the Lord I owe no man any Thing but Love. I give five Pounds to the Poor in that Church to which I am related.

"Concerning my wife that now is, there was an Agreement before Marriage, and Writings signed accordingly, that I should not be concerned with any Part of her Estate, nor she with mine. If she shall (as hitherto she has not) bring any Thing to me, I would have it returned to her again with double the value.

"Concerning my son Cotton Mather, He has bin a great comfort to me from his childhood, having bin a very dutiful Son, and a singular Blessing to his Fathers Family and Flock. If I had any considerable estate, I ought to bequeath the greatest Part of it to Him. It has bin that, that I have Bars by me, which is a great mistake: I have not Twenty Pounds in Silver or in Bills. But whatever I have, be it more or less: whether in Silver or Bills, I give it to Him my Eldest Son. Item, I give to Him my Pendulum Watch, Item my Pendulum Clock. Item my Silver Tankard. And I bequeath to Him all my Manuscripts, and the one half of my Library, desiring that my Books or Manuscripts may not be sold or embezzled.

"Concerning my son Samuel Mather, I have expended more on his education, than on any one of my children. I gave Him a Considerable Number of Books at his going for England. And a considerable Part of his Uncle Nathaniel's Library has fallen to his share. He liveth where He may furnish himself with Variety of Books and is blest with an estate able to do it. Nevertheless, considering that He has been a dutiful Son, and an Honor to his Father's Name, I bequeath to Him a fourth Part of my Library, in Testimony of my paternal Affection.

"The remaining fourth Part I bequeath to my Fatherless Grandson Mather Byles, in case He shall be educated for, and employed in, the work of the Ministry: which I much desire & pray for leaving it with my executor to order & determine what particular Books shall be his: only I give Him (in case aforesaid) particularly Poli Synopsis Criticorum in five Volumes in Folio, and his English Annotations, with the continuation in Two Folios.

"I give to my Grandson Samuel Mather, Piscatoris Commentaria in Biblia in three Folios.

"I give to my Grandson Thomas Walter the English Annotations in Two Folios, also the Dutch Annotations in two Folios.

"The remainder of my estate in Housing or Moveables, I give to be equally divided among my Beloved Daughters, Maria, Elisabeth, Sarah, and Abigail, what I give to my daughter Elisabeth, I desire it may if his mother can be improv'd towards the education of her only Son (my Grandson Mather Byles) in Learning, because he is a child whom God has blessed with a strong Memory, ready capacity & aptness to learn, I leave it as my dying Request to his Uncle my Son Cotton Mather to take care of the Education of that child as of his own. If he shall obtain Subscriptions for his Education for the Ministry (as He knows I have done for more Fatherless Children than one) I am persuaded his own children will not fare the worse for his being a Father to a Fatherless child. To prevent his being chargeable as much as I can, I give Him my wearing apparel; excepting my Chamberlet Cloak, which I give to my Executor.

" If the Lord shall take away Mather Byles by Death before He is of full age, or if He shall not be employed in the Work of the Ministry, it is my Mind and Will that then the Books bequeathed to Him shall be given to such other of my Grandchildren as shall be Preachers of the Gospel of Christ, according as my Executor shall dispose.

" I do believing that God will bless my children after I am taken from them; and my Persuasion is grounded on these as well as other Scriptures, Gen. xxv. 11, & xviii. 21. Psalm xxxvii. 25. Prov. xx, 7. Unto God in Jesus Christ I commit myself & all mine forever.

" Finally I constitute and appoint my Beloved Son Cotton Mather to be the Sole Executor of this my Will; entreating my Worthy Friends Mr Thomas Hutchinson, Mr Adam Winthrop, Mr Edward Hutchinson, Mr John Ruck & Mr John Frizell to be his assistants as Overseers; praying them that, for my Sake, but especially for the sake of the Glory which I hope may come to God thereby, they will be Kind to my Fatherless Grandson Mather Byles.

" This I declare to be my last Will and Testament; And I have accordingly written this with my own Hand, and herewith affixed my Seal. The Seventh Day of the fourth month, called June, in the Year of our Lord One Thousand, Seven hundred and Eighteen.

" Witnesses that I declare this to be my Will;

" INCREASE MATHER [Seal]
(signed, and sealed with wax)

" JONAS CLARKE
EDWARD WILDER
JOSEPH WOODWELL

" I do hereby signify to my Executor, That it is my Mind & Will that my Negro Servant called Spanard shall not be sold after my Decease; but I do then give Him his Liberty: Let him then be esteemed a Free Negro.

Rev. Samuel Mather graduated at H. C. in 1671, and prepared himself for the ministry. He then preached in Deertfield, Mass., until the destruction of that town by the Indians, in 1675; from there he went to Hatfield, and later to Milford and Branford, Conn., and from the latter place he was called to settle in Windsor, Conn., in 1682, where he remained until his death. It was said of him, "that in every respect he was a fit successor to the venerable John Warham." Descended from a highly respectable and gifted ancestry, he was one, and by no means the least, of a circle of noble men, whose varied talents and pious lives have rendered the name of Mather distinguished among the families of New England, even to the present day. His father, Timothy Mather of Dorchester, was a son of Rev. Richard, third minister of that town, and his mother a daughter of the excellent Maj.-Gen. Humphrey Atherton. Thus highly connected, his earlier years were spent in the enjoyment of all the advantages which the best society of that day could afford. The powers of his mind, the amiability of his character, and his piety, speedily won the esteem and love of his people, and composed the difficulties which existed among them. He was then in the prime of his life, grave and dignified in person, faithful and consistent in his daily life, and benignant and winning in manner. His connection by marriage with the daughter of the Hon. Robert Treat, afterwards governor of the Colony of Connecticut, was in itself happy, and served to increase the influence which his gifts of mind and heart had already secured for him in the public estimation. Thus happy in his public and domestic relations, his life was quietly passed in the faithful discharge of his pastoral duties to his now happy flock. And it is pleasant to record that during the whole period of his ministry, not one shadow of complaint seems to have darkened his or their pathway. On the contrary there is abundant evidence that he was the constant recipient of many marks of public and private respect and care.

In the year 1700, Yale College was founded, and the following principal ministers in Connecticut were chosen by general consent of the Connecticut clergy to be founders of the college: These were Rev. James Noyes of Stonington, Rev. Israel Chauncey of Stratford, Rev. Thomas Buckingham of Saybrook, Rev. Abraham Pierson of Killingworth, Rev. Samuel Mather of Windsor, Rev. Samuel Andrew of Milford, Rev. Timothy Woodbridge of Hartford, Rev. James Pierpont of New Haven, Rev. Nehemiah Russell of Middletown, and Rev. Joseph Wold, of Fairfield.

There were two works of Rev. Samuel Mather published, the first entitled "A Dead Faith Anatomized," printed at Boston, 1697, with an introduction by his cousin, the Rev. Dr. Cotton Mather, which concludes thus:

"The author is known throughout the churches of the famous and happy Colony, to none of the least whereof he hath for many years been a faithful Pastor, known for his Piety, Gravity, and Usefulness, more than any recommendations of mine can render him, and my relation to him will readily excuse me, as well as his modesty forbid me for saying any more."

Another work was published in 1706. — "The Self-Justiciary Convicted and Condemned." The Rev. G. C. Wilson of the Windsor Church has a copy of it. I also have a copy of it; the Connecticut Historical Society has some of each of the publications.

In the Windsor Records we find that S. M. was called March 11, 1680–81, and settled in 1682. In July 27, 1681 the town voted to have the town-house finished, and made suitable for the entertainment of Mr. M., — "if God in his providence send him amongst us."

Richard Mather, named after his grandfather Richard Mather, was a farmer, and settled at first in Dorchester, but a few years after his marriage he removed to Lyme, Conn. In the year 1687 he bought a tract of land in Lyme of Hezekiah Usher of Boston. As Mr. Mather died the next year, he could not have done much in his new enterprise. He died on the fifty-third anniversary of the landing of his grandfather in America, which was on the 17th of August, 1655.

Although Mr. Mather died at the age of thirty-five years, his descendants far outnumber either of the other branches, the Windsor, or Suffield, and many of them have attained eminence in the professions and in business, some of whom will be noticed farther along in the history.

Atherton Mather came from Dorchester, Mass., and, we see, settled in Windsor, Conn., when a young man, as we find in the land records of that town several transactions of purchase and sale of real estate. Five of his children were born in Windsor. In 1712 he removed to Suffield, where the remaining children were born. Mr. M. was a pub-be spirited and prominent man in Suffield. He represented the town of Suffield in Boston for four years in the General Court. Suffield was under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts until the year 1752. As he died in 1734, he was not a resident of Connecticut, but I, in my family records, place his as one of the Connecticut branches of Mathers known as "Suffield branch."

Mr. M. purchased land in the center of the town in S., and lived on the main street on land where Dr. Mason now lives. Atherton Mather's mother was the daughter of Maj.-Gen. Humphrey Atherton of Dorchester, Mass., who died in 1661, and whose monument stands in close proximity to that of his grandfather, Rev. Richard Mather.

Joshua M., the son of A. M., was one of the first settlers in Berlin, Conn. Another son, Dr. Thomas M., was one of the early physicians of Pomfret, Conn.; he married Mrs. Sarah Payson, but left no children; in his will he gives his property to his nephews and nieces, Charles, Elihu, Zachariah, Cotton, Lois Porter, Elizabeth, Mary, Sarah, Anna, Lucinda, Lucy, and Thomas.

Eunice Mather, the wife of Rev. John Williams, was taken captive by the Indians with her husband and others in Feb. 29, 1703-4, at Deerfield, Mass. Their house was broken into and two young children and a domestic were inhumanly murdered. Mrs. Williams, who had just recovered from a bed of confinement, and five children were taken prisoners. Mr. Williams and the rest of the prisoners were made to wade over a small river in which the water was over knee deep, and very swift. After that he had to travel up a small mountain, and his strength was nearly exhausted before he came to the top of it. He was permitted to sit down, and to have his pack taken from his back. While he sat there pitying those who were behind, he entreated his master to let him go and help his wife. He inhumanly refused him, and would not let him move a foot from him. He inquired of the prisoners, as they passed, concerning her, and they informed him that in passing the river she was overpowered by the stream and planged headlong into the water. She was not able to travel far after this. At the foot of the mountain which Mr. Williams had just ascended, the inhuman and bloodthirsty Indian, who had the care of her, slew her with his tomahawk at a blow. This was truly heartrending to him, and yet the savages reproached him for a want of manhood in shedding tears on account of her cruel murder. Her body was found by men from Deerfield, and taken for burial. On her tombstone is the following inscription:

"Here lyeth the body of Mrs. Eunice Williams the virtuous and desirable consort of the Rev. John Williams, and daughter of Rev. Eleazar and Mrs. Esther Mather of Northampton. She was born Aug. 2, 1664, and fell by the rage of the barbarous enemy, March 1, 1703-4

"Her children rise up and call her blessed."

Cotton Mather was very highly favored, not only by eminent qualities inherited from his father and grandfather, but also by his mother, Maria Cotton (a woman of lovely character, the daughter of the famous John Cotton, who came to Boston, New England, from Boston, England (out of respect to John Cotton the name of Boston, N. E., was given). Very much was expected of him, and the people were not disappointed in his after life. He was early placed in the free school in Boston. From his early life he exhibited a remarkable passion for books and learning. His first teacher was Benj. Thompson, the second, the famous Ezekiel Cheever. Before he entered college he had read Homer, Socrates, and many Latin authors, some of which are but little understood except by those eminent in the classics. He entered Harvard College at the age of twelve, graduated 1678, taking a high rank. He commenced preaching when eighteen years old.

In early manhood he was devising ways to become very useful to his fellow men. He made it a rule never to go into company where it was proper for him to speak without trying to make himself useful. When quite young he commenced by giving one-tenth of all his substance for charity, and more than that, for some of the remainder of his life it is said he devised a plan of voluntary association very similar to that which is now in such active operation throughout the world. His method was to have associations formed in every neighborhood, which should keep an eye upon all growing evils, and use the most effectual means to suppress them. He would have these societies engage in sending the Bible and the gospel to other nations, and in labors for the benefit of tradesmen, soldiers, and seamen." He deplored the prevailing vice of intemperance, wrote and published much against it, and widely circulated some of his publications. Was also very much interested for the colored people (of which there were many in Boston). As they had not the advantages for instruction that others had he established a school in which they were taught to read. "And he himself bore the whole expense of it, paying the instructress for her services at the close of every week." He published an essay on the importance of christianizing the people of color, designing "to lodge a copy in every family in New England that has a negro in it, and also to send numbers of them to the West Indies." On every day of the week Mr. Mather had a systematic method for work, and carried it out in regular succession day after day and year after year. Mr. Mather was unwearied in his labors for the good of his church. And it is said that in his visits he distributed great numbers of Bibles and other religious books, and that he gave away more than a thousand in a year, and at a time when books cost much more than now. As a result of his ministerial labors, says his biographer, "the first year of his ministry no less than thirty declared before the church that he was the cause, under God, of their awakening and conversion; and many, many (God knows how many) have since been by his addresses to them, either by tongue or pen, brought home to God." During thirty-nine years, when the exact record is kept complete of Increase and Cotton Mather, there were three thousand, three hundred and eighty-four baptisms in their church; the number of admissions to the church during their pastorate was eleven hundred and four.

"Cotton Mather," says Dr. Chauncy, "I give the palm to in regard to literature, or an acquaintance with books of all kinds. No native in this country had read so much, or retained more of what he read. He was the greatest redeemer of time I ever knew, and lost as little of it as any one could do, in his situation. There were scarcely any books written but he had, somehow or other, got the sight of them. His own library was the largest, by far, of any private one on the continent. He was always reading or writing, and he had the happiest talent of going rapidly through a book. He knew more of the history of this country than any man in it; and could he have conveyed his knowledge with proportionable judgment, he would have given the best history of it." That is the opinion of Dr. Chauncy. "In point of learning in the stricter application of the term as denoting a general acquaintance with books Cotton Mather was the most learned man that New England ever bred."

Dr. Mather says, in his own private writings:

"I am able with little study to write in seven languages. I feast myself with the sweets of all sciences, which the more polite part of mankind ordinarly pretend to. I am entertained with all kinds of histories, ancient and modern. I am no stranger to the curiosities which, by all sorts of learning, are brought to the curious. These intellectual pleasures are far beyond any sensual ones. Nevertheless, all this affords me not so much delight as it does to relieve the distresses of any one poor, mean, miserable neighbor; and much more, to do anything to advance the kingdom of God in the world."

This is said to have been entirely true of him. He had enemies, and no great man gets through the world without having some who are very bitter against him. He doubtless made many mistakes, and was too credulous upon some subjects. He says of himself:

"Though I have first and last had such a number of pamphlets thrown at me, that if I had been vulnerable, I might appear stuck as full of darts as the man in the signs of the almanack; yet, upon considering the sorry and silly stuff which they have consisted of and the despicable character of the scribblers; and remembering too, that lies have no legs, and what I have learned about treating insolent men with humility, and angry men with meekness; I have thought Prov. 26, 4, was a full answer for them."

Rev. Dr. Candler Robbins writes thus of Cotton Mather:

"The ministry of Cotton Mather ran parallel with that of his father, from the time of his settlement as colleague, May 13, 1685, till the death of the latter, Aug. 23, 1723, a period of thirty-nine years. He survived his father till February 13, 1728, only four years and a half, having been pastor of this church forty-four years. During this period, the society enjoyed uninterrupted prosperity, the congregation was very numerous, and multitudes were added to the church. If an eminently successful ministry, a crowded audience, the strong and unabated attachment of a large congregation, the steady enlargement of a church, benevolent activity, and a general and constant improvement of the ordinances on the part of a people, are any proofs of piety, ability, and faithfulness in a religious teacher, or give him any claim to respect, the name of Mather richly deserves to be mentioned with reverence in the church, with whose best days it is associated, and whose history it has made illustrious."

Rev. Joshua Gee, who became colleague with him after the death of his father, writes:

"He was bright among the excellent of the earth. The whole land has lost a very considerable part of its strength and glory. Truth and justice have lost a champion who was able to defend and maintain them. Learning hath lost an eminent patron, who was ever ready to promote it. The churches have lost a pastor who was a pillar in the house of his God. It would be difficult to find his equal among men of like passions with us. He was pious without pretence, serious without moroseness, grave but not austere, affable without meanness, and factious without levity. He was peaceable in his temper, but zealous against sin. He was catholic in his charity, abundant in his liberality, and obliging to strangers, though often ill-requited."

He speaks most plainly of his revilers, and rebukes them boldly and sharply. He calls them "that herd of abandoned mortals whose sport it has been, to reek their venom upon a faithful servant of God, in profane and ungodly scorn and derision." He tells them to "mourn for the hardness of their hearts, and repent and bewail their abuse." Dr. Robbins says, "Mr. Goe would not have dared to have thus challenged and rebuked his accusers, unless he knew well that they deserved it, and felt confident that Cotton Mather had been injured."

In speaking of some of the qualities of the famous Cotton Mather it will be well to insert here some facts and opinions regarding Cotton Mather's connection in the witchcraft delusion, and I will quote from the pen of that esteemed New England divine, Rev. Dr. Enoch Pond:

"In the first place, I remark that Cotton Mather was a sincere believer in the reality and not infrequent occurrence of what in his day was denominated witchcraft. He also believed that the crime of witchcraft, when proved, was justly punishable with death. Nor was his faith in regard to these points at all singular. It was the common faith of Christendom, and had been so for hundreds of years. Persons who have not attended particularly to the subject can have no idea of the extent to which the supposed crime of witchcraft has prevailed in different countries, and the multitudes of deaths which it has occasioned. In the latter part of the sixteenth century not only hundreds but thousands were put to death, — many of them by the extremest tortures, — in Germany, France, and Spain, under the imputation of witchcraft. In 1612 fifteen persons were indicted and twelve executed in Lancashire, England; and in 1634 seventeen more were executed in the same country. The Rev. Thomas Cooper, one of the ministers of this country, in his 'Mystery of Witchcraft,' published in 1617, says: 'Doth not every assize, almost, throughout the land resound of the arraignment and conviction of notorious witches?' Between the years 1644 and 1646 the celebrated witch-hunter, Matthew Hopkins, was encouraged and employed to visit different parts of England, ferret out those who dealt with familiar spirits, and bring them to justice. Through his instrumentality sixteen were executed at Yarmouth, fifteen at Chelmsford, one at Cambridge, several in Huntingdon, and sixty in the single county of Suffolk (these are only some of the cases mentioned of in the old world long before Cotton Mather was born). Sir William Blackstone, the great oracle of British law, who died no longer ago than 1780, declared his belief in witchcraft in the following terms: "To deny the possibility, nay, the actual existence of witchcraft and sorcery, is at once flatly to contradict the revealed Word of God, in various passages, both of the Old and New Testaments; and the thing itself is a truth to which every nation in the world hath, in its turn, borne testimony, either by examples seemingly well-attested, or by prohibitory laws which at least suppose the possibility of commerce with evil spirits."

In New England, at the time of Cotton Mather, the belief in witchcraft may be said to have been universal. The most experienced physicians who were called to prescribe for the afflicted persons, and the most eminent ministers who were invited to pray with them, did not hesitate to pronounce them bewitched. Even those persons who had the least sympathy with the Mathers on some subjects, as Thomas and William Brattle, John Leverett, and Robert Calef, all agreed with them as to the reality of witchcraft.

In the year 1694, two years subsequent to the executions at Salem, a paper was issued by the President and Fellows of Harvard College, and signed, among others, by Samuel Willard, John Leverett, and William Brattle, inviting observation and information concerning "apparitions, possessions, enchantments, and all extraordinary things wherein the existence and agency of the invisible world is more sensibly demonstrated." Nor was the belief in witchcraft in this country confined to New England.

In the early settlement of Pennsylvania William Penn presided on the bench when two Swedish women were tried for witchcraft, both of whom would have been condemned and executed but for some technical error in the indictment.

The French and Dutch ministers of New York, when their opinion was asked by the Chief Justice of that province, replied in writing: "If we believe in no venetic witchcraft, we must renounce the Scripture of God and the consent of almost all the world."

The last book that the celebrated Richard Baxter ever published was a treatise on the immortality of the soul and the reality of the world of spirits, established by undoubted cases of apparitions, possessions, witchcrafts, &c.; and so late as the year 1720, Dr. Isaac Watts, in a letter to Cotton Mather respecting the Salem witchcraft, says: "I am persuaded that there was much immediate agency of the Devil in those affairs, and perhaps there were some real witches."

I have cited these testimonies for the purpose of showing at one view how general, and I might say almost universal, was the belief in witchcraft in the times in which he lived. Cotton Mather was not singular in his opinions on this subject. He would have been singular if he had indulged other opinions. He spoke the truth when he said, in his reply to Cider: "I know not that I have ever advanced any opinion in the matter of witchcraft but what all the ministers of the Lord that I know of in the world, whether English or Scotch or French or Dutch (and I know many) are of the same opinion with me."

If there was any difference between Mr. Mather and his contemporaries on the point before us it was perhaps this: that owing to his natural credulity and love of the marvelous, he was more sincere and earnest in his belief than some of them; a fact of considerable importance in this inquiry, and which, if duly considered, will go, not to inculcate, but rather to excuse him. "Dr. Mather did not originate this belief in New England; there were cases of it here before he was born, and in 1662, the year of his birth, there were three executed in Hartford." In 1692, when Cotton Mather was only thirty years of age, the Salem witchcraft seemed to be at the greatest stage of its development. In May one hundred persons were in jail; about one in five of them were executed.

In Great Britain, during the era of the Long Parliament, three thousand persons are said to have perished for witchcraft during the continuance of the sittings of that body by legal executions, independently of summary deaths at the hands of the mob. Witch executions continued long after that. Elizabeth, in 1562, first made witchcraft in itself a crime of the first magnitude. King James VI. in the first year of his reign, defines the crime very minutely.

The trial of the witches in Salem were by seven judges, whose names stand as among the very best in our land. They were Lieut. Gov. Stoughton, Major Saltonstall, Major Godney, Mr. Wait Winthrop, Capt. Sewall, and Mr. Sargeant. After they had tried and condemned one, and executed that one, they hesitated. The cases multiplied. The jails were overflowing with the accused. "What shall be done?"

was the question that passed from mouth to mouth. At this stage Cotton Mather made a proposal far more characteristic of him than ambition or cruelty. He offered that if the possessed people who were under accusation might be scattered far asunder, he would singly provide for six of them, and see whether, without more bitter methods, prayer with fasting would not put an end to these heavy trials.

This offer was refused, as we might suppose, for all men had not the same faith as our pastor had in these remedies. But that he was in earnest in his offer is evident, not only from the general tone of his opinions and practice, but also from the fact that he himself, during the witchcraft trials, spent a day almost every week in secret fasting and prayer. But the matter was in the courts, and through the courts it must go, and by the courts be decided. Only before proceeding further the Governor and Council, according to an old charter practice, asked the advice of the clergy of Boston. A paper was drawn up by them, the author of which was Cotton Mather, containing eight articles of advice. It recommends "a very critical and exquisite caution" in the conduct of the prosecution, and managed with an "exceeding tenderness to the accused"; it suggests "as little noise, company, and openness as possible." The answer to the Governor and Council also advised the prosecution "according to the directions given in the laws of God and the wholesome statutes of the English nation."

I will add a few more lines from Rev. Dr. Chandler Robbins, to whom I am indebted for some of the foregoing:

"That he was under the influence of any bad motives, any sanguinary feelings; that he did not verily think he was doing God's service, and the devil injury; that he would not gladly have prevented the disorderly proceedings of the courts, the application of unlawful tests, and everything unmerciful in the trials, and inhuman in their issue, the most careful examination has failed to make me believe."

On the Mather Tomb are the following inscriptions:

"The Reverend Doctors
INCREASE, COTTON AND SAMUEL MATHER
were interred in this Vault.

Tis the Tomb of Our Fathers,
I Died Aug^r 27th 1723 Ae 84
C Died Feb. 13th 1727 Ae 65
S Died June 27th 1755 Ae 79"

Since the burial of Miss Rebecca E. Parker, who died Dec. 5, 1884, the description of the Mather Tomb was published, and may be of interest.

"Much has been written in books and newspapers in regard to the contents of the family tomb of Cotton Mather in the Copp's Hill Burying Ground, and a correspondent of a New York paper, some time ago, ventured the assertion that the bones of the Mathers were heaped promiscuously in one large box. To prove that this statement was an error, occasion was taken by Superintendent MacDonald on Monday, when the body of Rebecca E. Parker, the last owner of the tomb, who died at the age of eighty six years, was consigned to its last resting place, to ascertain the real contents of the vault. The tomb is a sunken arch of brick 30 by 40 feet, with an entrance of four feet by five, approached by a series of steps. There are six shelves in the vault, three of them containing two coffins each, the other three holding nine coffins. There are twenty other coffins, all evidently containing the ashes of the Mathers. On the upper shelf is a coffin enclosed in a pine box, containing the body of a Mrs. Hooker not a member of the family. It is supposed that the New York correspondent, at a previous opening of the tomb, mistook this plain box for a miscellaneous receptacle. The brick work of the vault is in excellent order.

"The Mrs. Hooker to whom reference was made in our article on the Mather tomb, in last Thursday's paper, was the wife of Dr. A. Hooker of Cambridgeport, and was a great-great-granddaughter of Cotton Mather. Her mother (mère Crocker) married a Mr. Parker. Her grandmother (mère Mather) married a Mr. Crocker."

The following account of the death and funeral of Dr. Cotton Mather is what was taken from the New England Weekly Journal, of the 19th and 26th of February, 1728:

"Last Tuesday in the Forenoon between 8 and 9 O'clock died here the very Reverend Cotton Mather, Doctor in Divinity of Glasco, and Fellow of the Royal Society in London, Senior Pastor of the Old North church in Boston, and an Overseer of Harvard College: By whose death, Persons of all Ranks are in Concern and sorrow. He was perhaps the principal Ornament of this Country, the greatest Scholar that ever was bred in it. But besides his universal Learning; his exalted Piety and extensive Charity, his entertaining Wit, and singular goodness of Temper recommended him to all, that were Judges of real and distinguished merit.

"After having spent above Forty seven years in the faithful and unwearied Discharge of a lively, zealous, and awakening ministry, and in incessant endeavours to do good and spread abroad the Glory of Christ, he finished his Course with a divine Composure and Joy: the day after his Birth Day, which completed his Sixty-Fifth year, being born Feb. 13, 1692-3."

"On Monday last, the Remains of the Late very Reverend and Learned Dr. Cotton Mather who deceased on Tuesday the 13th Instant to the great Loss and Sorrow of this Town and Country, were very honourably interred. His Reverend Colleague in deep Mourning, with the Brethren of the Church, walking in a Body before the Corps. The six first Ministers of the Boston Lecture supported the Pall, several Gentlemen of the bereaved Flock took their turns to bear the Coffin, after which followed, first the bereaved Relatives in Mourning; then his Honour the Lieutenant Governor, the Honourable His Majesty's Council, and House of Representatives; and then a large Train of Ministers, Justice, Merchants, Schoolers and other principal Inhabitants, both Men and Women. The Streets were crowded with People, and the Windows fill'd with sorrowful Spectators, all the way to the Burying Place: where the Corpse was deposited in a Tomb belonging to the worthy Family." THE MATHER TOMB AT COPP'S HILL, Near Boston.

The following extract is taken from the Historical Sketches of old Copp's Hill and Burial Ground, published July 5th, 1885:

"The most noted tomb in the ground, and the one almost invariably the first inquired for by people from other States and even from Europe, is that of Reverend COTTON MATHER. It is near the Charter Street gate, and is a simple vault of brick upon which rests a heavy slab of brown stone into which two separate squares of slate have been set—one of recent date, and the other bearing marks of age—with the following inscription, which is almost illegible:

THE REVEREND DOCTORS
INCREASE. COTTON,
& SAMUEL MATHER

were interred in this Vault.

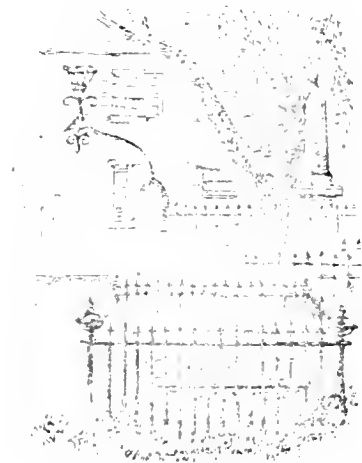

'Tis the Tomb of our Father's

MATHER - CROCKER'S

I DIED Augt 27th 1723 AE 84

C DIED FEB 13th 1727 AE 65

S DIED June 27th 1785 AE 79

"In addition to these clergymen, the vault contains the remains of many of their descendants. It was last opened about fifteen years ago, when one of the Crocker family was deposited under its arch; the relics of these ancient worthies were found mingled in great confusion. There is an air of quiet decay about the spot that is very suggestive of the transitory nature of all that is mortal. Above it large trees cast a semi-gloom which discourages the growth of grass and shrubbery, and the tooth of time has gnawed deeply into both brick and stone. It is surrounded by a neat iron fence, stone curbing has been placed underneath, and the ground inside the fence newly sodded. By the mutations of family descent the tomb is now owned by Miss Rebecca E. Parker, who wishes to maintain it in as good condition as possible, and do nothing to destroy the sacred character of the property. The famous Napoleon willow (grown from a slip brought by Captain Joseph Leonard from the tree at the grave of Napoleon at St. Helena, and transplanted here by Roland Ellis of Boston, in 1844), now shades another burial plat, and covers the monument and tomb of the Ellis family at the Charter Street gate."

[N. B. — This was the last sermon my Father delivered from the Pulpit; and truly such a Sermon as a good minister would desire should be his last.]

Since the death of Dr. Cotton Mather, two sermons he had prepared for the press have been published. Their titles are, "The Willow of Nain," "The Mystical Marriage." These two make the number of his books to be three hundred and eighty-three.

The above statement is given by his son, Rev. Dr. Samuel Mather. Cotton Mather's most extensive work was never published — "Biblia Americana" — which is in manuscript in the Massachusetts Historical Society of Boston. These papers have been preserved with the greatest care, and, though more than a century and a half old, present a very fresh appearance. It took Mr. Mather over thirty of the last years of his life to complete it, and had he felt able to have paid so much money as it would require, it would have been published.

In 1713 Cotton Mather was elected a fellow of the Royal Society of London, being the first American that had received this distinction.

Dr. Mather Byles graduated at Harvard College, 1725; was highly educated, and received a call from the Hollis Street Church to become its first pastor: was ordained Dec. 20, 1733, and remained with them until 1776. He died July 5, 1758, at the age of 82.

It was said that during the Revolutionary War he sympathized with the British, and in 1776 his connection with his church ceased. In person Dr. Byles was tall, well proportioned, and of commanding appearance. He had a melodious and powerful voice, was very popular in his manner. He had among his correspondents Lansdowne, Pope, and Watts. He was the father of Mather Byles, graduate of Harvard College, 1751, and who was settled in New London, Conn., over a Congregational Church in 1757; afterwards became an Episcopalian, and settled in St. Johns, N. B. Among their descendants were many influential families, the Des Brisays-Almons, and others of note.

24 Rev. Samuel Mather⁶ (son Rev. Dr. Increase⁴, Rev. Richard⁵, Thomas², John¹). of Witney, Oxfordshire, Eng. Born at Boston, Mass., Aug. 26, 1674; died in Witney, Oxfordshire, Eng.; married.

CHILDREN.

Had seven daughters, all but one married, no sons.

The records of this family I have not been able to obtain. I was at Witney in July, 1887, and, by the assistance of William Seely, Esq., an antiquarian, we endeavored to get what facts we could of the family of Mr. M.; also of the early church records. We found the records very meagre, and little light afforded as to Mr. Mather's labors there. It stated "that Mr. Mather built the church about the year 1700, or a little later; that at his death he was buried in St. Mary's Church-yard." I visited the church-yard, but did not succeed in finding the stone bearing his name, from the fact, I think, that the stones there are not in condition to be read after a period of 100 years. The faces of them crumble off. The Rector of St. Mary's Church was to examine for Mr. Seely the burial records to find out the date of his death, but we have not learned the result.

Rev. Dr. Enoch Pond writes of him "that he was the third and youngest son of Dr. Increase Mather. He was instructed in classical learning by his elder brother, Nathaniel, and was with his father in England at the time of Nathaniel's death. The following is a part of a letter which he wrote to his afflicted friends on that mournful occasion: "When I parted from him (Nathaniel) not a year ago I hoped it would not have been my last farewell; but I now lament my unhappiness in that I gained no more by him. And yet I must acknowledge that the little understanding which God has given me in the Hebrew or Greek tongues was by that brother as the instrument; so that I shall have cause whilst I live to honor his memory. I cannot but know that if I should not fear and love the God of my brothers and fathers, and of my grandfathers, the nearest relatives I ever had in the world will be witnesses against me at the last day."

It is doubtful whether this Mr. Samuel Mather ever returned from England to America. He received his first degree at Harvard College in the year 1690, but it was probably sent to him, as he could not have been present in Cambridge at that time. He became "a faithful and useful minister of the Gospel at Witney, in Oxfordshire." "He was the writer," says Cotton Mather, "of several valuable treatises, among which his 'Vindication of the Doctrine of the Trinity,' and his 'Vindication of the Deity of the Holy Spirit,' and his 'Vindication of the Sacred Scriptures,' shine forth with a particular lustre, and challenge a name for him among the blessings of his age."

Nathaniel Mather, the brother of Cotton and Samuel, died Oct. 17, 1688, at the age of 19 years. In the Charter Street Cemetery in Salem, Mass., is this epitaph:

"Memento Mori."
Mr. Nathaniel Mather Dec^r October y^e 17th 1688
An aged person
That had seen
But nineteen winters
In the world."

"Life of Nathaniel Mather," a book of Nathaniel Mather, was published about thirty years ago, containing letters from Matthew Mead, London, June 17, 1689; from his uncle, Samuel Mather of London, Feb. 5, 1689; from his brother Cotton Mather, of Boston, regarding Nathaniel; also Nathaniel's diary, the title of the book, "Early Piety Exemplified."

"Look at his face; 'tis childhood's, young and fair;
Look at his soul, and manhood's strength is there."

He was a very learned young man, and gave promise of a brilliant future, but his excessive study, by night as well as by day, carried him to a premature grave.

Dr. Samuel Mather graduated at Harvard College in 1698, and was licensed to practice medicine by the General Assembly in 1702. This license is as follows:

[L. s.] COUNT. ss.

At a General Assembly Holden at Hartford, May 14, 1702, upon the recommendation of the Rev. Samuel Mather, Dr. Thomas Hooker, and Mr. John Fisk, this Assembly doth license Mr. Samuel Mather, Jr., of the town of Windsor, to be a Practitioner of Physick & Chyrurgy in this Colonie.

In testimony that the above written is a true copy, I have caused the seal of his Majesty's Colonie to be hereunto assigned & subscribed."

ELEAZER KIMBERLY, Sec'y.

"After a life of professional usefulness, during which he held various civil and military offices of trust and honor, he died Feb. 6, 1745, in the 68th year of his age. He was the father of Mr. Nathaniel Mather of Windsor (who lived upon the island), who was the father of Elijah Mather; and also of Col. Oliver Mather, late of Windsor."

"Doct. Mather studied with Doct. Thomas Hooker of Hartford. He was the cotemporary and intimate friend of Elliot, and was greatly distinguished as a scholar and physician. At the time of his death no man stood so high in the public confidence or had so extensive a medical practice in the State as Dr. Mather. He visited every section of country in a circuit of forty or fifty miles as a counsellor, and was as greatly venerated for many excellent virtues as for science and skill as a physician. He left a number of descendants who were distinguished men, amongst others his grandson, Dr. Charles Mather, formerly of East Windsor, but more recently of Hartford, who was a distinguished and successful accoucher. Dr. Charles Mather died in Hartford in 1823, at the age of 81 years."

31 Rev. Azariah Mather^o (son of Rev. Samuel^h, Timothyⁱ, Rev. Richard^g, Thomas^g, John^g), of Saybrook, Conn. Born Aug. 29, 1685; died Feb. 11, 1736, age 51; married Mattie Taylor, granddaughter of Sir John Davie, a baronet in England who came to this country and returned to England.

Rev. Azariah Mather graduated at Yale College 1705. In 1710 he succeeded Rev. Thomas Buckingham as pastor of the first church established in Saybrook (1613). Mr. Mather had been a tutor in the college at Saybrook, and had enjoyed an opportunity to become acquainted with the people during his tutorship. As a linguist he greatly excelled, and was an able divine. A sermon was published by him in Latin on "Being Baptized for the Dead." Three of his sermons were published, viz.: "Woe to Sleepy Sinners," 1729; "Sabbath Day Rest," *; "An Election Sermon," 1725. He was dismissed in 1732 and died in 1737. A tombstone is erected to the memory of Mr. Mather at Saybrook with the following epitaph:

"AZARIAH MATHER Born in Windsor Aug. 29, 1685.
Expired in Saybrook Feb. 11, 1736
Aetatis suae 52

A general scholar, an eminent Christian, a very great sufferer.
But now in glory a triumpher.
He many weeks felt death's attacks,
But fervent prayers kept him back.
His faith and patience was to try
And learn us how to live and die.
Having the wings of faith and love,
And feathers of a holy dove.
He bids the world adieu,
And wisely up to heaven he flew.
Disturb not then his precious dust
With censurs that are most unjust."

Rev. Dr. Samuel Mather visited Europe when a young man, but have no knowledge of his travels in that country. He probably visited his uncle, the Rev. Samuel Mather, who was a preacher in Witney, in Oxfordshire. At the age of thirteen he entered Harvard College, graduated 1723, at age of seventeen. He probably studied Theology under the direction of his father, and it is said he soon obtained a good reputation. In 1732 he was chosen colleague with Rev. Mr. Gee of the second church in Boston, in which his father Cotton grandfather Increase, and great-uncle Samuel were preachers before him. He remained in this connection nine years. There was some division in this church, and Mr. Mather, by mutual agreement and consent, separated with a portion of the church, and a house of worship was erected for them in North Bennett Street, and with this people Mr. Mather continued until his death in 1785.

He was a man of learning, of piety, and of sound Orthodoxy, but not a captivating preacher. He was restrained to controversy, but whenever he saw the interest of truth in danger was ready to make a defense for it. He was amiable, retiring, and unobtrusive. He wished his funeral to be strictly private, as will be shown by this extract from his will, which wish was, it is said, strictly carried out. The item referred to is the following.

"When therefore my body is to be deposited in the same tomb with the remains of my honored father and grandfather, and of many other esteemed relatives—beside my most respectable and beloved wife, I would have only bell tolled just before sun-down, and that for five minutes, for I am not willing that sick and infirm persons should be disturbed with a lengthy noise at the carrying of the body of my humiliation to the silent grave and just after the ceasing of the bell, I would have my body in the coffin to be carried out by porters of the same day with myself to the tomb ready for it, and only such of my own family as are well to follow it, that they may see where it is deposited, and before night to have it properly enclosed, and I should be glad to have no funeral ceremonies."

Dr. Mather's eldest son was a loyalist and was in Europe at the time of his father's death. I have letters of his written to his father from London, also from France. This son returned to this country after the death of his father, and settled in Mattapan in the house now owned by Thomas Hinckley, Esq., the painter. The son died in Boston 1813. Another son, Dr. Thomas Mather, was a surgeon in the Provincial regiment, and died in Nova Scotia, in 1762. I have a letter written that year to his sister in Boston. A daughter Hannah married Joseph Crocker, and some of their descendants were buried in the Mather tomb at Copp's Hill.

This ends the list of the Mather clergy of Dorchester and Boston. From 1635 to 1785 the Mathers were preachers, and it was called the Mather Dynasty.

Dr. Samuel Mather's publications commenced in 1728 on the death of his father, the next year in 1729; other of his works appear 1732, 1733, 1738, 1739, 1740, 1751, 1758, 1760, 1762, 1766-1768, 1773, and the last in 1782.

Sketches of the early Mathers can be found in the writings of Rev. Dr. Chandler Robbins, formerly pastor of the second church in Boston, Rev. Dr. Wm. B. Sprague of Albany, Rev. Dr. Daniel Dana, and James Savage, and many others.

"In the name of God Amen." That is to say, principally and first of all, I give and recommend my soul into the hand of God that gave it, and my body, at death, I give to the earth to be buried in decent Christian burial, and at discretion of my executors hereafter to be named, hoping again to receive the same at the resurrection of the just. And as touching my worldly estate, wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me in this present life, and dispose of the same in the following manner and form, viz.: Inprimis — I give & bequeath to my beloved wife Sarah Mather, one-third part of my house & barn & homestead, and all my improveable lands, to use and improve during her natural life, and also one cow, one bed & furniture, and also my negro woman named Kate, to her & to her heirs forever.

"Item. I give & bequeath to my son, Joseph Mather, and to his heirs and assigns forever, One hundred pounds money, old tenor, to be paid him out of my estate when he shall arrive at the age of 21 years, according to the appraisement of my estate.

"Eliakim Mather, of Windsor, who lived during the Revolution, declared the taking of his clock weights to be made into bullets an illegal act. He took an oath that his clock should stand without weights until the authority which took them away should return them. Through all the long thirty years of the old man's after-life the old clock was to him an unmoved witness of his persevering observance of his oath, and when, at the age of eighty-four, he looked for the last time upon the face of his clock it still gave no sound."

Rev. Dr. Moses Mather graduated at Yale College 1739, and was settled in Darien, Conn., formerly the parish of Middlesex, in the town of Stamford, Conn. The church over which he was settled was erected in 1740. A picture of this old church is to be found in John W. Barber's Historical Collections of Connecticut. He says, "that during the Revolutionary War, a considerable number of persons disaffected to the American cause, resided in this vicinity. On Sunday, the 22d of July, 1781, a party of British troops, consisting chiefly of refugees, surrounded this church and took the congregation prisoners. The Rev. Dr. Moses Mather was at the time pastor of the church, a divine distinguished for his piety, learning, and most exemplary life. It was the intention of the refugees, or Tories, to have taken the congregation prisoners during the morning service, but some members of the congregation who were peculiarly obnoxious to them, not attending church in the forenoon, they kept concealed till the afternoon services commenced. While the congregation were singing the first hymn, the refugees, commanded by a Capt. Frost, sprang over the fence and suddenly surrounded the house. Two or three young men, who happened to discover them in season, jumped out of the windows and effected their escape. Two guns were fired at them by the refugees, who did not think it prudent to fire any more, as the firing of three guns would have been the signal of alarm agreed upon by the inhabitants of this place to give notice of any invasion of the enemy. The men of the congregation were taken out of the church, tied two and two, and Dr. Mather was placed at their head. The refugees then took about forty horses belonging to the congregation, mounted them, and marched their prisoners to the shore, and thence conveyed them to Lloyds Neck on Long Island. Then after a short stop they were marched to New York and confined in prison. Some of the congregation who were taken off never returned; these probably perished in the prison, others were paroled, and some returned after having suffered severely by the small pox. A writer in one of the British publications of the day, in giving an account of this expedition, made himself merry in describing the outcry which the women made at the time the men were taken prisoners, as though it were nothing to have husbands, fathers, and brothers separated from them by an armed force and taken off to distant prisons. A son of Dr. Mather was more fortunate than the rest. As the refugees entered the church he sprang under the seat, and the women sitting before him their backs hid him from their observation.

Dr. Mather having been taken into New York, was confined in the Provost prison. Here his food was stinted and wretched to a degree not easily imagined. His lodging corresponded with his food, and his company, to a considerable extent, was made of mere rabble; their conversation, from which he could not retreat, was composed of profaneness and ribaldry. Here also he was insulted daily by the Provost Marshal, whose name was Cunningham, a wretch remembered in this country with detestation. This wretch, with other kinds of abuse, took a particular satisfaction in announcing from time to time, to Dr. Mather, that on that day, tomorrow, or some other time at a little distance, he was to be executed.

But Dr. Mather was not without his friends; friends, however, who knew nothing of him except his character. A lady of distinction

(who was supposed to be the mother of Washington Irving), having learned his circumstances, and having obtained the necessary permission, sent to him clothes and food and comforts with a very liberal hand."

Dr. Mather died Sept. 21, 1806, venerated by all who knew him, in the 88th year of his age. He was educated at Yale College, of which he was a Fellow thirteen years.

Rev. Dr. Moses Mather preached a sermon in the audience of the General Assembly of the State of Connecticut, in Hartford, on the day of their Anniversary Election, May 10, 1751. Printed in New London by Timothy Green, printer. — To the Governor and Company, MDCCLXXXI. The text was taken from II Chronicles, ix, chapter, 8th verse. A number of other sermons were published by Dr. Mather.

Dr. Mather up to 1804 had baptized 924 persons, had solemnized 304 marriages, admitted to his church 258, and 164 owned the covenant. There were 766 deaths in the parish. The first meeting-house stood until 1867.

The degree of D. D. was conferred upon Rev. Dr. Moses Mather by the College of New Jersey in 1791. Was Fellow of Yale 1777—1790. Some of Mr. Mather's writings were:

HISTORY OF MOSES MATHER, D.D.

Dr. Dwight says of him:

“Dr. Mather was a man distinguished for learning and piety, a strong understanding, and a most exemplary life. His natural temper was grave and unbending. His candor was that of the Gospel—the wisdom which is from above—which, while it is ‘pure and peaceable,’ is also ‘without partiality.’”

Dr. Sprague’s “Annals of the American Pulpit” contains an interesting letter from Rev. Mark Mead of Greenwich, which gives us the following delineation of his personal appearance and social character:

“He was a man of about the middle stature, rather slender than otherwise, of a pleasant expression of countenance, and free and easy in conversation. Dr. Mather, though generally a poor man, had a rich vein of humor, of which there still remain many traditions. A man in his parish who pretended to be a sort of half Quaker, half infidel, and who was a member of the vigilance committee in the revolution, as he was riding in company with him on horseback, said to him, ‘Your master used to ride an ass and how is it that you ride a horse?’ ‘Because,’ said the doctor, ‘the asses are all taken up for committee men.’”

“Dr. Mather used to wear a long, rounded, Quaker coat, with very large brass buttons from top to bottom. The Quakers at that time used to wear buttons made of apple tree, and just enough to fasten their coats. The same man mentioned above, on meeting Dr. Mather one day, said to him—‘Moses, why does thee wear so many buttons on thy coat?’ ‘To show you,’ said the Doctor, ‘that my religion does not consist in a button.’”

The following extracts from the Records of the Parish of Middlesex (now Darien), Conn., are given both as a matter of history and to show the peculiar methods prevailing in settling and supporting pastors in the early history of New England. Doubtless the records of other parishes would show equally quaint proceedings:

“The society met at the meeting-house in Middlesex, January the 25th, 1712, . . . by major vote determined to send a man to get some candidate to preach in and for the society for three months on supply with yr^e advice and approbation of the ministry . . . chose and appointed Mr. Jun^r Raymond to be the man to go in pursuance to s^t vote and try to obtain some candidate that is approved on to preach in and for s^d society for three months on supply.”

"At a meeting of y^e society of Middlesex, March y^e 30th, 1742, agreed to hire a minister for three or four months upon supply to preach y^e gospel in and for s^d society chose Stanford Jun^r Reed and Jonth Bell. Either of them to go and do their faithful endeavor to obtain a man to preach y^e gospel in and for s^d society for three or four months upon supply."

"At a meeting of y^e Society of Middlesex, July y^e 28th, 1742, the society manifested their desires to improve [employ] Mr. Moses Mather in preaching y^e gospel if to be obtained by major vote agreed to apply to y^e association of ministers by a committee for their advice desiring to improve Mr. Moses Mather in order to a settlement in y^e gospel ministry in s^d Middlesex, if to be obtained, otherwise some other person that y^e association doth advise unto."

"At a legal meeting of y^e Society of Middlesex, August y^e 4th, 1742 by major vote agreed that y^e committee they choose to apply to y^e association for advice should treat with Mr. Mather and desire him to continue with the society, and to preach with them on supply as heretofore."

"At a legal meeting of y^e Society of Middlesex, Septem^{br} y^e 1st, 1742, y^e society granted y^e Rev. Mr. Mather right to preach in any part of Middlesex parish on any needful occasion, as often as he shall see fit at s^d meeting y^e society by major vote agreed y^e committee, to say: Stanford Jun^r Reed and Eⁿ Jonth Bell and Mr. Sam^l Bishop should make inquiry to see whether or not the society have a privilege granted to have a church gathered and settled in s^d society."

"At a meeting of y^e Society of Middlesex, April y^e 8th, 1743, by vote of y^e society that they liked Mr. Mather so well as that they were willing to have him for their minister in a convenient time and chose Mr. Jun^r Raymond, Mr. Jun^r Reed, and Mr. Jonth Bell a committee to treat with Mr. Mather about a settlement."

"The society met August the 24th, 1743, according to adjournment, and at s^d meeting the society by a major vote proposed to give Mr. Moses Mather five hundred pounds settlement of old tenor, and to pay the same in five years at five payments to say one hundred pounds a year yearly till the whole be paid for his encouragement and in consideration of his being the settled pastor and teacher of y^e gospel to y^e people of s^d society of Middlesex. At s^d meeting the s^d society by a major vote proposed to give Mr. Moses Mather one hundred and fifty pounds salary, old tenor, by the year, yearly during the space of five years."

"At a meeting of the Society of Middlesex, Decem^{br} y^e 6th, 1743, it was granted by a major vote of the society, that they will give Mr. Moses Mather, who is now resident among them for his settlement and salary, the sum of fifty-five pounds of lawful money of Connecticut yearly, from year to year.

annually, as long as he continues their prispatran minister, and the payments are to be in money or any of our country produce that currently passes from man to man, all to be understood to be as good as lawful money of Connecticut."

"At a meeting of the Society of Middlesex, Decem^{ber} the 28th, 1743, Mr Moses Mather gave in his answer to the society in s^d meeting as follows: Gentlemen: Inasmuch as you have made several propositions to me of settling among you in y^e work of the ministry, I would hereby signify my willingness to serve you in the Lord, and if for my support among you while I shall remain your lawful minister, according to the platform of the churches in Connecticut, you will see fit to grant me an annual pension of fifty-five pounds of lawful money of Connecticut, to be paid in money or any medium of trade, such as bills of the old tenor currency, or in the country produce that is merchantable as it currently passes from man to man, all to be understood as agreeable and acceptable as lawful money, you may expect my concurrence and acceptance, so shall remain your servant in Christ,

MOSES MATHER.

At s^d meeting the s^d Society of Middlesex having had and considered the above proposals did consent unto and confirm the same by a major vote."

"At a meeting of the society of Middlesex, February the 9th, 1744, the society agreed by a major vote to have Mr Moses Mather, who is now resident among them, to be ordained and to take the pastoral and ministerial charge over the s^d society in Middlesex as soon as shall be thought to be a convenient time.

At s^d meeting the s^d society by a major vote agreed that the yearly and annual pension of fifty-five pounds lawful money of Connecticut, which was granted to him by the vote of y^e s^d society at their legal meeting, Decem^{ber} y^e 28th, 1743, in consideration of his being and continuing their lawful minister according to y^e platform of the churches in Connecticut and to be paid to him in such medium of trade or provisions as is mentioned in s^d vote to be equal or equivalent to s^d fifty-five pounds lawful money, shall begin on the first day of next March ensuing.

At s^d meeting the s^d society by a major vote agreed upon and appointed the first Wednesday of next June ensuing, to be the day in which Mr Moses Mather should be ordained and sel^d over them in the Lord."

"At a meeting of y^e society of Middlesex, January y^e 21st, 1744, the society, by a major vote, chose C^p J^r Raymond Moderator of s^d meeting, whereas the society of Middlesex, at their meeting on y^e 25th of May, 1744, by their vote agreed to give a certain sum in specie, as therein mentioned, to Mr. Moses Mather for his salary, &c., in case he accepted of y^e same; and whereas there may arise some dispute concerning s^d agreement, y^e s^d Mr. Mather not being then settled among us, and, because of some other uncertainties therein, and whereas y^e s^d Mr. Mather is since ordained and settled in y^e ministry in this society, this society, by vote in this meeting do agree to give and do hereby grant, unto the Rev. Mr. Moses Mather, the present settled minister in y^e gospel in this society, for his salary for and towards his annual support during his continuing to be the settled minister in this society, the sum of forty-six pounds in silver sterling alloy, at the rate of six shillings and eight pence p^r ounce troy weight, which amounts to one hundred and thirty-eight ounces, the s^d salary to be paid in silver as afores^d, or in y^e produce of the country, at the rate and price following, viz.: wheat at three shillings p^r bushel, or rye at two shillings p^r bushel, or Indian corn at one shilling and six pence p^r bushel, or barley at two shillings and ten pence p^r bushel, or oats at one shilling p^r bushel, or flax at four pence p^r pound, or pork at two pence farthing p^r pound, or beef at one penny farthing p^r pound, all to be good and merchantable, and that this agreement shall be the stated and standing rule and agreement between this society and y^e s^d Mr. Mather respecting his yearly salary, and that all former votes and agreements respecting s^d salary to be null and void, anything therein to y^e contrary notwithstanding: provided that y^e Rev. Mr. Moses Mather, by writing under his hand, agree and consent to y^e above vote and accept of what is therein granted or agreed to be given in lieu of all other grants respecting his salary, and have the same recorded under this vote; then the above agreement to abide and remain the standing agreement between s^d society and y^e s^d Mr. Mather."

"January 21, 1744. Know all men by these presents, that I, Moses Mather, do consent to and confirm y^e above mentioned proposal, which is this day made to me by the society of Middlesex, of paying to me the sum of forty-six pounds in silver at six and eight pence p^r ounce, to be paid in silver as afores^d, or in wheat at three shillings p^r bushel, or rye at two shillings p^r bushel, or Indian corn at one shilling and six pence p^r bushel, or barley at two shillings and ten pence p^r bushel, or oats at one shilling p^r bushel, or flax at four pence per pound, or pork at two pence farthing p^r pound, or beef at penny farthing p^r pound, as mentioned in y^e above proposal, consented to, I say, and confirmed by me as the steady agreement between me and y^e society respecting my yearly salary, which salary shall be paid in which specie the people please, as witness my hand,

MOSES MATHER."

"The society of Middlesex met on y^e 25th of May, 1744, according to adjournment, and at s^d meeting the committee made report to y^e society of their proposals with Mr. Moses Mather concerning his salary, to be stated as follows, viz.: for the society to pay Mr. Moses Mather for his stated salary and settlement for his support in y^e ministry forty-six pounds of money, to be paid to him in silver at six shillings and eight pence p^r ounce, which in the whole amounts to one hundred and thirty-eight ounces, to be paid to him yearly, or to be paid in wheat at three shillings p^r bushel, or rye at two shillings p^r bushel, or Indian corn at one shilling and six pence p^r bushel, or barley at two shillings and tenpence p^r bushel, or oats at one shilling p^r bushel, or flax at four pence p^r pound, or pork at two pence farthing p^r pound or beef at one penny farthing p^r pound, all to be good and merchantable.

"At s^t meeting Mr. Moses Mather agreed to y^e above proposal, and was pleas^d to give in writing to y^e society that he would assent of these or either of these instead of both salary and settlement, all former votes to y^e contrary with respect to his salary notwithstanding."

"At an adjourned meeting, May y^e 25th, 1744, to the Society of Middlesex to be convened this day in a society meeting, Gentlemen: I would hereby show my willingness to accept of forty-six pounds of money, to be paid to me in silver at six shillings and eight pence p^r ounce, which in the whole amounts to one hundred and thirty-eight ounces, or to be paid in wheat at three shillings p^r bushel, or rye at two shillings p^r bushel, or Indian corn at one shilling and six pence p^r bushel, or flax at four pence p^r pound, or pork at two pence farthing p^r pound, or beef at one penny farthing p^r pound, all to be good and merchantable. These or either of these I say I will accept of, instead of both salary and settlement, all former votes to the contrary with respect to my salary and settlement notwithstanding; and so I shall remain yours to serve in Christ."

At a meeting of the Society of Middlesex, the 19th day of February Anno Dom. 1766 at the School House in said society.

1. At the same meeting, choose Ensign Nathan Reed to be the Moderator for said meeting.

2. At the same meeting, Voted, That the underwritten discharge, given by the Rev. Mr. Moses Mather, shall be recorded, and is as followeth, viz.:

Know all men by these presents: that, whereas the agreement made between me, Moses Mather, of Stanford in Fairfield County, and the Society of Middlesex in said county, at the time of my settlement in the work of the ministry in said society, respecting the sum that I was to receive yearly from said society, is differently understood; some supposing that what I have received from said society in years past, according to the yearly votes of said society, has exceeded the sum first agreed upon, according to the true intent and meaning of s^t agreement; and on the other hand there are some who suppose that the several sums granted yearly to me by said society have not amounted to but have come short of the sum first agreed upon, according to the true intent and meaning of said agreement, and from these various sentiments do arise disputes and discords, for the putting an end to and preventing which I, y^e s^t Moses Mather, for myself, my heirs, executors, and administrators, do, by these presents, release and discharge said society from all challenges and demands whatsoever, by virtue of said first agreement, and do covenant and agree with said society that the several yearly grants in years past shall be accepted and allowed in such a manner as that ye s^d society shall be, and is hereby, freed and discharged from all further demands.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand, in Stamford, this 19th day of February, A.D. 1766.

MOSES MATHER.

Hon. Samuel Mather of Westfield was born at Northampton, Mass., in the year 1737, was educated at Yale College, and graduated in the year 1756 with a high reputation as a gentleman and a scholar. He studied the profession of medicine with his father in Northampton, and commenced the practice of physic and surgery at Westfield, Mass., in the year 1759, and was married to Miss Grace Mosely of Westfield in the year 1761. He soon obtained a very extensive practice, and for many years was considered the most skillful and celebrated physician in the old county of Hampshire. Soon after his marriage, he was commissioned as justice of the peace by George III. and was for a long time in early life the Town Clerk and Treasurer of the town of Westfield. Subsequently he was elected Representative, and afterwards was appointed Senator and Judge of the County Court, which latter office he held at the time of the far-famed Shay's rebellion. He also acted as surgeon at the time the instigators were dispersed at Springfield, Mass., and with his own hands dressed the wounds of those that were mutilated on that occasion. His whole life was filled up with uncommon activity and untiring zeal in the cause of his country, his family, and his God. He died in Westfield in the year 1808."

Elisabeth Mather and Morris Greene have a large number of descendants living in Orange County, N. Y., and some in New York city. I am greatly indebted to Walter H. Conklin, Esq., of Chester, Orange Co., N. Y., for entertaining me at his home, and for information relative to his connection with that branch of the Mathers; also from Henry Fitzgerald, Esq., of New York city, for many records of the families. I should have been most fortunate had it been my lot to find others equally interested in Orange County.

ing the shore in a small boat, with articles on board to trade with their friends. They had no sooner landed than men and boat were taken possession of by these lookers-out. But while the new owners were employed in unloading the boat, they carelessly laid down their arms on the beach. One of the Tories, named Smith (whose wife, after his death, became the wife of Capt. Slason), seized Capt. S's gun, and cried out to his comrade, 'You take Jo's.' Capt. S, hearing this, sprang upon his antagonist and threw him with violence upon the rocks, thus giving him to understand that it was not so easy a matter to gain the day, when he had such men to contend with. At another time, as Dea. Mather and several others were on guard one evening, as they were seated on some logs amusing themselves, they were fired upon by a party of Tories, and two of their number were mortally wounded. The rest took to flight, and by crossing the milldam at 'King's End' escaped the enemy. The Tories coming to those whom they had wounded, said to one of them whose name was Zachariah Hoyt, 'Cousin Zach, is this you?' 'Yes,' groaned out the dying man. As Dea. Mather's house was back a mile or so from any public road, many of the neighbors carried their silver ware and many other valuable articles to it for safe keeping.

By some means, however, the Tories became acquainted with this fact, and a large gang of them came over one night and, placing their bayonets at the breast of Mrs. Mather, demanded of her where the silver was deposited. She was obliged to point out the spot, and after they had taken possession of it, and whatever else they wanted, they compelled Mrs. M., who had a nursing child at her breast, to make warm cakes and get supper for the whole party. When they retired they compelled Dea. Mather to accompany them to the shore lest he should give the alarm. This was in the spring of 1781. In July of the same year, as the congregation were assembled in the meeting-house on Sabbath day, a party of forty Tories, who had concealed themselves in the neighboring woods till divine service had commenced in the afternoon, suddenly surrounded the church and set guards at each door and window. When the alarm was first given Dea. Mather and one of his brothers, who happened to sit near the door, sprang out and escaped. But another of his brothers who was farther from the door seized his hat and started, but before he had reached the door the enemy had taken possession of it, and held up his gun to prevent his going out, and said with an oath, 'There, I've got you now.' 'Not yet,' said young Mather, and leaped over the gun and fled. A gun was fired at him, which happily only inflicted a slight wound, and did not hinder his escape. These, with three or four others, were all that escaped. The Tories then entered the house, and one of the number whose name was Frost, looking up in a threatening manner to the Rev. Moses Mather, who was still standing in the pulpit, said to him: 'Come down here, old daddy.' The Rev. Dr. M. knew it would be useless to expostulate with such civilized savages, and therefore obeyed their orders. The Tories carried away the Rev. Dr. M. and two of his sons, and all the men and boys of adult age they could find. They took also away forty horses that were found about the church. One lad, a son of Dr. Mather, escaped the enemy by being concealed by the women under the seat. This lad, we believe, is still living, a worthy member of the same church which was so mutilated at the time by the rude hand of the Tories. The church and society have probably never recovered from the blow that was then given it.

"Dea. Joseph Mather lived some years after the Revolution, and was blessed with ten children, all of whom were professedly pious, and all but two have had families. When Dea. M. died he left ten children, forty-five grandchildren, forty-eight great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild, in all one hundred and four. He also left twenty-five descendants-in-law. Seventeen of his descendants and four of his descendants-in-law had died before him."

Extracts from Huntington's History of Stamford, Conn.: "Mather, Joseph, was the second son of Rev. Moses Mather, D.D., of Middlesex Society, Stamford (Darien), where he was born, July 21, 1753. He united with his father's church, Aug. 9, 1778. He was a young man of much promise, and soon attained a position of influence among the citizens of the town. He distinguished himself early as a warm advocate of the independence of the American colonies; and of course, like his patriotic father, he was a constant mark for the shafts of British and tory vengeance. He lived about two miles to the north of the village, and his house was used as a depository for the more costly treasures of the citizens who were more exposed to the raids of the enemy from Long Island. But, removed as he was from the center of the parish, he was easily found and greatly harrassed by his former neighbors, who had now gone over to the enemy. No less than forty-four of his father's parishioners were at one time during the war, just across the Sound on Lloyd's Neck, more bitter against patriots than the King's troops themselves."

Noyes Mather was a prominent Free Mason; was also in State Legislature 1797, 1798, and 1802.

OBITUARY.

Col. Bethel Mather died at Schaghticoke, N. Y., Feb. 2, 1861, in the 90th year of his age; was born in Torrington, Conn., Oct. 6, 1771, and lived with his father, who was a farmer, until 1792 when he removed to Amenia, N. Y. He there married Miss Huldah Smith, and came to Schaghticoke in 1798. He engaged in mercantile pursuits, but soon purchased the farm, where he resided until his death. He was a man of more than ordinary abilities, of great firmness and decision and energy of character. He became very successful in business pursuits, of undoubted integrity, as well as decided ability. He was regarded as a wise and safe counselor, of kind feelings—humane and generous to the poor. He was also a man of great public spirit, who rendered himself extensively useful in the community where he so long resided. He was the father of fourteen children, seven of whom survive him.

In 1814, Col. Mather was a member of the Legislature of New York. A descendant of the Puritans, the influence of his early religious training was apparent all through his life; though a decided friend of good order, a respecter and supporter of religious institutions, he did not till late in life become personal in the subject of religion. He made a public profession of his faith in Christ, uniting with the Presbyterian Church about three years before his death, greatly respected by all who knew him. His last days were spent in quietness, and his end was peace. He died in full hope of a blessed immortality."

The Hon. Elias Warner Leavenworth was a man of such remarkable qualities that in the small space which I am entitled to use in this work I can only allude to a small part of his brilliant career. Descended, on his mother's side, from Rev. Richard Mather, and on his father's from Thomas Leavenworth, the emigrants, he has honored both names by his life. He was born in Canaan, Columbia Co., N. Y., and when three years of age removed with his parents to Great Barrington, Mass. In the year 1819 he entered the Hudson Academy, and made preparations to enter college, partly under Erastus C. Benedict. He entered Williams College as sophomore in 1820, and a year later entered the sophomore class in Yale; was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society in 1823; in 1824 graduated; took his second degree in 1827; was a room-mate the last two years at Willis Hall, valedictorian of his class, and later Attorney-General of New York State. He commenced, Dec. 20, 1824, studying law with Wm. Cullen Bryant, and May 16, 1825, entered the law school at Litchfield, Conn., under Hon. James Gould and Hon. Jabez Huntington. In January, 1827, he was admitted to practice in all the courts of Connecticut. He chose Syracuse, N. Y., to establish himself, where he studied and practiced with Alfred Northam, Esq., until February, 1829. In that year he formed a partnership with B. Davis Noxon. The firm was then known as Noxon & Leavenworth, later as Noxon, Leavenworth & Comstock. This firm continued with some slight changes until 1850, when General Leavenworth, although in the largest practice in Central New York, abandoned his profession on account of ill health.

In January, 1832, he was appointed Lieut. of artillery of 147th regiment, and later in the year his captain; in 1834, was Lieut. Col. of 29th regiment of artillery; in 1836, Brigadier-General of 7th brigade of artillery in 1837; he was appointed trustee of the village for 1838-9, and in 1840, president of the village; in 1839, supervisor of the old town of Salina; in 1849, elected mayor of Syracuse; in fall, elected to the legislature; in 1853, Secretary of State; in 1859, elected again mayor; in 1861, was chosen one of the Regents of the State of New York; in 1875, Gen. L. held the following positions: President of the Syracuse Savings Bank, an institution then having about $2,000,000; Syracuse City Water Works Co.; Syracuse Gas Light Co.; Oakwood Cemetery; Syracuse & Tully Plank Road Co.; New England Society of City of Syracuse; Secretary and Treasurer Cape Cod Coarse Salt Co.; Trustee of Onondaga County Orphan Asylum; Trustee Syracuse Home Association; Trustee First Presbyterian Church; Trustee State Asylum; Director of Syracuse Northern R. R.; and Director Syracuse, Phoenix & Oswego R. R.

Gen. L. held during his life many offices which we are unable to notice here. He was a man of the people, and had hosts of friends; a person of great achievement, popular in all places, the leading spirit in all the history of Syracuse. His first wife was Mary Elisabeth Forman, daughter of Joshua Forman, the founder of Syracuse; second wife, Mrs. Harriet Townley Ball, of Bergen, N. J.

Hamilton College conferred LL.D. upon him in 1879. He left a large estate. He died Nov. 24th, and was buried Nov. 28, 1887, his funeral being attended by all classes in the community.

OBITUARY.

* Lucius Mather, whose death occurred on the 18th inst., was born at Stockbridge, Mass., Nov. 4, 1788, and at the age of 21 years removed with his father to Seneca County, N. Y. He was married to Miss Jane Ackerman of that county in 1817, and removed and settled on a farm in the town of Middlesex, Yates County, where he resided 37 years, raising a family of four sons and one daughter. After losing his wife he removed to the village of Rushville, when the sickness of his daughter and his own advancing years induced him to break up housekeeping and make his home with his son George, in the town of Canandaigua, Ontario County, at whose home he departed this life, at the great age of 90 years, 6 months, and 14 days.

“The subject of this sketch is entitled to more than the passing notice that ‘he lived and has died.’ From his early manhood his rare social qualities, his kindly charities, his generous sympathy and help to the distressed, made him loved and almost revered in the community where he resided. Successful in business from his careful and prudent management, he acquired a large property, which he distributed among his children.

“Mr. Mather’s voice was always heard on the right side of the moral questions agitating the community of which he was a member, and his liberal contributions to the church of his choice, and, indeed, to every enterprise designed to lessen human woe or increase the social, intellectual, and religious condition of his fellowmen, was a fixed and settled habit with him during his whole life. Kindly, social, and generous as was his intercourse with his neighbors, the strong and predominant characteristic of his mind was his inflexible integrity and honesty, and those who dealt with him received his word as a bond, and his promise as an assurance not to be questioned. At a ripe old age he received that which must come to all. He was ready, and thus passed from the scenes of this world a just, generous, and upright spirit, whose life on earth made multitudes happy, and distressed none.”

391 Cotton Smith Mather¹ (son of Cotton⁵, Richard⁶, Atherton⁵, Timothy⁴, Rev. Richard³, Thomas², John¹), of North East, Erie Co., Penn. Born in Providence, R. I. 1770; died in North East, Penn., 1812; married Charlotte Daggett.

• The subject of the subjoined notice, Dr. Elisha Mather, was born at Northampton, Mass., in the year 1792, and died on the 24th of April, 1840, aged 48. He was a judicious and respectable practitioner. He joined the Massachusetts Medical Society in the year 1824, and was a counselor and censor in it for many years. He continued his fellowship till the time of his death.

• The Hampton Gazette, published at Northampton, gives the following notice of him:—In noticing the death of this good man and physician, it is not our object to analyze particularly his character, or describe minutely the elements of which it was composed, but generally to bear testimony to his high standing in his profession and the excellency of his character. Dr. Mather was undoubtedly more self-taught than most of his professional brethren. He was indebted to his talents, his industry, and his application for the rank which he attained in all the various branches of his profession. He was entitled to entire confidence. With the structure and functions of the different parts of the human system he was most intimately acquainted, and was seldom surpassed in accuracy of anatomical knowledge. His practice was invariably founded upon physiological and pathological principles. He always thoroughly investigated the cause of disease and applied his remedy accordingly; and though the public as a mass may not have awarded him that reputation, as a physician, to which he is justly entitled, those most competent to judge of his qualifications (the medical profession) have duly appreciated his great worth. In his deportment he was neither forbidding nor imposing; brethren could always approach him without being apprehensive that they should be overpowered by his feelings of superiority. In his domestic relations he was greatly endeared. His conduct in his family was marked by the greatest purity and tenderness, and he here experienced his greatest happiness. As a Christian he was exemplary, and no one doubts that he fully possessed the leading characteristics of a Christian character."

429 William Mather (son of Elisha⁸, Dr. Samuel⁷, Dr. Samuel⁶, Rev. Samuel⁵, Timothy⁴, Rev. Richard³, Thomas², John¹), of Northampton, Mass. Born Sept. 29, 1776; died Aug. 5, 1835; married Annie Clark.

* Miss Sarah A. Mather has done a great work in the South in the interest of the Indians, spending the greater part of her maturer years in their behalf. In a letter from St. Augustine, Feb. 16, 1881, which was published, I quote the following. "Any notice of St. Augustine would be incomplete without mentioning one who has been long identified with a great number of most successful benevolent enterprises on behalf of the people of the place. I refer to Miss Mather. Coming here before the war, and establishing a young ladies' seminary, then commencing one benevolent work after another, she has endeared herself to all classes, races, parties and religious sects, Catholics as well as Protestants. Her work in behalf of the Indians now at Hampton Institute is well known. She has built a church for the "poor whites" out in the neighborhood of the city; also a home for aged and helpless colored people, a mission for the colored children, and I don't know how many more enterprises of the kind. 'Saint Sarah Ann' might not sound so grand and historic as St. Augustine, but if cities were to be named from those who had

John Mather published a genealogy of the Mather family, in 1848, of seventy-six pages. There has been a demand for the work, but for a long time it has been hard to find a single copy of it on sale. Mr. Mather established works for the manufacture of gunpowder in Manchester, and employed so many men at that period that he was looked upon as a man of great influence in that portion of Connecticut where his mills were established. Some of his daughters settled in Auburn.

Among the biographical sketches of the early settlers of the town of Burlington, Otsego Co., N. Y., the historian refers to Mr. Dan Mather in a brief way. 'An honored representative of 'ye olden time' was Dan Mather, who was born in Lyme, Conn., in October, 1774, and came to B. in 1811, and located in the southern part of the town, in the Bitternut Creek valley, on a farm he occupied until his death, in 1856. He was an active pioneer, and did much to advance the interests of the town. Was a tanner, and also engaged in the boot and shoe business.

Mr. M. was twice married. His first wife's name was Frost, by whom he had three children, Jane Eliza, the mother of Hon. E. M. Harris of Cooperstown; John Frost was a physician of large practice, residing at Garrettsville, Orsego Co.; he died in 1874; and Catherine. Mr. M. married for his second wife Susannah Onderdonk, a cousin of Bishop Onderdonk of New York. They had three children, Andrew A., Ezra, and Dan. Ezra was elected supervisor of the town of Burlington in 1852, and Dan in 1858. Andrew A. is a prominent man, and has officiated in many positions within the gift of his fellow citizens."

In Memoriam.

RICHARD MATHER,

Born Oct. 31, 1798. Died June 15, 1885.

"And I heard a voice from Heaven saying unto me, write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." — Rev. 14: 13.

Richard Mather was in the sixth generation from the Rev. Richard Mather of Lancaster, England, who emigrated to Massachusetts and settled in Dorchester, in 1635. He was the son of Capt. Sylvester Mather of Lyme, Conn., who was lost at sea in 1810.

In November, 1814, Richard Mather came to Binghamton, New York, where all of his subsequent life was passed.

On Sunday, May 31st, the first warning of approaching death came with a slight stroke of apoplexy. The splendid constitution that had so grandly withstood the wear of eighty-six years of active life succumbed slowly. The struggle lasted through two weeks. Saturday night he fell asleep, and did not awaken again until Monday morning, at ten minutes past one, when he passed away with a long sigh and awoke on the other side. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. G. Parsons Nichols, D.D., the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, whose address is appended to this memorial.

When we call over the rapidly diminishing, now almost silent, roll of worthy men who were a part of the early history of this city, and who have been prominently identified with all that is best in its progress and welfare, one of the foremost figures upon which the eye has hitherto rested is Richard Mather. Henceforth this also must be among us a silent name. The well-known form, the long-loved presence, the beaming, benignant countenance has passed away, darkening a wide circle by its departure.

Richard Mather was descended from the famous Puritan Mather family, and was born in Lyme, Conn., as far back as October 31, 1798, so that he was old enough to remember the great characters and stirring events that distinguished the opening years of the present century. He was born before Washington died, and saw, during his boyhood, the star of the first Napoleon blazing toward its fall, and felt the agitation which the war between the United States and Great Britain raised in the breasts of the New England men.

At the age of 13 he was left fatherless; two years later he came in a sleigh to Binghamton to take a position in a store. From that time — as clerk, merchant, manufacturer, and retired citizen — his uninterrupted residence and dearly loved home for seventy-two years has been in this city. He was present at the organization of the First Presbyterian Church, and witnessed the planting of all the noble institutions of the city. He was himself a prominent agent in making and moulding the city, a strong influence in advancing its highest interests, a universally respected and honored citizen — often selected by his fellow men for positions of public trusts and responsibility both civil and religious. He made public confession of his faith in the Lord Jesus Christ at the age of thirty-four years, and immediately connected himself with the First Presbyterian Church, in whose history he ever felt a just pride, and whose fair honor he cherished down to his last day with a loyal affectionateness as inspiring as it was beautiful. He was a real churchman of God's own making, a soul imbued and animated to the very core with loyalty and fidelity to the house of God, and the ministry of God, and the service of God. For many years he was a trustee of the church, and in 1860 he was placed upon the bench of elders, which office he held until his death. But while the First Church was his home and peculiar delight, he gave all churches — Protestant and Catholic — his warm right hand, and received in turn from all fraternal affection and high regard. Seldom is dust committed to dust amid expressions of regret and sorrow so sincere and so general as those which accompany this aged man to his grave.

We are at a loss how to characterize and where to place this dear father of ours. He belongs, by the inmost quality of his being and whole expression of his life, to the category of the good. He was a good man after the New Testament type of good men, a man beloved of Heaven, one of the excellent of the earth, a living embodiment of all nobleness, sweetness, strength, and simplicity. When we speak of Christian good men we are reminded of two differing kinds of character — one which is allied with a certain moroseness of nature, quickness of temper, sharpness of speech, and which struggles into the light against many difficulties, and through many obscuring clouds of regretful words and acts and behavior; the other which springs up and thrives like a plant in congenial soil, and which blossoms out, as it were, spontaneously into all kind thoughts, kind words, and fresh, genial sympathies. To this latter and rarer type of goodness our beloved father belonged. His was a soul ever full of moral music; a presence that always brought sunshine; a character serious without harshness, cheerful without levity, conscientious without a touch of imperiousness, always breathing forth an atmosphere of calm repose and gracious dignity, which was a blessing to us all. He combined the firmness and strength which conviction gives with a largeness and gentleness that come from wisdom and charity.

Let those who think it consistent with their position or religion to indulge in an insolent temper, and to treat with intolerance and rudeness those who differ from them, remember — as they must often have seen it — the prudent abstinence, the gracious urbanity, the tender consideration with which our friend met the jarring circumstances and impetuous characters of life as if he ever kept before him the divine ideal of Him “who when He was reviled, reviled not again; when He suffered, threatened not, but committed Himself to Him that judgeth righteously.”

I have not ventured, in this public presence, to go behind the veil of our friend's private and domestic life. But those who are familiar with it know well that all the sweet word home means, this place was to him; and all the sacred words husband and father mean, he was to this place. Not one of the sorrowing group of which he was the center but remembers with grateful tears to-day how near he held them to his heart; how he made their troubles his own; and how ready he was to encourage them in enterprises before which they were halting, and to cheer them when they had bravely done their task. His wife, for more than sixty years, hastened to him as the bird to her hiding place, and his children rose up and called him blessed.

We, none of us, my friends, believe in the faultlessness of any man, but we recognize the fact that out of our faulty texture our Lord Jesus Christ can weave patterns of goodness which are revelations of Himself and inspirations to us all. Such a pattern has He woven in the life now closed on earth.

In parting with such an one, whether we look backward along the long path of the earthly pilgrimage, darkly shadowed with difficulties and trials and sorrows, or forward to the fullness of light and joy and peace at God's right hand, we may repeat for him and urge on ourselves those beautiful words, whose meaning is inexhaustible: “The path of the just is as a shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day.”

This notice of Andrew A. Mather is from one of the Ellington papers: "He was born in Vermont in 1792. His father, Stephen Mather, moved from Lyme, Conn., where records have been found showing that Andrew A. Mather was the ninth generation of Mathers. At the age of 18 years he came to Jefferson County, this State, and at the age of 25 was married to Miss Betsey Stebbins. Having friends in Ellington, he came here with his family 44 years ago, with the intention of clearing him a home out of the wilderness. In that object he was successful. A farm of one hundred acres, which was all woods, was cleared by him and his elder sons, and he has lived to enjoy the fruits of his labor. Eight children were born to him, of which only two survive him. Sixty-four years of wedded life was his, some of which have been full of grief and sorrow. An only daughter died at the age of 18 years; five sons grew to manhood, and were then taken; but the last great grief was bitterest to the aged wife. The deceased united with the Methodist Church in his younger days, and although the past few years he was unable to attend service, yet the love of God was manifest in him. A good man has passed away. Ellington has lost another pioneer, an aged wife a companion, children a parent. But our loss is his gain. He was ripe for the harvest, and heaven is now his home."

Mrs. J. M. Carter

In January, 1890, Dr. Mather was still in comfortable health. On June 26, 1890, Dr. Mather died, and the following sketch of his life comes to me from the Little Falls (N. Y.) Journal and Courier, of July 1, 1890.

DR. WM. MATHER.

• DIED—In Fairfield, June 26, 1890, William Mather, in the eighty-ninth year of his age.

• The sudden death, on Thursday, of Fairfield's esteemed and accomplished citizen, Dr. William Mather, came with great surprise to the people of Herkimer County, and especially to his more intimate friends who had considered him in remarkably good health for a man of his years. He had been doing some work about his home, and, it is believed, became over-exhausted. His physician, Dr. Nichols, of Fairfield, who was with him in his last moments, believed that his death was caused by the rupture of a blood-vessel in the region of the heart.

• Dr. William Mather was born on Barto Hill, one mile from the village of Fairfield, April 28, 1802. He was a direct descendant, in the eighth generation, of John and Ellen Mather, who lived at Lowton, Lancashire County, England, near Liverpool. Richard Mather, the grandson of John and the son of Thomas Mather, preached at Texteth Chapel, in Liverpool, and came to Boston in 1635. From this origin nearly all of the Mather name in this country have come. He was married to Miss Mary A. Buell May 24, 1836, whom he survived sixteen years. He is survived by three children, William A. Mather of Fairfield, Mrs. Albert B. Watkins of Albany, and Monzo C. Mather of Chicago, and five grandchildren.

• As a boy, Dr. Mather was of a thoughtful, studious disposition, and early developed a marked taste for scientific pursuits. He entered Fairfield Academy at the age of fourteen, and continued a member of the school during several years. Even at this age he had done much original work, and early gave promise of the scientific attainments which, in after years, were to make him a valued educator in his special field of work. He afterwards took a full course of study in the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Western District, distinguishing himself especially in the study of chemistry, and graduated in 1826. He never however, practiced the profession of medicine, giving as a reason that he could not bear to witness pain and suffering. He preferred, in his modest way, the more quiet life of student and teacher, both noble callings and for both of which nature had well fitted him. In 1827, at the suggestion of Dr. John A. Kinnecut of Buffalo, who during the preceding year, as a resident graduate, had taught a class in chemistry, Dr. Mather formed a class for private examination in the Medical College, and for many years continued his connection with the Medical College. In 1828 he was invited to give a course of lectures to the academic and theological students at Hamilton, and continued to visit Hamilton for this purpose each year until 1838, when he was appointed Professor of Chemistry in Madison University, now Colgate. From a letter written Oct. 13, 1851, by Stephen W. Taylor, we learn the conditions of the contract. Dr. Mather consented to give instruction to the students of the university for an indefinite term of years, provide and keep in repair his own chemical apparatus, and remove his cabinet of minerals, fossils, and geological specimens from Fairfield to Madison University, in consideration of which he was to receive $350 per year if he remained five years and eventually donated his cabinet to the university; otherwise he was to receive $300 per year from the beginning. His chemical apparatus at this time was valued at $1,000, and his cabinet at $500. To Dr. Mather the Colgate University of to-day owes much of its well-appointed laboratory, and still more to the interest which he aroused and successfully maintained in its scientific departments. This position he filled with great success, adding to his lectures on Chemistry instruction in Geology, until 1867. In 1841 he received an invitation to accept the Professorship of Chemistry and Pharmacy in the Medical College at Castleton, Vt., where he gave courses of lectures for several successive years.

The study of Natural Sciences, especially Chemistry, was in its infancy during these years, and instruction was given very rarely except in large schools and the more progressive colleges. The system of lecturing upon scientific subjects throughout the State, in the different places where an interest in them had begun to arise, was entered upon with great zeal by a few pioneers in this branch of learning. Prominent among these pioneer lecturers, including such men as Prof. John W. Hatch, Dr. Austin Flint, Dr. J. M. Wieting, Prof. Maudeville, Prof. Silliman (the older), Dr. Hitchcock, and a few others, we find Dr. Mather, whose subject and specialty was Chemistry.

From 1828 to 1860, during such parts of the year as he could spare from his regular duties at Hamilton, he gave courses of lectures in nearly all the larger towns of the State, notably Buffalo, Albany, Rochester, Oxford, Auburn, Ithaca, Geneseo, Avon, Syracuse, Whitesboro, Galway, Saratoga Springs, Lansingburg, Lyons, Rome, Amsterdam, Herkimer, Troy, Waterford, Utica, Little Falls, Cooperstown, Fort Plain, Scholario, Hudson, Kingston, Newport, Owego, Binghamton, Bath, Elmira, Penn Yan, Palmyra, Seneca Falls, Waterloo, Norwich, Fulton, Putaski, Oswego, Waterville, Clinton, Sing Sing, Peekskill, Adams, Oneida, and many other places, including also courses of lectures at the Albany State Normal School and the Young Men's Association of Albany, and the Berkshire Medical College at Pittsfield, Massachusetts.

He was a learned and instructive lecturer. As his lectures were illustrated with an ample apparatus and he was a skillful manipulator, his experiments were invariably successful. To show the very high value placed upon Dr. Mather as a scientific lecturer, we quote very briefly a few extracts from press notices of years ago:

"We congratulate the lovers of science among us on the prospects of a course of lectures on Chemistry by the intelligent and experienced lecturer, Dr. Wm. Mather." — Peekskill Republican, Feb. 25, 1851.

"Extracts from copy of resolutions presented to Dr. Wm. Mather:

"Resolved, That in the lectures just closed, Dr. M. has shown himself an eminently successful experimenter and a thorough master of the principles and details of the science which he teaches.

"Resolved, That we feel confident in saying to schools and colleges and the public generally, wherever Dr. M. may lecture, that they will receive an ample equivalent in the solid, interesting, and useful instruction which he imparts. Dr. Mather displays no badges of the empiric. He is a plain, interesting, and instructive lecturer. He has devoted years of arduous labor to the science of chemistry, and shows a perfect familiarity with his subject. He blends with illustrations that simplicity peculiar to elementary demonstration, while he leads along the mind to comprehend the complicated results of the chemical combinations of elementary principles.' — Fulton Patriot, Sept. 16, 1847.

As an author he wrote no extended work, but his pen had been active in various directions for many years, and his contributions to local and scientific periodicals were numerous and valuable. Perhaps no other man was so well versed in the early history of this section, especially with reference to its pioneers and the rise and progress of its educational institutions. His memory was remarkably vivid, enabling him to recall with great accuracy and fullness the incidents which came to his personal knowledge from his earliest years as a resident of the town. His assistance to Mr. Benton, in the preparation of the History of Herkimer County, was invaluable, and many pages of that work were written entirely by Dr. Mather, and for which he did not receive the credit which justly belonged to him. His series of articles on the Origin of Fairfield Seminary, and later on, a similar series on The History, Work, and Influence of the Medical College, were extensively read and widely copied. Only recently, a paper prepared by him on the Fairfield Medical College, was read before the Utica Historical Society, by a prominent physician of that city, and received high praise. For months previous to his death he was engaged in collecting material and preparing manuscript for the forthcoming History of Fairfield Seminary. His memory was remarkable, especially with reference to events which happened in his youth or early manhood. He took much interest in the genealogy of the early settlers of Fairfield and vicinity, and spent much time in tracing out lines of descent in answer to questions sent to him from people now widely scattered.

He gave valuable assistance in the preparation of biographies of Dr. Asa Gray, Dr. Hadley, and many others whom he knew, either as fellow students, or with whom he labored, in after life, as an educator. His penmanship, in the style of half a century ago, was remarkable for its neatness and clearness, and resembled copper plate, and the notes which he took only last Monday, as Secretary of the Medical College Board, which annually meets at Little Falls, are an exact counterpart in style and penmanship to those taken by him in the same capacity when he was first elected secretary, in 1840.

“No man among the hundreds of distinguished alumni of ‘Old Fairfield’ took greater interest in his alma mater than Dr. Mather. From his early youth he had an intimate acquaintance with all its inner and outer workings. He took special pains to become acquainted with all its teachers, and was ever ready with his kind encouragement and offers of advice and assistance. When a new teacher was about to commence his duties in the department of Physical Science, it was his custom to aid him in his first use of the apparatus, and frequently to assist him in his experiments, and the writer of this article will ever hold him in grateful remembrance for much information and help in that department.

“So solicitous was he for the prosperity of the school, that he always endeavored to keep in his mind the exact number of students present, and often, at the beginning of each term, would watch the number of lights in the buildings during the first few evenings, in order that he might judge of the prospects of a successful term, anxiously commenting to those whom he met upon the favorable or unfavorable indications. While he was President of the Board of Trustees he took great interest in the Regents’ examinations. He would perform the tiresome duty of a committeeman, and look over the answer papers, and was always regarded by the students as a very pleasant and efficient guardian of the Regents’ interests.

“In prosperity and adversity the school has found him the same unvarying champion, always ready to work, to contribute funds, and speak for its interests. The teachers have found him a friend and co-worker in the cause of education, and the students a man abounding in knowledge which he always was willing to impart.

“He had been a trustee of the school since 1853, president of the board for about twenty years, and was a prompt and regular attendant at all the meetings, and an active participant in all discussions relating to its financial and educational matters.

“When, a few years ago, the indications were that the Seminary was about to close when many people feared that ‘Old Fairfield’ had done its work and must henceforward be counted among the institutions of the past, Dr. Mather, with earnest solicitude and zeal, labored to bring about the change in management which promised, and has resulted in, the successful and permanent establishment of the school; and he lived to rejoice in the well filled rooms and numerous lights that gleamed from the windows opposite his residence.

“He was also an earnest worker in the Protestant Episcopal Church, of which he was for many years a vestryman. He was always attentive to every duty, taking, as he did in every good work, an active interest in all church affairs; and it was often remarked by those who knew him best, that few men ever lived a more genuine, practical, Christian life than Dr. Mather.

“He was a man of perfect honesty, remarkable in his habits of punctuality in all duties, of strict accuracy and system in the execution and record of all business transactions, and of marked kindness of heart. He was ever careful and considerate of the feelings and circumstances of all around him, and the universal testimony of his neighbors and those with whom he came into the most constant personal contact, shows him to have been a man of unusually broad views and benevolent character. In his latter years he was somewhat afflicted with deafness, but did not lose his deep interest in all current affairs. He read constantly and carefully, and kept well informed on public questions of the day. He was public spirited, and contributed freely of his time and means in support of local projects. He retained to the end of his life the mental faculties of a remarkably well balanced and even brilliant mind. He has passed away in the fullness of years, esteemed and lamented by the entire community.

“His funeral was largely attended on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from Trinity Church in Fairfield, Rev. W. H. C. Lyllburn officiating.”

Hon. William Mather was a man of sterling qualities, a true friend to all good objects, was held in very high esteem, not only in the town in which he lived but in the State at large. He represented the town in the Legislature of the State, where his influence and his vote was always to be found on the side of right measures and for the public good. Mr. Mather's family line stops with his children, as none of the marriages of the children has resulted in extending the line farther. One of the sons, Col. Thomas Scott Mather, is an active real estate dealer in Springfield, Ill., and has been Adjutant-General of the State of Illinois. The son Wm. C., and his wife, remain in Simsbury, and are the only ones in the town to bear the family name. The daughter, Julia M., married Rev. C. P. Croft, and lives in Simsbury.

Mather, is a Methodist clergyman, and is preaching in California. N. W. M.'s daughter, Mary Aurelia, married Rev. Wm. R. Benham; the presiding elder of the Elmira District. And the youngest daughter married Rev. W. C. Taylor, the Presbyterian clergyman of Verona, N. Y. Col. Mather contributed liberally to the Geneseo Wesleyan Seminary of Lima, N. Y., and toward other objects of benevolence."

Mr. M. may look back with pardonable pride upon the record and excellent reputation he has made in Rochester, both professionally and socially. He was an active member of Monroe Commandery No. 12, Knights Templar,

In the year 1854 James P. Cooley and Silas Noble made a drum in Noble's father's kitchen from a board they found in the barn; they steamed the board with a tea-kettle, and made the heads from bladders taken from the butchers of two fat porkers." They thought it was a very nice drum. After that they invested five dollars and fifty cents (all the money they had) in their business. They now have a manufactory 110 feet long, 40 feet wide, with five floors; employ and pay one hundred men or more. They have built up a nice little village, owned and occupied mostly by drum makers. They made last year 136,000 drums, beside great quantities of toys. The above is from a letter written by James P. Cooley, Jan. 9, 1882. Their sales-room is 326, 328, and 330 Broadway, New York.

efforts, drew him into the boat. He then hurried to the land, rallied assistants, and sent for Dr. Pierson.

The man was carried to the residence of Mr. E. Loomis, where, after patient efforts, he was resuscitated. The young man more speedily recovered. They were a Mr. Phelps and nephew, from Barkhamsted.

The boy's schooling was mainly in the district school, though in later years he at times attended the academy. Always a faithful and reputable scholar, in the academy he studied the rudiments of both Latin and Greek, faintly hoping that at some time he might pursue a full collegiate and professional course.

In 1829 he resolved to make a determined effort to that end, and in November he arranged with the Rev. Mr. Perkins, of Amherst, Mass., for his aid as tutor in fitting for admission to Yale College. In January, 1831, he was admitted to the Sophomore class in Yale,—a class which entered before he commenced his preparation. Under these circumstances it was not easy at first to maintain a satisfactory class standing; but he accomplished it, and graduated honorably in 1833.

Having selected the law for his profession he read one year in the offices of Governor Ellsworth and Judge Parsons, in Hartford, and another year in the Yale Law School.

In 1835 he received a proposition to enter a law office in the city of New York, which, being adverse to his then purpose to go West, required consideration.

Among others with whom he advised was Erastus Ellsworth, a retired New York merchant, who contented himself by saying, "New York is a great business field, and should you conclude to go there, with industry, honesty, and economy, you will succeed."

Appreciating those three virtues, in November, 1835, he became a "law clerk" in the office of Walter Edwards, on Wall Street, with a salary of one hundred dollars a year. The law then required a three years' clerkship before he could be examined for admission as an attorney, and three years' practice as attorney before he could be examined for admission as a counselor; but in 1837 the Supreme Court, by courtesy, permitted him to join a class then to be examined for admission as counselor. He was examined by Charles O'Connor, Daniel Lord, and Nicholas Hill, and on their recommendation was commissioned a counselor at law, four years sooner than otherwise he could have been.

In 1838 he was commissioned an attorney at law, and soon entered the field of professional competition. Having married, and with no particular patronage, the struggle at times seemed hopeless; but by 1844 he had more than a fair living.

In November, 1844, he was elected to the New York State Assembly, session of 1845. This took him from his professional business for five months, and nearly wrecked it, though he had left it in care of a competent lawyer, showing that his business was a personal confidence. A few years of renewed efforts more than retrieved such loss, and thenceforth he prospered.

But the time came when he found the requirements of his profession too exacting and having gradually put them off, in 1882 he retired from it.

The foregoing sketch would be incomplete without the mention of other facts pertaining to him. In 1837, 1838, and 1840, respectively, he was commissioned First Lieutenant, Captain, and Lieutenant-Colonel in the 26th Regiment, 6th Brigade, N. Y. State Infantry, and on November 14, 1842, he was commissioned Brigadier-General to that Brigade.

It may be noteworthy that while a strict disciplinarian, he was unanimously elected to each of these military offices. As an officer he found pleasant and wholesome recreation from his professional confinement and labors.

His sympathetic nature early associated him with humane and charitable institutions in the city of New York, of which are, The Prison Association, The Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, The Sanitary Association; with each of which he held official relations.

Medical charities have particularly interested him. He initiated, aided in organizing, and for more than a quarter of a century was the President of The DeMilt Dispensary, which from its opening, in 1851, to December 31, 1889, treated nine hundred and fifty-two thousand three hundred and fifty-five (952,355) patients, and dispensed one million nine hundred and forty thousand five hundred and forty-one (1,940,541) medical prescriptions, and is amply endowed for effective usefulness.

He actively co-operated in the initiation and organization of two other dispensaries, viz., The North Western and The North Eastern, both successful and useful institutions. He is a life member of The DeMilt, The North Western, and The New York Dispensaries.

He was one of the original incorporators, trustees, and organizers of The Roosevelt Hospital, an institution of acknowledged high rank and usefulness. Other institutions of charity have been aided by his services and otherwise.

In 1872 he visited hospitals and dispensaries in Great Britain and on the continent, some results of which are embodied in the Twenty-Fifth Annual Report of The DeMilt Dispensary.

He was one of the originators of The N. Y. Yale College Alumni Association, and participated in the formation of The Yale College Law School Alumni Association, also The Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and is a member of The American Geographical Society, a life member of The N. Y. State Agricultural Society, and of The New England Society.

He long served as director of the Eighth Avenue Railroad Co.; also as director and for ten years as President of The Richmond County Gas Light Co., Staten Island.

State and city affairs have had much of his attention. As before stated, he served in the Legislature in 1845. In 1854, and again in 1855, he was elected to the Common Council of the city, and served therein till 1857.

For many years as Inspector, and for several other years as Trustee, he gave a requisite care and supervision to the public schools in the city of New York. To these offices he was elected from term to term. Windsor has not been forgotten by him; education there has received his aid, and so two other public enterprises.

The old and historic cemetery has interested him from his early years. He caused the inscriptions on some ancient monuments to be re-cut, and has erected two granite monuments to replace perishing marble structures.

Oliver W. Mather.

In 1889 he prepared and advocated, and the General Assembly enacted, a law for the care and preservation of that cemetery and its monuments. He has done much to put that law into efficient operation, and has subscribed liberally to the cemetery trust fund.

He has twice married. First, on May 3, 1837, to Ellen Pomeroy Goodrich, daughter by adoption of Elizar Goodrich of Hartford. From this marriage there were eight children, viz., two sons and six daughters. The eldest son was drowned with others on the night of April 7, 1845, from the wreck of the "Swallow," near Athens, on the Hudson River, and the youngest son died in his second year. The daughters have all married, and are living. This wife died September 29, 1871.

On December 20, 1876, he married Charlotte Foster, daughter of William Foster, of Cumberland County, England. She died June 16, 1884, childless.

With well-defined religious and political convictions, and fearless to avow and defend them when assailed, he is neither obtrusive or intolerant. His devotion to principle rather than partisanship is shown by the fact that for each of the public offices to which he was elected as before stated, he was the nominee and candidate of independent citizens, and in opposition to the party machines.

His pride of lineage, if he have any, consists solely in his inflexible purpose not to dishonor his ancestry. He is the only male Mather of the Colonel Oliver branch.

Rev. Oliver Wolcott Mather, A.M., son of Ellsworth and Laura Wolcott Mather, was born in Windsor, January 26, 1815. In and before 1830 he was in the employ of book publishers in Hartford. In 1831 he went to New Haven to prepare for college. In 1833 he was admitted to Yale College, and graduated with the distinguished class of 1837. The next year he spent in South Carolina as a teacher. He then was two years in the Divinity School of Yale College. Having completed the prescribed course there he went to Ohio, and for about three years was pastor of a church in Birmingham. On severing that relation he became pastor of churches successively in Dover and Baggles, where he ministered about six years.

From Ohio he went to Michigan, in 1851, and became pastor of the church in White Lake. After ministering there several years he became pastor successively of churches in Paw Paw and Cold Water. In 1857 ill health disabled him, and he resigned his pastorate.

In July, 1858, still infirm, he returned to the "Mather homestead," in Windsor, where he resided, an invalid, till his decease, November 7, 1870. Particulars as to his marriage, children, etc., appear elsewhere.

Sketch taken from the History of Otsego County, N. Y., published 1878:

"Andrew Adrian Mather, son of Dan Mather and Susannah M., was born in the town of Burlington, Otsego County, Oct. 17, 1812; his father was a lineal descendant of Rev. Richard Mather, of English origin, who sailed from Bristol, England, landing in Boston, Mass., Aug. 17, 1635, and settled in Dorchester, Mass. He was a clergyman of marked ability. He left England from his unwillingness to conform to the rules of the established Church. He founded a Presbyterian church at Dorchester, Mass., Aug. 25, 1836, and remained pastor of the same until his death, which occurred April 22, 1869. From him have descended a numerous race, all of whom have been noted for their great energy and indomitable perseverance.

"Dan, the father of Andrew A. Mather, was born in Lyme, Conn., Oct. 1, 1774. He was a tanner and currier by occupation, which business he followed several years after settling in the town of Burlington. He married for his second wife Miss Susannah Onderdonk, a resident of Manhasset, Long Island. She was born Dec. 12, 1775. By this union three sons were born, Andrew A., Ezra, and Dan. Ezra died at the age of fifty-seven.

"Mr. Dan Mather settled in the south part of the town of Burlington, Otsego County, N. Y., in the Butternut Creek Valley, in 1811, on the farm where he died Sept. 1, 1856, and which is now owned and occupied by his son, Andrew A. Mather. Mrs. Mather, wife of Dan Mather, died March 9, 1853. Dan Mather was one of the most respected citizens of the town; he held various positions of trust and honor, and by industry and frugality he gained a competency. He was strictly honest in all his dealings, and lived respected and died lamented. His son, Andrew A., was reared on the farm, receiving a good common school education. He taught school five seasons in winter, and worked on the farm in summer.

"At the age of twenty-two he married Teresa D. Cummings, an only daughter of Elias and Lucinda Cummings, of New Lisbon, Sept. 7, 1834. By this marriage seven children were born, namely, Adrian O., Andrew E., Addison D., Elias C., and Kate M., who are living, and two died in infancy. Adrian O., Andrew E., and A. Dan live in Albany, N. Y., are wholesale grocers, known as the firm of 'Mather Bros.' Elias C. is a farmer in Burlington, living adjoining the old homestead, and Kate Mather living at present with her brother in Albany. Mrs. Mather, wife of Andrew A., died Jan. 27, 1860. Mr. Mather married Miss Addie J. Birdsall of Otsego, Jan. 6, 1862; she was born June 5, 1834; her parents were of New England origin, and were born in Otsego County. By this alliance two daughters were born, Clara L. and Jennie A., 14 and 12 years of age. Mr. Andrew A. Mather has always been engaged in agricultural pursuits, and is closely allied with the best interests of his town and county. He is now living at the same old homestead where he first saw the light of day. Mr. Mather is the grower of some fine Jersey stock and Leicester sheep. He is a man that thinks for himself, and acts from his own convictions of right and wrong; always ready to engage in any reform that has for its aim the amelioration of mankind. He allied himself with the Washingtonian movement in 1841, and has ever since that time been identified with all the temperance reforms of the day.

" In politics he was a Democrat, and voted the Democratic ticket down to the time Lewis Cass wrote his Nicholson letter, taking the ground that Congress had no power to keep slavery out of the territories, and when Cass and Taylor ran for President, in 1848, he voted for Van Buren to beat Cass, and ever since voted with the Anti Slavery party, voting the Republican ticket. In 1872 he thought Horace Greeley the best man, and voted for him. After the defeat of Mr. Greeley, and disgusted with the manipulators of the Republican party, believing the temperance question to be paramount to all others, he voted the temperance ticket in 1876, and enrolled himself with those noble men who declare for a prohibitory law as the only remedy for drunkenness, vice, and crime. He has held various positions of trust and honor in town, and was elected Supervisor in 1846. In 1853 he was elected by the temperance party to the Legislature as a 'Maine Law' man, and in the fall of 1860 was elected Sheriff of Otsego County by the Republicans, which office he held three years, and at the expiration of his term returned to his farm in the Butternut Creek Valley, where he now resides.

" Andrew E. Mather was mustered in as first lieutenant of K Company, 121st New York Volunteers, August, 1862. Promoted to Captain, January, 1863; was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel in January, 1864, and transferred to the 20th United States Colored Infantry and served until the close of the war. He was wounded in the shoulder at Salem Heights, May 3, 1863.

" Elias C. Mather was mustered in as private of K Company, 121st New York Volunteers, in August, 1862; was appointed 1st Lieutenant and Adjutant of the 20th United States Colored Infantry in September, 1864, and served until the close of the war. He was wounded in the arm at Fredericksburg, May 3, 1863, and at Petersburg, June 14, 1864."

From Morris Chronicle, Otsego Co., N. Y., Dec. 3, 1884:

THE MATHER MONUMENT.

" The Mather family monument in the Butternut Valley Cemetery, near the brick school-house, some two miles above Garrattsville, is now completed, and is a beautiful and massive monument fifteen feet high and weighing some twenty-eight tons. It is made of Quincy and Westerly granite, composed of six pieces, viz.: First, or base, is 9 feet three inches long by 7 feet 3 inches wide; second, 7 feet 7 inches by 5 feet seven inches; third, 6 feet 6 inches by 4 feet 4 inches; fourth, 6 feet 3 inches by 4 feet 4 inches; fifth, 4 feet 4 inches by 4 feet 4 inches. The figure surmounting the whole, representing consolation, is a female in a sitting posture; in her lap is an open book; kneeling by her side with head inclined on her lap a child — beautiful, attractive, and impressive figure — its weight is some three tons. On the west side over the die is carved a poppy, emblem of sleep. On the east side is cut a lily, emblem of resurrection. Over the die, just under the figure on the four sides, are quotations from the scriptures, as follows: On the south side, "The eternal God is thy refuge;" on the east, over the lily, "Until the daybreak and the shadows flee away;" on the north, "In His love and in His pity He redeemed them;" on the west, over the poppy, "He giveth His beloved sleep."

"This beautiful monument cost over $5,000; was erected by the New England Granite Company, Hartford, Conn. It cost the company $400 to get this monument from Mt. Upton to the cemetery distance about twenty-one miles. It will there stand as long as time shall be, overlooking the old Mather homestead and farm. It is money well invested, and the family feel that in erecting this beautiful piece of mechanism in their family burying plot, they are only in a small way honoring the dead of their own household, who are resting from their earthly labors awaiting the resurrection morning beneath the clods of that beautiful cemetery."

At the expiration of Mr. Andrew A. Mather's term as sheriff of Otsego County, Samuel Gordon, Provost Marshal, appointed Mr. Mather Deputy Provost Marshal until the close of the war.

1368 Asaph D. Mather¹⁰ (son of Joshua⁹, and brother of above), of Utica, N. Y. Born Meh. 16, 1823; died Apr. 8, 1880.

He was the head of the banking house of A. D. Mather & Co. of that city. His younger brother Joshua was his partner until his death, when Charles Wesley Mather, his nephew, became one of the firm, under the same name, A. D. Mather & Co.

A memorial book of 48 pages was published after his death, which I am permitted to extract from for this work, which gives some account of his successful career.

From the Utica Daily Observer: "It may be said of him that he accumulated larger wealth in the period of three and thirty years than any other man that Utica has known. He was the architect of a fortune grown to colossal proportions, of which the foundations were hard work, the pillars untiring energy, and the keystone financial wisdom. No factitious circumstances, no family influence, no special stroke of luck helped him forward. It was hard and barren ground in which he delved for gold. While others rested or gave their time to idle pleasure, he toiled, with the fixed purpose in view of acquiring wealth. There came a time when men envied him his great possessions. But he had never hoodwinked Fortune in bestowing on him her special favors. He was strict in demanding the fulfillment of a contract, but he was even more strict in the performance of his own obligations. If his sympathies were not easily enlisted by stories of privation, it must be remembered that for years his own acts of self-denial made the stories only the echo of his every-day life. The lessons which he learned in poverty could not be forgotten in wealth. His success was perfectly legitimate.

"From his early youth up to this day, A. D. Mather's word has been as good as any man's bond. He was slow to promise, but quick to fulfill. He asked for fewer favors than he granted. The trade that came to him came not because of his attractive qualities, but because he treated his customers with exact fairness. He overcame obstacles, which, to ordinary men, would have been insurmountable. He was willing to eat coarse food, to wear plain clothes, and to live in humble quarters, that he might add to his fortune.

"His social nature was fine, but undeveloped. He was neither a misanthrope nor a miser. He was not even covetous: he rejoiced heartily and unaffectedly in the success of those around him. He enjoyed the companionship of his fellowmen. His laugh was wholesome and never cynical. His appreciation of a kindness was very keen. He was a bachelor, but his respect for women was very high. He was absolutely free from pretension of every sort. The arrogance of wealth was so far removed from his nature that he did not know what it meant. The plain manners which he had carried into his little grocery store were not laid aside when he became a prosperous banker. Not many knew him well, but those who did liked him and admired him. He was a good landlord; after the reverses of 1873, he went voluntarily to several of his tenants and proposed a reduction of their rents. Those who imagined him a peculiarly peevish man could not understand this; but he governed his life by certain fixed rules of justice, and to a greater extent than many a professed philanthropist, he obeyed the precept of the Golden Rule—he treated others as he would wish them to treat him.

Early in the war, Mr. Mather made some wise and profitable investments in real estate. His property rose in value, and people called him lucky. When he embarked in the banking business his future was freely predicted; but he belonged to the small class of men who never fail. His outlays were so small that he was always able to keep a reserve fund. His investments were at once bold and cautious; he thoroughly understood the rule of financial success. He bought when things were cheap, and sold when things were dear. At first sight it would appear that this is the universal rule, but it is seldom practiced. When railroad shares which are now selling at par, were quoted at twenty cents on the dollar, not many persons could be induced to buy them, though they are in eager demand to-day. But Mr. Mather bought, realizing enormous profits, which were equally open to all. He took risks, but so distributed his investments that the failure of no one scheme, or two, or three, could endanger his fortune. He found his pleasure in the acquisition of wealth; he did not know how to be extravagant. In recent years he has always contributed modestly to all subscription lists that were presented to him, and in many ways he showed that he was trying to learn the art of spending money—in the accumulation of which he was a very master. But his final sickness came too soon for him to make much advancement in that part of his education. If he had lived longer he would perhaps have dedicated a portion of his great wealth to objects of charity. He certainly would not have used it for the gratification of his own selfish desires. His wants were few, his tastes were simple, and he was not vain of his success.

"His affection for his brother, the partner and associate of his whole business life, was almost childlike in its depth and sincerity. These two walked together over the paths of adversity into the high road of fortune, faithful to each other, industrious and tireless men, winning their way by hard work. If report speaks true, Mr. A. D. Mather leaves a million dollars. And now that the record of his life is rounded, it can be said of him truthfully, that he knowingly wronged no man in the acquisition of this great estate."

The Utica Herald says of him: "He left home when he was twenty-one, purchased a farm in Jefferson County, lived there a year, and rented it, and after a little found his way to Utica, where, in partnership with a younger brother, he established a grocery business at the corner of Genesee and Bleeker Streets, in 1847. The two brothers began business with little or no capital, and in a humble way. For nearly twenty years they remained in this business in the same spot. Their trade did not greatly expand during this interval; but what they earned they saved. They slept and ate in the building where their daily work was done, and accumulated capital slowly but surely by rigid economy and careful personal attention to details. When the war broke out, Mr. Mather began making investments in real estate. The result justified his sagacity, and before the war ended he was a wealthy man. In 1866, the grocery business was abandoned, and in the same location the private banking house of A. D. Mather & Co. was established. Mr. Mather applied to banking the business habits he had formed in those earlier days. He continued to purchase largely in real estate as his surplus accumulated, and at his death he was perhaps the largest owner of improved real estate in the city of Utica. The elegant banking house at the corner of Genesee and Bleeker Sts. was his only attempt to improve the city by building; but some of his ventures, like the securing of the Arcade, were bold, and indicated one of the principles to the faithful observance of which Mr. Mather could attribute a large portion of his material success. There was not a shrewder nor longer head than his among our business men. The citizens of Utica, so many of whom have watched Mr. Mather day by day, as he steadily outstripped them in the accumulation of the world's goods, will learn of his death with a sincere regret, and remember his life and achievements with respect and esteem."

1369 Joshua Mather, the younger brother of Asaph D. Mather, is now the head of the new firm, still retaining the old firm name, Mr. Charles W. Mather, a nephew, becoming a partner. Mr. Joshua Mather has become greatly interested in the "Mather Family History," and offers substantial aid to the work.

Dear sir,

It was my intention to have had in connection with the generally speaking work of the temporary committee,
I am writing you to send you some more information than is contained in the 1888 edition of the 'Times of the. Edward Leach,' which I have and the pleasure recently of consulting at your library.

This information I have been able to give you of this one, so that I can give you in that year. I am sure that you will find it valuable in this way, so that the information would be well all for reference, and also for later editions of this book, which one I have wished.

May I send you the name and address of my father,
Wm. J. Leach, and my brother, William S. Leach, both living at 1888 N. McCall St., both of whom appear on page 818 of the book mentioned above, and who will be more than willing to answer any inquiries that may arise. In very kin, above and believe.

Yours very truly,

Pyrus Bedford

Fred Mather, pisciculturist, born in Albany, N. Y., in August, 1833.
 In 1854 he became interested in the lead mines of Potosi, Wis., and afterward hunted and trapped in the Bad Axe country in that State. Here he learned enough of the Chippewa language to become interpreter to the government survey in northern Minnesota. During the political troubles in Kansas, he served under Gen. James Lane and was one of Jennison's "Jayhawkers." He enlisted in the 113th New York regiment in 1862, and he became 1st Lieutenant two years later. At the close of the Civil War he took a clerkship in the live-stock yards near Albany. In 1868 he bought a farm at Honey-e Falls, N. Y., and began to hatch fish of various kinds. When the United States Fish Commission was formed in 1872 he was sent for by Prof. Spencer F. Baird to hatch shad for the Potomac River. In 1875 he established hatcheries at Lexington and Blacksburg for the State of Virginia. A year later he had hatched the first sea-bass and graylings. After several vain attempts to transport salmon eggs to Europe, he devised a refrigerator box, and in 1875 succeeded in carrying the eggs to Germany. He also, at the same time, invented a conical hatching apparatus, by which, through the admission of water at the bottom, shad and other eggs were hatched in bulk instead of upon trays or floating boxes.

In 1884 he hatched the adhesive eggs of the smelt, although all previous attempts had been failures.

He has been sent abroad several times by the United States government in connection with fish culture, and he has medals and testimonials from many scientific societies of Europe. In 1877 he became fishery editor of The Field in Chicago, and since 1880 he has held a like position with Forest and Stream in New York city.

In 1882 he was sent by Prof. Baird to Roslyn, Long Island, to hatch salmon for the Hulsion River. In 1883 he was appointed superintendent of the New York fish commission station at Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island. Here the hatching of lobsters, codfish, and other marine forms was begun. He has published "Ichthyology of the Adirondacks" (1885), which describes several fishes heretofore unknown.

The history of this noble young Lieut. Howard M. Burnham, who gave his life for his country on the battlefield while in its defense, deserves more than a passing notice, and to do him justice would occupy many pages in this work. A very extended history of him is given in "Burnham Genealogy," published by his father, which I would refer to in giving the life of one who fell in the battle of Chickamauga, Ga., on the 19th of Sept., 1863.

William Tyler Mather is professor in Williston Academy, Easthampton, Mass.

Rev. Dr. R. H. Mather's first wife was a descendant of Harrison Gray Otis of Massachusetts. His second wife descended, on maternal side, from Rev. William Worthington, the first minister of Saybrook, Conn.; also from Col. John Ely, of Revolutionary fame.

Since the death of Rev. Dr. Mather, the following articles appeared in the Springfield Republican of April 18, 1890, and lines from Helen Marquis:

DEATH OF PROF. MATHER OF AMHERST

Prof. Richard H. Mather of Amherst College died at midnight Wednesday, after battling for nearly a year with a painful malady, which, to his immediate friends, was known from the first to be fatal. The loss will be a serious one to the college, for Prof. Mather held a place of peculiar relationship to the institution, which he served with his best talent and for which he was equipped to accomplish much. The favorite pupil and young companion of the venerable and loved Prof. W. S. Tyler, he was fitted for a professorship in the college before the days of specialties, when a broad and general equipment was demanded. Although he left the ministry, he never gave up preaching, and his sermons will be remembered with pleasure by many people in the Connecticut valley and elsewhere. He was a speaker of more than average ability, and a forcible and graceful writer, a man of great tact and force, who touched the public at many points. He will be greatly missed in the college, the town, and the region where he was one of the notable figures. The illness which ended his life was cancer of the bowels. A dangerous surgical operation last fall made him a helpless invalid, but prolonged his life. He was reluctant to retire from active duties, however, and even when in suffering conducted his work for a time at his house, when too ill to go out. He bore the keenest suffering with fortitude, and uncomplainingly looked forward to the release.

Prof. Mather was the son of Henry Mather, of Binghamton, N. Y., where he was born Feb. 12, 1835. He prepared for college at Hopkins Academy in Hadley, Williston Seminary, and the Binghamton Academy. He took three years at Amherst in the class of 1856, making for himself a fine record as a student, especially in the languages. He left college at the close of his junior year, spent a year in traveling through Europe and the East, and then joined the class of 1857 at Amherst. After his graduation at the head of his class, he returned to Europe and studied philology at Berlin University. From 1859 to 1861 he was instructor in Greek at Amherst, and continued in the service of the college until his death. He was made an assistant professor of Greek in 1861, and professor of Greek and German in 1864, a position he held for fifteen years.

It was during the seventies that Prof. Mather became interested in the fine arts, and in 1879 he dropped German and was made lecturer on sculpture. Through his energy and financial ability the college secured the finest collection of plaster casts in the country outside of Boston. An art museum was opened in Williston Hall in 1874, Prof. Mather having visited Europe a short time before in order to make a careful selection of casts, engravings, photographs, etc., and the establishment of this museum marks a distinct stage in the growth of the college, as it supplemented the art lectures and became a notable factor in the training and advancement of the students. The museum contains casts of most of the famous antique marbles, as well as specimens of the work of Michael Angelo, Canova, and Thorwaldsen. The famous frieze of the Parthenon encircles the hall, and the collection contains full-sized casts of the Ghiberti gates, Crawford's doors at the national capitol, Angelo's Moses, the Ægina marbles, the Mycena lions, and scores of other art treasures. The Amherst cast of the Crawford doors is the only one in the country. Among the antique statuary, full size there may be mentioned — from the Vatican: the Kneeling Disk Thrower, the Disk Thrower in Repose, Apollo Sauröthmos (Praxiteles), Cupid (Praxiteles), Demosthenes (Polykleitos), Luceon, Apollo Belvidere, Torso Belvidere, Fighting Gladiator (Agias), Sleeping Ariadne and Minerva Medica; from the Louvre: Venus of Melos, Diana with the Stag, Diana Robing, Venus de Medici, Germanicus and the Borghese Achilles; the museum in Berlin is represented by the Amazon of Polycleitos and Meleager; from the museum in Athens: the Torso of Victory (Peonios), discovered by Prof. Curtius at Olympia, and Hermes supporting the infant Bacchus (Praxiteles), also discovered at Olympia by Prof. Curtius; from the capitol in Rome: the Satyr (Praxiteles), the Dying Gaul, the Wolf and Twins, Flora and Antinous; from the museum at Naples: Psyche, the Sitting Mercury and Æschines, the Wrestlers, the Knife-grinder and Dancing Faun. Fine specimens of mediæval and modern statuary and antique busts are to be found in the museum, and the collection of bas-reliefs is exceptionally good. The miscellaneous casts include the Rosetta stone, the Vase of Candelabrum from the Appian Way, the Bacchanalian vase, a well-executed plan of the Acropolis, and the newly-acquired statue of Minerva, which is claimed to be a truthful representation of the statue in ivory and gold in the Parthenon.

Prof. Mather went abroad again in 1888, when he prepared a course of lectures upon Greek life, taking occasion to add to the college museum and art collection such specimens as would best illustrate the subject. It was the professor's dream to see the erection of an art building that would be a fitting companion to Walker Hall, the college church, and the gymnasium, now facing the campus. If his life had been spared a few years longer, there is no doubt that he would have been able to carry out these plans. He had been promised small sums by various loyal friends of Amherst, but they did not aggregate enough to justify the undertaking.

There can be no doubt that Prof. Mather's devotion to art has had a marked influence upon college life at Amherst. His divisions were always crowded, and even outside the college there came frequent demands for his lectures. It is quite possible that his art lectures and his notes on Greek home life may form the nucleus for a book for the general public. Prof.

Mather was for many years a familiar figure at alumni gatherings and college reunions. No member of the faculty probably came in contact with so many graduates in their own States and at their own homes as did Prof. Mather. His voice was usually for money, and it was not always raised in behalf of Greek or art either. His interest in the college broadened and deepened with age, and while other members of the Amherst faculty were greater favorites with graduating classes, it was long ago recognized that Prof. Mather had a strong hold upon those who were in a position to inform themselves about the work of the college, and were ready to aid the institution with money. In Tyler's "History of Amherst College," issued in 1873, occurs this passage: "For many years now the instruction in Greek has all been given by professors,—and aid by Prof. Tyler and Prof. Mather. To the scholarly attainments of the latter, his personal and professional enthusiasm, his skill and patience in drilling the freshmen, and his inspiring lectures on the Greek drama—the department is most indebted for its success. At the same time the college owes not a little to Prof. Mather for his teaching and lectures in the German language and literature, for his zeal and success in raising scholarships and funds for the museum of art, and for his services in his turn in the pulpit." He was a hard worker, and he issued several college text-books as the incidents of a faithful career as an educator. These include selections from Herodotus and Thucydides, the Electra of Sophocles, a Manual of Sculpture, the Prometheus Bound of Æschylus, and other books. While he was never settled over any church he frequently acted as a supply to the churches in neighboring towns and cities. He received the degree of D.D. from Bowdoin College in 1879.

The first wife of Prof. Mather was a daughter of Daniel Carmichael of Geneva, N. Y., who died in 1877. By her he had three children,—the wife of Rev. Dr. Williston Walker of the Theological Seminary at Hartford, Prof. William T. Mather of Williston Seminary, and Edward Mather of Boston. His second wife, daughter of Samuel H. Mather of Cleveland, O., survives him. There is also a young daughter by his second marriage.

Prof. Richard Henry Mather, a well-known educator, died last evening, after a long illness. He was for thirty years a successful teacher at Amherst College, was the editor of a number of valuable text-books, and had gained high honor in his profession. He was born in Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 12, 1835, and graduated at Amherst in 1857. Two years later he was appointed tutor of Greek, and two years after that was promoted to the Assistant Professorship. Three years more passed, and Prof. Mather, then less than thirty years of age, was made a full professor of Greek and German. He was of great assistance in the growth and development of Amherst, and secured for the college the finest collection of plaster casts in the United States, excepting only the one in Boston. In 1878 Prof. Mather, while retaining his Greek professorship, also became lecturer on sculpture for the college. He received the degree of D.D. from Bowdoin in 1879. Although never the pastor of a church, he often supplied pulpits in New York, Boston, and other cities. His editing has been devoted in great part to Herodotus, Thucydides, the "Electra" of Sophocles, and the "Prometheus Bound" of Æschylus. The winter of 1887-88 he spent in Athens in connection with the work of his professorships. Prof. Mather's first wife was Miss Cornelia of Geneva, N. Y. He had three children by his first wife—the wife of Rev. Williston Walker, D.D., of the Theological Seminary at Hartford, Conn., Prof. William T. Mather of the Williston Academy at Easthampton, Mass., and Mr. Edward Mather, formerly of New York, but now of Boston. Prof. Mather married for his second wife Miss Ellen A. Mather, the daughter of Samuel H. Mather, LL.D., president of the Society for Savings in Cleveland, O. Mrs. Mather survives Prof. Mather, together with a young daughter.

RICHARD H. MATHER.

In the South Tyrol, where those dazzling peaks,
 The Dolomites, uprear their crystal heads,
 The hardy mountaineer, who daily treads,
 Their wild recesses, strangely never speaks
 Of them as aught but nature's common freaks:
 Laughing to scorn the faith which yearly spreads,
 That ages reared them out of ocean beds:
 To him they are but marble free from streaks.
 So this rare soul has stood among his peers,
 With crystal front, of inner genius they knew,
 And always purer from a nearer view.
 But not until amid his life's best years
 He, stricken, fell, have all agreed, with tears,
 That once in ages, only, such men grew.

Rev. William Loomis Mather graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., 1828. The early ministry of Mr. Mather was in New England, from whence he went West, and was settled over the Plymouth Congregational Church in Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, where he was greatly beloved by his people. At the breaking out of the war he went into the army, and was at the battle of Bull Run. He was Chaplain of the 3d Regiment of Wisconsin Volunteers. After more than a year's service he was compelled, by failing health, to resign his post. He, however, by rest, recovered, and again returned to the army, and was commissioned by President Lincoln as U. S. Chaplain; stationed at Louisville and New Albany as Hospital Chaplain, and at Willet's Point, N. Y. harbor, until the close of the war. Mr. Mather lived until Apr. 15, 1868, when he died at Andover, Mass. It was at Andover where he prepared for his ministry.

His useful life, self-sacrificing and faithful devotion to God and to his country, have left a memory which his friends gratefully cherish." Polly Burritt, his grandmother, was the sister of Elihu Burritt, the "Learned Blacksmith." His mother, Melitable Loomis, a kinswoman of Professor E. Loomis LL.D., the distinguished mathematician, a descendant of Joseph Loomis, the emigrant.

His children:—Anna Stuart was, before her marriage, connected with the Normal Institute for Kindergartners in Boston, Mass.; Isabella T. married Rev. L. H. Blake, pastor of Immanuel Church, Boston Highlands. The son, Rev. Wallace E. Mather, is settled in the ministry, in Paris, N. Y.

Henry Brainard Mather was a dry goods merchant in Boston, at first of the firm of Mather & Goddard, but for the last forty years of his life of Lawrence & Co. One of his partners, Amos A. Lawrence, Esq., wrote me after the death of Mr. Mather, saying that he held him in the highest esteem and that he was a remarkable man in all good qualities that go to make a true gentleman.

1754 Samuel H. Mather, LL.D. (son of Ozias, M.D.³, brother of above), of Cleveland, Ohio. Born Feb. 20, 1813; died ; married Emily W. Gregory, May 9, 1842.

 3306 ELLEN AUGUSTA. b. Apr. 13, 1847; m. Rev. Dr. Richard H. Mather, of Amherst College.

Mr. Samuel H. Mather was a graduate of Dartmouth College, N. H., 1834. In March 2, 1888, from a sketch of the graduates of the college, S. H. Mather is noticed, from which I extract the following.

"Samuel H. Mather, the President of the Society for Savings of Cleveland, Ohio, probably manages the largest bank ever controlled by any graduate of Dartmouth. On Oct. 3, 1887, by the report of the Bank Examiner of the State of Ohio, this savings bank had on deposit $14,324,255.17, besides a surplus of $1,424,787.18. This liability to depositors is larger than that of any bank of any kind west of the Alleghanies, and is surpassed by only a few anywhere. Mr. Mather originated the Society for Savings in April, 1849, and as its principal officer and manager pluckily stood by it during years of waiting and growth and of comparatively small things, until now for years its success has been a marvel in banking circles. It is no stock company for private gain. Mr. Mather deserves the applause of his college not only for the real greatness and high and beneficent character of his success as a banker, but for what he has done for Cleveland in all her religious and educational institutions and all good enterprises."

The degree of LL.D. was conferred by Dartmouth College in 1889 on Samuel P. Mather.

In a memoir, published by I. J. Austin, of Newport, R. I., in New England Historic and Genealogical Society, 1883, also in pamphlet form, containing about nineteen pages, we get a fine history of William W.
 Mather, who was a classmate of Mr. Austin, in addition to the various positions he filled so well. He adds: "As an author upon subjects of general science and miscellaneous topics, his papers in this department, from 1836 to 1855, number thirty-one. After the latter date, until just before his decease, he was still engaged in congenial occupations, but no record of them has been found." Mr. Austin finishes his memoir of him as follows:

"In the career of Mr. Mather, thus imperfectly sketched, there can hardly fail to be perceived some of the traits which characterized his distinguished progenitor. The conscientious and patient industry, the eagerness for knowledge, the firm adherence to his sense of duty, the deep-seated and sincere religious principle which were conspicuous in Richard Mather, were prominent in his descendant. As the late Dr. Palmer justly observed, "In his death, science has lost a master and the country a benefactor." His position in the ranks of knowledge cannot easily be filled."

Extracts in Western papers after his death:

"Prof. W. W. Mather, an old and honored citizen of Columbus, Ohio, died at his residence on State street, Saturday morning. In the death of Prof. Mather science has lost a master in our country a benefactor. His position on the roll of knowledge and research cannot easily be filled." After summing up his various positions of usefulness, adds, "The Professor had the largest and best collections of minerals and every description of geological specimens in the West. It is to be hoped this cabinet will be placed in our State Agricultural Department of the Capitol, as a benefit to the cause of science and a memento of Prof. Mather."

Another paper speaks thus of his decease:

"In the vigor of manhood, in the midst of his usefulness, with the purity of his life unsullied, the honors of his professional career untarnished, he has passed away. He lived to honor his race and station; he died to be missed and lamented. In these allusions to the deceased we have spoken of him only as a member of the common brotherhood of our race, as the man of science, intent upon the duties of his professional life. But to those who knew him best the honors he had won in other departments of life were overshadowed by the adornments of those spiritual graces that so eminently characterized him and endeared him to those with whom he moved in Christian alliance and intercourse. In his extensive knowledge of the physical world, in all his scientific investigations, he found nothing to foster the barren spirit of skepticism or a cold and cheerless infidelity. He found the name of his God inscribed on the flinty rock. He looked down into the deep valleys and up to the lofty mountains, the voice of the Almighty Creator came up to him from the one, and down to him from the other. The deep recesses of the earth, which he explored, taught him lessons of the infinite wisdom, power, and goodness of the Deity.

"He early embraced, with a warm and ardent faith, the revealed will of God as recorded in His Word, as he felt it coincided with the great book of nature, the lessons of which he was daily reading. In the winter of 1838-9 he connected himself with the Baptist denomination, and with them continued to worship till his last sickness detained him from the house of God. He was a member of the First Baptist Church of Columbus, and those who have been in attendance with him at the sanctuary for the last few months of his life could not but notice the increased fervor of his devotions and the marked earnestness of his prayers and exhortations. As his disease increased upon him, and the probabilities of his recovery diminished, the calmness of his spirit and the firmness of his faith were never for a moment disturbed. He looked at the past and saw it gliding from his view, without regret; he looked for the future, and it was all radiant with the light and glory of immortality. The grave had lost its terrors, the victory of a Christian faith was his. He spent the greater portion of his life among the hills, rocks, and caverns of the earth. He made the earth his study. That earth has now opened her bosom to receive him. The earth can only claim that which is kindred with herself. All that she has given she may take. Ashes to ashes, dust to dust. God breathed into that manly frame the breath of life. He planted there a living soul. What God thus gave He has taken unto Himself. That noble intellect, that well-stored mind, freighted with its treasures of earthly knowledge, adorned and beautified by the sanctifying treasures of grace, our faith can follow in its trackless pathway up to the throne of God. The funeral solemnities were deeply impressive. The pastor of the church preached an appropriate discourse, and the remains were deposited in their narrow home under the escort and amid the interesting and solemn obsequies of the masonic fraternity. May God sanctify the afflictive event to the relatives and numerous friends of the deceased."

Mr. Wm. T. Mather was a man of prepossessing appearance and of fine social qualities, and a person of decided business abilities; was one of the founders of the Board of Trade in Chicago; he owned and sent the second and third vessels that sailed direct from Chicago to Europe; he was a very extensive traveler in the United States, England, Ireland, Scotland, France, Germany, also in Africa and on the Mediterranean Sea.

1769 Elvira R. Mather¹⁰ (dau. of Watrous⁹, Dr. Eleazar⁸, Dr. Eleazar⁷, Joseph⁶, Richard⁵, Timothy⁴, Rev. Richard³, Thomas², John¹), of Akron, Ohio. Born _____; married John H. Crawford, 1835.

joyed the companionship of his fellowmen. His laugh was wholesome and never cynical. His appreciation of a kindness was very keen. He was a bachelor, but his respect for women was very high. He was absolutely free from pretension of every sort. The arrogance of wealth was so far removed from his nature that he did not know what it meant. The plain manners which he had carried into his little grocery store were not laid aside when he became a prosperous banker. Not many knew him well, but those who did liked him and admired him. He was a good landlord; after the reverses of 1873, he went voluntarily to several of his tenants and proposed a reduction of their rents. Those who imagined him a peculiarly peevish man could not understand this; but he governed his life by certain fixed rules of justice, and to a greater extent than many a professed philanthropist, he obeyed the precept of the Golden Rule — he treated others as he would wish them to treat him.

Early in the war, Mr. Mather made some wise and profitable investments in real estate. His property rose in value, and people called him lucky. When he embarked in the banking business his future was freely predicted; but he belonged to the small class of men who never fail. His outlays were so small that he was always able to keep a reserve fund. His investments were at once bold and cautious; he thoroughly understood the rule of financial success. He bought when things were cheap, and sold when things were dear. At first sight it would appear that this is the universal rule, but it is seldom practiced. When railroad shares which are now selling at par, were quoted at twenty cents on the dollar, not many persons could be induced to buy them, though they are in eager demand to-day. But Mr. Mather bought, realizing enormous profits, which were equally open to all. He took risks, but so distributed his investments that the failure of no one scheme, or two, or three, could endanger his fortune. He found his pleasure in the acquisition of wealth; he did not know how to be extravagant. In recent years he has always contributed modestly to all subscription lists that were presented to him, and in many ways he showed that he was trying to learn the art of spending money — in the accumulation of which he was a very master. But his final sickness came too soon for him to make much advancement in that part

CAPT. SAMUEL MATHER,

DEEP RIVER, CONN.

Samuel Webb Mather was killed in the army at Florida. Mrs. Hubbard has two children, Catherine, born Sept. 13, 1879; Samuel Mather, born Dec. 5, 1881.

Samuel Webb Mather, second son of Joseph Higgins and of Catherine Webb, was born in Deep River, Saybrook Township, Conn., in 1824.

At an early age he exhibited nautical traits and instincts in high degree, and at the age of sixteen years was permitted, reluctantly, by his father, to make a voyage to China, as a boy "before the mast."

His unusual qualities as a sailor attracted the attention of Commodore R. B. Forbes of Boston, one of the most accomplished commanders of the century, who was a passenger on the return trip with Samuel.

Commodore Forbes, though an entire stranger to Samuel and to his family before, wrote to his father, urgently recommending that Samuel be educated and fitted as a seaman for command.

This advice was followed, and Commodore Forbes and his brother were ever after his firm friends.

When thirty-one years of age, Captain Mather was chosen to command the American clipper ship Nightingale, of Boston, in the international contest between her and the British clipper ship Challenger, from Shanghai, China, to London.

The Nightingale had just been beaten in a race over the same waters. Under her new captain she reached the English channel nearly two weeks ahead of the Challenger, and restored the supremacy of the "Stars and Stripes."

At the personal request of Commodore Maury, who was at the head of the Hydrographic Bureau at Washington in 1853, Captain Mather pursued the "great circle course" projected by Maury, for doubling the Cape of Good Hope in making the Australian passage, demonstrating new and most important theories and facts in ocean navigation, and reducing the time from New York to Melbourne from ninety-two days to seventy-six, which has never been equaled by any other sailing ship.

He also shortened the time from the China Sea to London, and made other memorable voyages, which are recorded in the "United States Government Sailing Directions," and in the Bureau of Hydrography at Washington, and are followed as ocean routes.

Captain Mather explored and found new channels in the China Sea, sometimes with a small boat and hand lead, and added much to the nautical literature of his country.

He many times circumnavigated the globe, and was received with public demonstrations of respect and of regard in the principal maritime cities of the world.

In 1861, at the outbreak of the Civil War, the ships and officers of the Navy being scattered to remote points, a "Union Defence Committee" was organized, consisting of the most eminent merchants, business men, and citizens of New York, Boston, and Philadelphia, auxiliary to the Secretary of the Navy. Captain Mather was the first officer chosen and commissioned under the auspices of that committee in the naval service.

He took more prizes in 1861 than any other commander in the navy.

He commanded under the flags of Commodore Stringham and of Commodore Dupont, winning commendation from them and from the Secretary.

Captain Mather fell, killed instantly, receiving many balls, while leading an attack on forts on the Atlantic coast at Musquito Inlet, Florida.

His loss was greatly deplored. Commodore Dupont wrote of him in the highest eulogy.

His body was returned with his arms with honor by the insurgents, assigning as a reason that he had fought so bravely and fallen so gallantly.

His remains were sent North by the government, and lie in his native village.

Secretary Welles, in announcing his loss to the country, in public orders, said: "Captain Mather had no superior among that patriotic class of men who have been transferred to the Navy from the Mercantile Marine."

2513 Oliver Roberts Mather¹¹ (son of Talcott¹⁰, brother of above), of Mankato, Minn. Born at Windsor Locks, Conn., Oct. 20, 1832; married Phoebe A. Gibbons, Jan. 8, 1857.

Wm H. Mather

sailed with General Banks' expedition to New Orleans. He remained with this department until February 22, 1867, a longer period of service than that of any other surgeon of the department. In March, 1865 (while connected with the 10th U. S. Colored Artillery), he was commissioned by Congress as Surgeon and Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel.

He came North in 1867, settled in Bethel, Conn., and resumed practice. He removed to Suffield in the spring of 1871, occupying the paternal homestead, and also having an office in Windsor Locks. He continued the successful practice of his profession in both towns until his last illness. He died of a sarcomatous tumor in the left arm-pit, on the 22d of May, 1888, having endured a painful illness of five months with soldierly fortitude.

At the time of his death he was a director of the Public Library Association of Suffield, in which he felt a deep interest; a member of the Board of Education, and Acting School Visitor, offices which he had filled with marked ability and fidelity for several years, and Post Surgeon of the local Post of the Grand Army of the Republic at Windsor Locks.

He married on September 15, 1868, Miss Elisabeth Beebe, daughter of Azel Beebe of Bethel, who, with three sons and three daughters, survive him.

He was a loving and faithful husband and father, a kind brother, a public-spirited citizen; he was a good neighbor and able physician; his was an open hand and a warm heart. He was an honest man, kind to the poor. He was a lover of his country, honored in his profession, respected by thinking and good men.

He gave this simple present before he died to each one of his six children a beautiful bound Testament marked in gilt letters on cover, "Papa's Gift," and in the inside a loving farewell message, written in his own hand. The funeral was very largely attended by citizens from Suffield and adjoining towns, with delegations of G. A. R. men, who found in him a true friend. Rev. Mr. Van Orden and Rev. Mr. Lockhart made the funeral services very interesting by their excellent and impressive words.

From Albany papers, after the death of A. O. Mather:

OBITUARY.

The Life and Successful Business Career of A. O. Mather.

"In the death of Mr. Mather Albany loses one of her best business men—one who by his energy and ability, ever built up a large and prosperous business in our city. Mr. Mather was born at Burlington in this State forty-eight years ago. His father was Andrew A. Mather, one of the foremost citizens of Otsego County, having once been elected Sheriff. The family was descended from the distinguished Richard Mather. Adrian was the oldest son, and early evinced brightness, aptitude, and intelligence, which were carefully indulged and promoted by his father, who discerned the future business career of his promising boy.

"In 1859 Adrian went to Elton as a clerk in the store of Edson, DeLano & Co. The following year his employers were glad to retain his services by admitting him into their firm. Five years later he came to Albany, where he at once, with his brother A. Dean, started the firm of Mather Brothers, in the wholesale grocery trade. With no outside influence, with little capital, and, in fact, naught but his own natural shrewdness, business tact, and innate integrity, the new house almost immediately took deep root in the business world, and a thriving trade was theirs from the first. In about 1869 the firm was augmented by the addition of a third brother, Andrew G. Mather. The three brothers were united in their affection to one another and to the wants of their business. All of them worked hard, while they were very meticulous in the selection of their employees. The credit of the concern was always unlimited, better, in fact, than that of many of their rivals who had more capital. This was owing largely to the promptness and honesty, which characterized all its dealings, and to the fact that the word of the brothers was always fully as good as their signatures. The marked ability and enterprise of Adrian was always conspicuous, and obtained for his business the patronage and indulgence of the large New York houses. The banks too, both here and in the metropolis, were ever ready to help them. Some time ago Mr. Mather's talents were recognized by electing him to a directorship in the State National Bank of Albany. This was a gratifying acknowledgment of his efforts in behalf of the bank. About three years ago he organized the Mather & Robinson Company, a corporation representing large cattle interests in Colorado, Montana, and Idaho. The success of this company contributed largely to the capital of the Mather Brothers, who are its principal stockholders. He was also a director of the New York National Mutual Aid Society. His delicate health alone prevented his becoming interested in another venture—the great mining developments in Colorado, in which he had great faith and for which he labored much.

He was quick to discover and to reward true merit. He detested flattery, flatterers, and pretenders, and denounced them openly. His warm sympathies and earnest endeavors were sometimes concealed by his apparent brusqueness, which was attributable wholly to his ill health. At heart he was gentle, candid, and affectionate. In his family he was a model husband, parent, and kinsman. To his relatives he was ever ready to listen and give encouragement. His charity was both intelligent and liberal. Anything worthy or deserving always found in him a supporter. He was indifferent to what any one thought of his action when he knew himself to be in the right. Albany can ill afford to lose such men. The grocery business founded by him will be continued by the sorrowing brothers, one of whom, Andrew, has had charge of its management during the absence and sickness of the deceased. Success must follow a house so established and conducted.

“At a meeting of the directors of the New York State National Bank, held this morning, the President announced the death of Adrian O. Mather, one of the directors, when the following action was taken:

“Whereas, information has been received here of the death, yesterday, at the 1st. of Wight, L. I., of our fellow director, Mr. Adrian O. Mather,— “Resolved, That we enter on our minutes our regret at this sad and unexpected occurrence.

“Eminent with more than usual attractive qualities and business abilities, Mr. Mather had, in the short time of his association with us as a director of the bank, made himself respected by us all, and we had come to add esteem to respect.

“His death is therefore a loss to the bank, and the city loses in it also an upright and intelligent merchant, whose energies, combined with those of his partners, in the house he established, have made it as well known for its prosperity as for the extent of its transactions.

Attest: D. W. WEMPLE, Cashier.”

EXTRACTS AND FOREIGN LETTERS.

LOWTON.

We have an account of Lowton in "Bailes' History of Lancashire." He says Lowton was formerly a chapelry in the parish of Winwick, but now a distinct parish, gave name to a family who adopted the surname of Kenyon, from their possessions in the neighbouring township. Adam de Lowton gave four bovates of land with his daughter in marriage to Hugh de Haydock, ancestors of Sir Gilbert de Haydock, whose daughter and heiress married Sir Peter Legh of Lyme in the reign of Henry V. and continued him in the right, lord of Haydock, Lowton, and other places in the fee of Makerfield. By the marriage of a co-heiress of Sir Thomas Langton, baron of Newton, or lord of Makerfield, Lowton came to John Fleetwood, of Penwortham, ancestor of Sir Richard Fleetwood, bart. lord of Newton in reign of James I. From Sir Thomas Fleetwood the manor and considerable property, about two centuries ago, was purchased by an ancestor of the Leghs of Lyme, the present lords of Newton and its dependences. Byrom, in the township, has been styled a manor, but probably never possessed any of the privileges. The term is applied to it in the inquisition on the death of John Byrom, 36 Elisabeth (1594). Henry, probably his son, married a daughter of Gerard of Ince, and died 12 Janes 1. 1614, seized of Byrom the manor of Parre and much other property. His son John, who died in 1614, had Henry Byrom, a major of foot under Lord Molyneux for Charles I, who was killed in the battle of Keynton, 23 Oct., 1642, leaving Samuel Byrom, whose mother was Winifred, daughter of Francis Holt, of Grizzlehurst. The Byroms of Kershall branched from those of Byrom, and produced the celebrated John Byrom, the poet. Lowton Hall, a brick mansion of the date of the seventeenth century, now a farm-house, is the property of the Legh of Lyme, who are among the principal landed proprietors of this district. Byrom Hall, of about the same age and character, also a farm-house, came into the hands of the Kessal branch, and in 1838, on the death of Eleanor, daughter of Edward Byrom, it passed to his niece, Miss Atherton of Kessalwell. The Episcopal chapel, St. Luke's, a brick and stone building in the form of a cross, built in 1732 by subscription, and enlarged in 1771, and again in 1813, with chancel rebuilt in 1856, and tower added in 1863, became in 1845 by the "Winwick Rectory Act" the parish church for a new parish, constituted of this and Golborne townships, and remained so until 1850, when a church being built in Golborne, Lowton, became a parish by itself. St. Luke's is now a rectory in the gift of the Earl of Derby, the Rev. T. Forster, M.A. (1856) being rector. An additional district church, St. Mary's, has been erected since, consecrated Nov. 21, 1861; it is a stone building in the early English style. It is a perpetual curacy in the gift of Miss M. Leigh, of Hale, and the Rev. J. W. S. Simpson, M.A. (1861), is the incumbent. There are also a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1788, and a primitive Methodist chapel.

Winwick Parish. Winwick deservedly ranks amongst the most extensive agricultural parishes in Lancashire. The extreme length of the ancient parish, from Houghton in the south to the northern boundary of Ashton in Makerfield, was eight miles and a half, and in breadth from Burton Wood in the west of Bury Lane in the east seven miles, comprehending an area of 22,476 statute acres. The ancient parish of Winwick contained up to the year 1841 the ten townships of Southworth with-Croft, and Newton-in-Makerfield, Culcheth, Kenyon, Ashton-in-Makerfield, Haydock, Lowton, Golborne, Winwick-with-Halme, Houghton, Middleton, and Asbury. In that year, however, by the Winwick Rectory Act, promoted by the liberality of the rector, this parish was divided. Southworth with-Croft and Newton-in-Makerfield (or in the willows) were at once made entirely separate parishes. In 1845 the contemplated division was carried further. The amended Winwick Rectory Act of this year constituted Culcheth and Kenyon township into the parish of New Church, Ashton-in-Makerfield and Haydock into two parishes respectively named Ashton-in-Makerfield and St. Thomas-in-Ashton, Lowton and Golborne into one parish, with provision for subsequent separation, Winwick being left with merely the two townships of Winwick-with-Halme, and Houghton, Middleton, and Asbury. In 1850 a new church was completed and consecrated in Golborne, which thus becomes a separate parish, and Haydock has been since separated from Ashton, St. Peter's from Newton, and St. Mary's from Lowton. So that the ancient parish of Winwick now consists of the following eleven district parishes, viz.: Croft-with-Southworth, Newton-in-Makerfield, St. Peter's, Newton, New Church, Ashton-in-Makerfield, Haydock, St. Thomas-in-Ashton, Lowton, Lowton St. Mary's, Golborne, and Winwick. From William Beaumont's "History and Antiquities of Winwick," I take a few items:

"Sir Peter Legerester tells us from Camden that parishes in England began to be formed about 636, which is so near the period at which King Oswald fell that we may well imagine it to be the era when Winwick became a parish in Newton Hundred, where a church was in due time to be built and dedicated to him as its saint by a popular canonization. In 1086, when the Domesday Survey was made, this church had been built, and its district or parish is described."

Mr. Beaumont gives an account of all the masters of the Winwick Grammar School, from the 1st, Henry Johnson, the former curate of Winwick church; 2d, Andrew Ryder; 3d, William Horrocker; 4th, Richard Mather, who was appointed by Sir Peter Lezli, Knight. Then follows an account of Richard Mather of nearly three pages. Then follow the names of Richard Mather's successors down to 1871, when Frederick Walters and John Edmund Gillon were appointed.

In 1869 the school commissioner, Bryce, made some statements implying that the school had not produced any very satisfactory results. Mr. Beaumont says: "In making these remarks the learned commissioner took too confined a view of the value and use of the school. Had he known more of its history he would have seen that it had sent forth scholars, as well natives as strangers, whose names will live. Of the former was Mather, of Lowton, and of the latter was Cromwell's chaplain, the learned Howe."

TOXTETH PARK, LIVERPOOL.

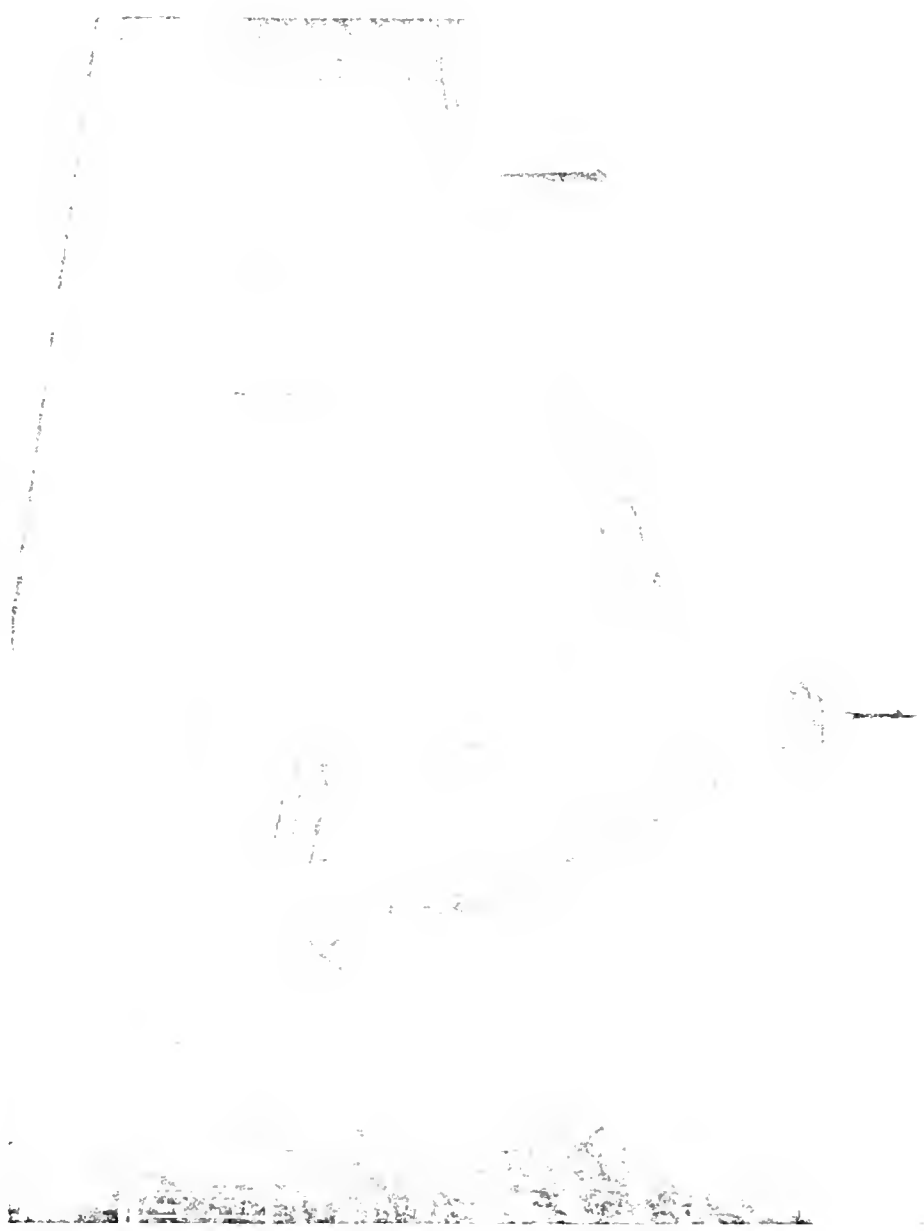

Toxteth Park is bounded north by the parish of Liverpool, northeast by West Derby, east by parish of Chelldwell, west by the Mersey. Two rivulets, which, united, are commonly called the Jordan, but which were the ancient Oskelesbroke, are the only supplies received by the Mersey through Toxteth Park. Toxteth Park was held by the Crown in 1297; if it was not then the property of the Earls of Lancaster, it soon after came into their possession. It was seven miles in circumference in 1327. In 1426 Toxteth Park was well stocked with deer. In 1604 it was sold to Richard Molyneux. The population of Toxteth Park in 1831 was 24,067; in 1861, 69,284. All the Queen's Docks and all the docks south of it are in Toxteth Park. (In 1832 Toxteth Park was received into the borough of Liverpool.)

Rev. Valentine B. Davis, the present pastor of Toxteth Park Chapel, in his account of the ancient chapel from the year 1618 to 1883, and of its ministers, particularly of Richard Mather, the first minister, says that Toxteth Park, which had been Crown property since the reign of King John, was in the year 1604 disparked, and came through purchase into the hands of Richard Molyneux (created a Baronet in 1611), a member of the family from whom it had been formerly acquired for the king. His representatives, now Earls of Sefton, are still large owners of property in the neighborhood. Toward the close of Elisabeth's reign the park is spoken of as "waste land without inhabitants." But on the disparking of the domain a number of farmers settled on the land and began its cultivation. These people seem to have been Puritan in their leanings, and at once gave a distinctive character to the district.

Some trace of this may perhaps be found in the biblical names there met with. A river Jordan runs there by a farm called Jericho. Then we hear of David's Throne, a rock standing out between the two branches of the Dingle; and Adam's Buttery, a cave hard by. "The holy land" is said to have been at one time the designation of the district. Great changes have come over the park the last 280 years. In place of the farm lands of the first settlers we now find a wilderness of small streets between the river and Park Road, and the cultivated beauty of the Princess and Sefton Parks on the outskirts of a great city. What is now part of the long line of the Liverpool Docks was, in 1604, the natural shore of the Mersey, undisturbed by traffic. Only the "Dingle" preserves in part some of the old features of the country, and now that seems to be also doomed. Sir Richard Molyneux, who was a Roman Catholic, gave the Puritans the necessary land for a chapel, showing very great liberality not often found in those days. The chapel was built (by them or their landlord) most probably in the year 1618, at the time of the settlement of their first minister. The people had already established a school for their children. The humble little chapel was built by a stream which ran down the course of what is now Park Road, the sources of which have long since been dried up. The rising ground towards Liverpool shut out the view of the church tower and the turrets of the old castle, and it must have been a beautifully secluded spot. Even now there is a peculiar restfulness about this place if one can put away for a moment the thought of the great city, which has stretched out to include even this quiet retreat, and can call up once more a picture of its primitive surroundings."

CHURCH AT FOXTEETH PARK, ENGLAND,

The following was the first letter that I received from a Mather in connection with the "Mather Genealogy." Some may be interested in it as coming from a prominent branch of the family in England:

"CHRIST CHURCH VICARAGE,
BOOTLE, LIVERPOOL, ENGLAND, 9 April, 1877.

MY DEAR SIR:—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of Feb. 28, and should be very glad to give you any information in my power with regard to any link that might exist connecting our families together, but unfortunately we have never been able to trace any connection with the family of Cotton Mather. In my younger days I took some trouble in the matter, and discovered as much as I could with respect to that family. My information tallies exactly with what you send me, but I believe that our family came from a different part of England, though probably in far distant times a branch of the same stock as your own. I have heard of the descendants of Cotton Mather being in Nova Scotia at the present day. The name is by no means an uncommon one in this country. You are probably aware that it is the Saxon term for a "Mower." I am very glad to hear that some bearing the same name as oneself are so distinguished in your country. I trust that success may attend your steps, and that we both may be acknowledged as true members of the one great family of heaven's matter.

I have the honor to be, my dear sir, ys. v. ry truly,

E. L. MATHER.

HORACE E. MATHER, Esq.

Rev. E. L. Mather is a descendant of Sir Christopher Mather of Yorkshire.

From Rev. G. Mather, F.L.S., 11 Nerwood Grove, Liverpool, Feb. 6, 1880:

To HORACE E. MATHER, Esq.

DEAR SIR:—I was born 13th of March, 1821. My father was Edward Mather, born at Huntley Green Farm, Staffordshire, but long resident at Chertieck, Derbyshire. My brothers were, Edward, William, John, and Henry (the father of the Henry you refer to). Our ancestors lived for several generations under Earl Ferrers, at Huntley Green. My sons are, George Alexander, William Edward, and Arthur Barlistr, with two daughters. My youngest son is under sixteen, but preparing to matriculate at the London University. I have published several works, the principal being, "Lectures on the Beautiful and Sublime in Nature and Morals." This is in the 3d edition (or 6th thousand).

Wishing you success in your projected work, and that you may be enriched with the best of blessings,

I am yours very truly,

GEORGE MATHER.

P. S.—It may be owing to my volumes of Lectures that I have been elected a Fellow of the London Literary and Scientific Society. I am now resident in Liverpool, as the superintendent of the Brunswick Circuit of the Wesleyan Methodist Church. I left London August last, where I had been for 9 years.

From Judge Mather Byles Des Brisay, of Bridgewater, County of Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, July 28, 1880:

HORACE E. MATHER, Esq.

DEAR SIR:—I would feel obliged if you could conveniently send me a copy of the paper relating to the history of the Mather family sent by you to Judge Johnston some time since. I am a grandson of Sarah Byles, daughter of Rev. Mather Byles, D.D., formerly of Boston; she married Thomas Des Brisay, Capt. Royal Artillery, whose father was commanding officer at Halifax, Gen. Des Brisay.

I am yours very truly,

MATHER BYLES DES BRISAY.

Judge M. B. Des Brisay has sent to me a very large amount of family history connected with the descendants of his ancestor, the Rev. Increase Mather, D.D., of Boston, Mass. — H. E. M.

Letter from Henry James Mather, a London merchant, whose ancestors came from Scotland to Northhamshire, England, about 200 years since.

JERSEY, CHANNEL ISLANDS, G. B., Jan. 28, 1882.

H. E. MATHER, Esq., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A.

DEAR SIR:—I am pleased to inform you that your letters to me of last November, with their interesting enclosures and pleasant information, have been duly received by me in this my winter island home. They have been specially interesting to me, and have been the sources of many happy thoughts and instructive studies, and I shall have much pleasure in doing all I can to forward the object you have in view; at the same time I fear not being able to do much for you. I know no one in my family worthy of your notice but my own father, Mr. James Mather, of Nottingham, who was distinguished for his Christian virtues and as a humble worker in the Christian church with which he and his ancestors had been so many years connected. As I hope to be in Nottingham during the coming summer, I will obtain more information and give you full particulars. However, there is nothing connected with his life which is very interesting. Being by profession a mechanical engineer, he was selected and appointed in 1821 to establish the manufacture of lace at Calais, in France, that has now become a marvelous industry and has a world-wide reputation. But in addition he also established in the lower town of Calais, at St. Pierre, a Christian church and Sunday-school which has been a great blessing to the English community there. There is a tablet erected to his memory in the chapel there and his name is known and revered by every English family there. I will forward you his photo if possible. So far as the name of Mather is concerned, it is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, recorded in Great Britain. It is of Swedish origin, and is to be found in the Swedish dictionary spelt exactly as we spell it, and means "Madder," a vegetable dye. So far as the crest is concerned, herewith you have ours, which is a "Hand and Spear upon a Rock Sable." Very significant of the mission of the first of the name, and also no doubt in character of a "Norse Robber" who first set his foot upon a Rock on the north coast of Scotland. Will write you again shortly. My address will be as above until May next.

With best wishes, Yours faithfully,
H. J. MATHER.

Mr. Mather has since died, his friend Samuel B. Carnall, Esq., of Isle of Wight, writes me.

Letter from Rev. Henry Sneyd Mather:

CLIDDESSEN RECTORY.

BASINGSTOKE, March 13, 1888.

DEAR SIR:—I have only this morning received your letter requesting some account of my family. My father, Geo. Mather, was an only child, and formerly lived in Kent. In 1845 he married Caroline Penelope Sneyd, daughter of Admiral Sneyd of Huntley Hall. At Admiral Sneyd's death he became the owner of Huntley Hall, Cheddle, Staffordshire. He was ordained in 1877 to the curacy of Willingate Doe, in the County of Essex. In 1883 I was presented to the Living of Longford in the County of Shropshire. In 1885 I married Caroline Louisa, youngest daughter of Ralph Merrick and Lady Hestor Leeke, of Longford Hall, Shropshire. In 1887 I was presented by the Earl of Portsmouth (Lady Hestor Leeke) brother to this Living Cliddesden, Cam Farleigh in the County of Southampton. I have two children, my eldest a boy, Harry Ralph, born Oct. 11, 1886. If I can give you any further information I shall be very glad to do so.

Yours faithfully,

HENRY SNEYD MATHER.

Letter from Rev. James Mather of Dalry, Galloway County, Scotland:

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN MANSE,

DALRY, GALLOWAY, SCOTLAND, 22d January, 1886.

MY DEAR SIR:—Your letter came the other day, filling me with a kind of glad surprise. I am afraid that I cannot throw much light on my Mather ancestry. I know something of Mr. John Mather of Newton Mearns and Glasgow; we may be reckoned cousins in a third or fourth degree. The late Rev. William Mather, of Stanley Free Church, near Perth, was also a relative. I was born 17th of May, 1839, and married my cousin, Henrietta Mather, 11th June, 1867. She died in April, 1877, leaving four children, William, James, Henrietta, and Marion. My father was William Mather, who was farmer in Carrat, and then in Bonnytonmoor, Eaglesham parish, where he died in 1875. My grandfather was James Mather, hirth or proprietor of Inches, which adjoins Bonnytonmoor. He had three sons and five daughters, who grew up to manhood and womanhood and married. James, my wife's father, was the eldest, John next, and then William, my father. My father's sister, Marior, was married to David Pollok, brother and biographer of Robert Pollok, author of the poem entitled "The Course of Time." Her husband died 20 years ago at Hazleden, Mearns, where his widow still lives. Mid Moorhouse, where Pollok was born, is a farm that meets with Inches to the south, and Bonnytonmoor to the east. My grandfather's brother was John Mather of South Moorhouse, who, in his old age, sold it and went with his family to America. I think they all went away except my father's cousin, Mary Mather, who was married to James Steven of Bankend, near Dunlop, Ayrshire. She died a few years ago, near 90 years of age. My great-grandfather was John Mather, proprietor of South Moorhouse and Inches. He gave Inches to his son James, and South Moorhouse to his son John, as we have seen. His father again, my great-great-grandfather, was William Mather, who came from Kirkland, a farm on the Cart in the same parish — Eaglesham — and bought South Moorhouse and Inches. How long the Mathers had been in Kirkland, before that I cannot say; most likely two or three generations. The Mrs. Mathers came from England and settled down in Kirkland. A branch of his descendants took root further up the Cart at a place called Millha', I think, although Christopher North calls it Cragghall.

Christopher North, that is, Professor Wilson, who spent his young days in the Mearns, and was afterward editor of Blackwood's Magazine, speaks of a Mary Mather in one of his articles, "Christopher in his Sporting Jacket." You will have heard of his notes, "Ambrosiana." One of the Millha' branch went to Waterfoot on the Cart, and became the proprietor of a farm there. His name was James. He was an elder in the Cameronian Church. His son, William, is laird of Waterfoot, and lives at Kirkhill Mearns. His daughter, Elisabeth, was married to Mr. Cameron, late minister of the United Presbyterian Church, Mearns. She died a short time before her husband, leaving four or five children. James Mather of Waterfoot had brothers, Robert of Budhill, Boston, and Matthew, M.D., of Glasgow, the father of Dr. George of Glasgow. William Mather, probably a cousin of James of Waterfoot, went to Netherplace Mearns and bought it. His son Arthur succeeded him in the farm; his son William became a minister, and died some years ago at Stanley. Possibly he had another son, and sister of Mr. John Mather of Newton Mearns, and of Glasgow. Arthur Mather died some years ago. His son, William, is in Netherplace. William's sister, Agnes, was married to David Hutchinson, of Malletsleugh Mearns, and went out with her husband to America (Canada).

I think, a few years ago. Another sister is Ann, married to Mr. Fulton, and then to Mr. Snodgrass, of Glasgow.

A third sister is Mary. I do not know the Roxburgh Mathers. One of them has ground near Kelso, growing flowers and young trees, close to the railway station. I think you have heard all I can say at present. I have a brother John in Canada, a brother Albin in the Transvaal, Africa, and William in a farm near Stevenston, called the Thorn. My sister Elisabeth is married to James Hamilton of Old Liston, Ratho, near Edinburgh, and my sister Mary was married to Mr. George Knox, and is now Mrs. Rodger, of Nether Mulhousheugh, Mearns. I am sorry your daughter Mary did not call on me. That pleasure may yet be in store. You Americans think little of a journey around the world. I should like very much to know whether you are related to our clan, and trust to have the pleasure of reading your book on the Mathers when it comes out. It is not a very common name. If I can at all find anything elucidative of the Mather pedigree I will gladly let you know. The name does not appear to be of old date in Scotland. What do you reckon it to mean? A man acquainted with the Norse language told me it meant a man. The Greeks will tell us that it means a mother. So it must mean Adam before Eve was taken from his side. I shall be glad to hear from you at your convenience.

Wishing you every blessing in the Lord, I am

Yours truly,

JAMES MATHER.

Mr. John Mather of Newton Mearns, but now of William Wright & Co., tea merchants in Argyle street, Glasgow, and Mining Lane, London, sends me a large amount of material of the above branch of the Mather family in Scotland. He says "they came from England to Scotland in the Puritan times, on account of persecutions, and settled in the farm of Kirkland, parish of Eaglesham, County of Renfrew—two brothers, John of Kirkland, and William of Moorhouse. He adds that if I am musical, and know the good old Psalm tune, "Sheffield," it was composed by his grandfather, William Mather, in commemoration of the Mathers having been persecuted from Sheffield in Puritan times.

Letter from Hon. Wm. Mather, Member of Parliament, England:

SALFORD IRON WORKS,

MANCHESTER, ENG.

MY DEAR SIR:—I owe you an apology for my seeming neglect of your laudable and praiseworthy efforts to find out all about the common stock from which the family of Mather originally sprung.

I am much honored by your attention to myself. I cannot at this time give you any trustworthy record of my own branch of the family, beyond that my ancestors were of Aberdeen county in Scotland, and being satisfactory for some generations back in status and character, I have never troubled myself further about them.

I send you, as you desire it, photographs to show the sort of appearance I present, and my wife made me enclose the photo of the "M. P." in Court dress, such as all members wear on certain occasions, a sort of "war paint," as you would say in America. It is a relic of the long past customs, which survive with us for state occasions.

It will interest me much if you have any record of your branch of the family which you can conveniently send me. Do not let previous disappointments prevent us meeting when you visit England again. But you must kindly write me in advance. Believe me,

Very truly yrs,

WM. MATHER.

ELECTION NEWS. — LIBERAL VICTORY AT GORTON.

After the counting of the votes on Saturday at the Gorton Court-house, the result was officially declared, shortly after 2 P.M., as follows:

Mr. W. Mather (L.).....	5,155
Mr. E. F. G. Hatch (C.)	4,309
Liberal majority.....	846

For the purpose of comparison we give the results of the two previous elections:

1885.		1886.
R. Peacock (L.).....	5,300	R. Peacock (L.).....	4,592
D. J. Flattley (C.).....	3,552	Visct. Grey de Wilton (C.)....	4,135
Majority.....	1,748	Majority.....	457

A vote of thanks to the High Sheriff (Mr. O. Heywood) for the conduct of the election was passed on the motion of the two candidates. An immense crowd had gathered outside to learn the result.

Mr. Mather, M.P., on making his appearance on the balcony, said: I stand before you to-day not as a victorious candidate, but as a representative of a great and noble cause. (Cheers.) The voice of Gorton will go throughout the length and breadth of Great Britain. (Cheers.) It pronounces the doom of the present government or statesmen who cannot read the signs of the times, and who must know that the great democracy of Great Britain is determined that all ranks and classes of people shall live under equal laws. (Cheers.) This victory will be throughout the whole of the country a matter for rejoicing — cheers — as showing that the most enlightened constituency in Lancashire has grown continually in those principles which will remove injustice and oppression from the laws of this country, and restore the law of righteousness. (Loud cheers.)

The news was received with much enthusiasm in London. Outside the office of The Daily News in Fleet Street a large crowd began to assemble about the time when it was expected the result would be declared. Directly a placard was exhibited in the window announcing the victory of the Liberal candidate, a wild cheer went up. Men waved their hats, and continued to shout in triumph for some minutes, the omnibuses and cabs meanwhile having great difficulty in making their way through the crowd, which stretched from one side of the roadway to the other, and for a considerable distance in each direction.

Mr. William Mather, of Broughton Park, Manchester, and the Salford Iron Works, Salford, who thus succeeds to the seat vacated by the death of Mr. R. Percock, is a son of the late Mr. William Mather, of Broughton, by his marriage with Amelia, daughter of the late Mr. James Tidswell, also of Salford, and was born in Manchester in July, 1845. He was educated at private schools in England and at Dresden, Saxony, and is by profession an engineer, and a member of the Institution of Civil Engineers. At an early age he became a partner in the firm of Mather & Platt, owners of the Salford Iron Works, and he is senior partner in the firm. He is a magistrate for the borough of Salford, and has been president of the Manchester Reform Club and of the Salford Liberal Association. He has also served on the Salford Town Council and the Salford School Board. Mr. Mather traveled six months in the United States and Canada, in 1883, to inquire into technical instruction and industrial training for the Royal Commission on Technical Instruction; and also visited Russia in 1884 for a similar voluntary work, both his reports being printed in the Report of the Royal Commission presented to Parliament. There is also a science school established in connection with the Salford Iron Works, and this is said to produce some of the best results obtained by any such schools in this country. Mr. Mather married in 1863 Emma, daughter of the late Mr. Thomas Watson, of Highbury, London. In the short Parliament of 1885 he represented South Salford, but was defeated at the general election of 1886 by Mr. H. H. Howorth. His return on the present occasion makes no difference in the balance of political parties.

LONDON, March 18.

DEAR MR. MATHER: — I can bear emphatic testimony to the patriotic motives which have induced you to make a sacrifice of your personal interest and convenience in order to offer yourself to the constituency of Gorton for the discharge of arduous public duties in a great crisis. The appreciation of such conduct will, I believe, enhance the zeal and ardor with which your claims will be supported, and we may reasonably anticipate that the constituency of Gorton will manifest on Friday next that it is in sympathy with the movement of opposition which appears to prevail more and more throughout the country, and which promises to bring promptly to a close a controversy that obstructs business, awakens animosity, causes profuse expense, and discredits the fame of England throughout the world, without offering in any single particular an atom of compensation for these grave and inveterate evils. With warm good wishes, I remain, dear Mr. Mather, very faithfully yours,

W. E. GLADSTONE

On July 15, 1887, R. C. Hall, Esq., a member of the Foxtoth Park Chapel, Liverpool, offered to accompany me from Liverpool to see the old walled city of Chester and the Chester Cathedral, and while crossing the River Mersey in a steamer to Birkenhead he gave me the following:

Dr. Franklin to Dr. Samuel Mather of Boston, from Passy, 12 May, 1784:

“When I was a boy I met with a book entitled ‘Essays to Do Good,’ which I think was written by your father, which gave me such a turn of thinking as to have an influence on my conduct through life; and if I have been, as you seem to think, a useful citizen, the public owes the advantage of it to that book by Cotton Mather.”

You say you are 78. I am in my 70th. We are grown old together. It is now more than 60 years since I left Boston, but I remember well both your father (Cotton) and grandfather (Increase), having heard them both in the pulpit, and seen them in their own houses. The last time I saw your father was in 1724. He received me in his library, and on my taking leave, showed me a shorter way out of the house, through a narrow passage, which was crossed by a beam overhead. We were still talking as I withdrew, he accompanying me behind, and I turning partly towards him, when he said hastily, ‘Stoop! stoop!’ I did not understand him till I felt my head hit against the beam. He was a man who never missed any occasion for giving instruction; and upon this he said to me: ‘You are young, and have the world before you; stoop as you go through it, and you will miss many hard thumps.’ This advice, thus beat into my head, has frequently been of use to me; and I often think of it when I see pride mortified, and misfortune brought upon people by their carrying their heads too high.”

[When the copier of this was a boy he had given to him by his father ‘Franklin’s Life,’ which has had ‘a great influence on his conduct and thinking through life,’ and thus, incidentally, is indebted to this same Mather family, and feel how interesting it is to have had so much of the better part of his life connected with the old chapel in which old Richard Mather was the first preacher, and that he should write this out for one of his descendants.

R. C. HALL.

[LIVERPOOL, July 15, 1887.]

THE MATHERS AND THE MAUSOLEUM IN MEIKLE EARNOCK BURYING-GROUND, SCOTLAND.

I have been favored with a communication from Mr. William Mather, Goulburn, Sydney, New South Wales, containing some interesting information about his ancestors and the erection of the tomb, or little mausoleum, in the old graveyard at Meikle Earnock. As it gives a great number of additional facts, and corrects some of the statements made in my former account of the Strangs and Mathers, the information communicated may be reproduced in a supplementary paper.

The succession of the Strangs as heirs of Meikle Earnock, together with date of the enclosure of the old burying-ground as formerly stated, may be repeated here. James Strang appears to have acquired the lands about 1654. He was succeeded by his son James, who, about 1731, enclosed a portion of Fairhill Park for a burying-ground. He died in 1746, and was buried there, as appears from the inscription on his tombstone. His son and successor, James, sold Fairhill Park in 1763 to a Captain Coventry, "excepting to the 'new' burying-ground upon the southwest corner of the said Fairhill Park, enclosed with a stone wall." This James Strang died in 1777, and left three daughters, co-heiresses, Janet, Mary, and Nelly. The two latter died unmarried, and Janet became sole heiress. She married, in 1770, Robert Mather, who belonged to an old Hamilton family, and had a large family of sons and daughters. Her husband died in 1808, and she survived him till 1839, being the last of the Strangs of Meikle Earnock. She was succeeded by her son, John Mather, who was the first and the last heir of the name, the property having been sold in his time.

It appears that the marriage of Robert Mather and Janet Strang was not the first union of the Strangs and Mathers, as my correspondent, Mr. Mather, is in possession of a family Bible, which belonged to his great-grandfather, John Mather, in which is registered the date of his marriage to Catherine Strang, and the names and date of birth of his family, which he has copied in full and transmitted as follows:— "Inscription. John Mather bought this Bible. John Mather and Catherine Strang were married the 6th day of June, 1724 years. My daughter Margaret was born the 1st day of April, 1725; my son William, the 29th September, 1726; Mary, the 8th April, 1728; John the 8th April, 1730; Katherine, the 31st March, 1732; Mary, the 12th March, 1734;

James, the 20th April, 1736; John, the 21st March, 1738; Robert, the 12th August, 1740; John, the 11th April, 1743." Mr. Mather says, "My relationship to the above is—John Mather, my great-grandfather; Catherine Strang, my great-grandmother; Margaret, daughter of the above, my grand-aunt; William, son of the above, my grandfather," &c.

He further states that "William Mather, my grandfather, was a Baillie of Hamilton, and had burghess tickets from Glasgow, Paisley, Lanark, and Hamilton. He married Janet Naismith, sister of John Naismith of Drumloch. Issue of this marriage, William, James, and John Mather (my uncles), Gavin Mather (my father), and Margaret, Janet, and Ellen Mather (my aunts). Ellen married Archibald Burns, writer and notary public, who was for many years Sheriff of Hamilton. Their daughter, Janet Burns, was the wife of the late Thomas Anderson, Esq., of the Commercial Bank, Hamilton. She was my father's niece and my cousin, a most enthusiastic genealogist, and to her I am indebted for much information about my ancestors. She died four years ago, aged 80."

It may be noted that Janet Naismith, Mr. Mather's grandmother, was a daughter of John Naismith of Drumloch, and his wife, Helen Cowper. Her brother, John Naismith, Younger of Drumloch, as he was styled, was a man of considerable literary ability, and wrote the account of Hamilton parish for Sir John Sinclair's "Statistical Account of Scotland," "A General View of the Agriculture of Clydesdale," and other works. He was a practical agriculturist, and carried on extensive operations in reclaiming moss on his farm of Drumloch, on which he wrote a treatise. Owing to his literary attainments, he was made a burghess of Glasgow. He was the ancestor of the Auchincampbell family, the late Dr. William Naismith being his grandson, to whose son, Mr. W. W. Naismith, I am indebted for these notes.

Mr. Mather says that his grand-uncle Robert, son of John Mather and Katherine Strang, married his cousin, Janet Strang, heiress of Meikle-Earnock, which shows that his (Robert's) mother was a sister of James Strang, Janet's father.

In conclusion, Mr. Mather gives a few details of the history of another grand-uncle, John, youngest son of John Mather and Catherine Strang, who went out to Jamaica, came home, lived some time in Edinburgh, and built the tomb in graveyard, and quotes part of the deed of disposition of the portion of ground on which it is built. "I have been informed," he says, "that he was a coffee planter on a considerable estate of his own, named Mount Endeavor, as well as a merchant in Jamaica, and I have in my possession letters from his agent, addressed to him, asking directions about some of his slaves, mentioned by name. I have also been informed that he never was married.

As regards the rights of sepulture in the tomb in Meikle-Earnock burying-ground, I have in my possession the duly stamped, executed, and attested original deed. I shall limit myself to reciting the preamble, and such parts of the deed as bear on the point, and afterwards quote more at large the appendices to the deed, which is entitled "Disposition."—Janet Strang to John Mather, date 1801. — "Be it known to all men by these presents, that I, Janet Strang, wife of Robert Mather, portioner of Meikle-Earneek, with the special advice and consent of my said husband, in consideration of a certain sum of money paid to me by John Mather, late merchant in Jamaica, presently residing in Edinburgh," etc. Then follows a description of the subjects disposed, viz.:— "All and whole of that small area, or piece of ground part of the burial ground belonging to the lands of Meikle-Earneock, and adjoining the same, measuring and containing sixty-six square yards and three square feet, or thereby, and which area or piece of ground hereby disposed is bounded as follows, viz., by the wall which encloses the said burial ground on the east and south, and by the remaining part of the said burial ground on the west and north parts lying within the parish of Hamilton and shire of Lanark, upon which area or piece of ground the said John Mather has built a mausoleum or tomb," etc. This deed also warrants to the dispooner free ingress and egress to the area disposed. Signatories of the deed—Janet Strang, Robert Mather. Witnesses—John Boyes, Esq., Wellhall; Archibald Burns, writer; and John Mather. Appended to the principal deed is a declaration in which Janet Strang makes oath and declares "that she was no ways coerced, compelled, or seduced to grant the same, but that she did so of her own free will and motive."—Signed, Janet Strang; John Boyes, J. P., attester; Archibald Burns, N. P.

So much for the disposition; now as to the rights of sepulture. Endorsed upon the principal deed we find as follows, viz.:— "I, the within designed John Mather, do hereby grant full power and liberty of interment in the burial-place or mausoleum, within mentioned, to the following persons only, viz.:— First, to all my brethren and their spouses; secondly, to their children and their spouses; thirdly, to the male grandchildren of my brethren; and lastly, to the male descendants of my father and their spouses in all time hereafter. And for every person to be interred therein shall be paid the sum of two shillings and sixpence, being what I consider as a reasonable payment towards keeping the said mausoleum in repair. In witness whereof I have subscribed these presents at Hamilton, the 23d day of June, 1801 years, before these witnesses, John Mather, merchant in Hamilton, and Archibald Burns, writer, there.—Signed, John Mather."

The first witness, Mr. Boyes of Wellhall, was, I believe, distantly related to the dispooner, Janet Strang. The other, Mr. John Mather, merchant, Hamilton, was my correspondent's uncle; and Mr. Burns, who wrote the disposition, was the husband of Ellen Mather, his aunt. Mr. Mather gives no information about the death of the builder of the mausoleum and his interment there, but I suppose that took place in due course of time, and his funeral is probably the one referred to by "W. A." a former correspondent in the Albion, who says that one or two old residents are still alive who remember to have seen it, and that he was himself the first to be hid within its walls.

Mr. Mather describes his ancestor's old Family Bible, in which is registered his marriage and the births of his children, as "a very large one, weighing about 7 lbs. The boards are of wood, covered with leather, and heavily mounted with brass mountings. The date of printing, 1708. There are a considerable number of maps by Moxon of London, each dedicated by inscription to some prominent member of the nobility, and bearing his respective escutcheon and motto.

In a postscript note, Mr. Mather says, "Some antiquaries assert that Maehon is the Celtic equivalent of Mather." This, I believe, is the opinion of some etymologists of family names. However, both names are of an old date in Hamilton, and there were two families in the parish, nearly contemporary, who bore the respective names of Maehon and Mather. About the beginning of the sixteenth century the lands of Little Earnock and Barnclith belonged to John Maehon, who had two daughters, Agnes and Ann, co-heiresses. About 1597, William, son of Sir James Hamilton of Mungwale, Haddington, married Agnes Maehon, heiress of Little Earnock, with whom he got these lands, and they were the ancestors of the Hamiltons of that place. Her sister, Ann, married William Hamilton of Rossnoor, in Ayrshire, and with her got Barnclith, and from them the Hamiltons of that place were descended. The surname was probably taken from the barony of Maehon, in the parish of Dalserf.

In a list of Hamiltons and others who were retainers and vassals of the Earl of Arron, Lord Hamilton in 1565 is the name of John Mather in the Nether town of Hamilton. He may have been the common ancestor of all the Hamilton Mathers.

The Index of Marriages has been omitted, for the reason that it would require a large space in the book, which now is larger than was at first contemplated, and the value of such an index is not great except to a genealogist.

I have omitted four Mather wills and inventories of the 16th and 17th centuries, which were of great length. I had them transcribed for the work, and by advice of others have left them, with other matter, out of the book.
